RUSSIA YIELDS; FRISCO PARLEY ENDS TUESDAY

Truman to Address Final Meeting

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 20—With Russia accepting a stinging defeat in its fight for a gag on free debate in the new league of nations, a rough draft of the world peace charter was completed tonight.

Andrei Gromyko

State Secretary Stettinius announced that the fateful document would be signed amidst colorful ceremonies next Tuesday afternoon, June 26, with President Truman addressing the final plenary session.

Technical difficulties involved in the final drafting and translation of the charter into five languages forced a postponement of the originally scheduled adjournment date of June 23. But nothing, Stettinius declared happily, can now cause further delay.

Truman Speaks Tuesday

Mr. Truman will fly to San Francisco from Olympia, Wash., next Monday evening. His speech, expected about 7 p. m. Chicago time, the following day, will be broadcast to the world.

"The charter will be in draft form tonight," Stettinius told a press conference tonight after a steering committee meeting.

The rout of Russia on the free debate issue removed the last remaining obstacle to completion of the charter.

Russia Faced Defeat

Altho Soviet Ambassador Gromyko was hailed by Stettinius for his "cooperation and conciliatory attitude," it was noted that Russia yielded only when it became apparent that an overwhelming majority of the 50 nations were against it.

The text of the provision for debate in the assembly, as accepted by Gromyko under instructions from Moscow, is as follows:

"The general assembly has the right to discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided in the charter . . . and to make recommendations to the members of the united nations or to the security council or both on any such questions or matters."

Broad Debate Possible

Foreign Minister Evatt of Australia, who led the fight for free discussion, said the new provision gave the assembly the broadest possible rights to debate.

"It couldn't be wider," he announced triumphantly. "There will be no limits to debate except the assembly's own sense of responsibility. I am almost frightened to tell you how wide I think it is lest the fight start all over again. The charter itself is so comprehensive that any matter under the sun can be brought up and discussed."

Russia had wanted to stick to the Dumbarton Oaks provision which restricted debate to matters directly affecting peace and security. This meant, in effect, that members could talk about little more than threatened outbreaks of war and were precluded from discussion of a wide range of international affairs.

In outlining his protest, Gromyko had betrayed a suspicion that the assembly, "The Town Meeting of the World," would be used as a sounding board for anti-soviet sentiments. Stalin's future moves in setting up buffer states and extending his power thruout the world were well calculated, delegates guessed, to arouse fiery debate which might mobilize world opinion against Russia.

12 Guilty, 3 Acquitted in Moscow Trial

LONDON, June 21 [Thursday]—(AP)—Twelve of the sixteen Polish underground leaders accused of subversive activities behind Red army lines in Poland were found guilty in Moscow early today and sentenced to prison terms ranging from 10 years to four months, the Moscow radio said.

Three were acquitted and the trial of another, Anton Paidak, was postponed because he was ill.

Maj. Gen. Leopold Bronislaw Okulicki, Polish home army commander and principal defendant among the 16 accused of subversive activities, received the heaviest sentence—10 years.

Other sentences quoted by the Moscow radio were: Jan Jankowski, eight years; Adam Bien and Stanislaw Jasukowiscz, five years; Kazimierz Puzak, 18 months; Kazimierz Baginski, one year; Kazimierz Swerzinski, eight months; Emdeny Czarnowski, six months; Stanislaw Merzs, Jan Stypulkowski, Franz Urbanski, and Josef Hacinski, four months.

The three defendants acquitted were S. F. Mikhailowski, K. S. Kobylyanski, and J. H. Stember-Bombrowski.

Call for Friendship

MOSCOW, June 20 (AP)—Fifteen Polish underground leaders, relieved of the threat of a death sentence in their trial on charges of "fifth column" activities behind Red army lines in Poland, tonight made final statements in which they declared friendship between Russia and Poland was most necessary.

Earlier in the day the prosecutor asked that prison terms, but not the death penalty, be imposed on the accused Poles and asserted that the Polish exile government in London bore "the main guilt" for trying "to create a Poland in opposition to the soviet union."

Jan Jankowski, former leader of the underground government, said the commission now working in Moscow to reorganize the Polish provisional government had a difficult task because many of the accused should be in the reorganized government.

Admits Distrust Was Wrong

Maj. Gen. Okulicki, Polish home army commander, staged his own defense, declaring he had committed no crimes, and that "my one great mistake, I know now, was my distrust of the soviet union."

Charged with subversive acts behind Russian lines, Okulicki said:

"I consider myself guilty of not giving orders to hand over radios, guns, and ammunition to the Red army. I consider myself guilty for forming the 'NE' [a politico-military organization], that I maintained communications with London, and carried out propaganda against the soviet union and Red army, but I am not guilty of carrying out terror, espionage, and acts of diversion."

Okulicki declared "there is no proof that the underground army did not fight against the Germans," and said the Polish underground's battle against the Germans should not be punished by punishment of its leaders.

HOLD EX-MATE FOR ALIBI QUIZ

Elevator Death Lie Test Brings Action

Rockford, Ill., June 20 [Special]—In a surprise move authorities late tonight took into custody for requestioning the young former wife of Cecil Robbel, 45, wealthy Rockford business man. She divorced him two years ago on grounds of cruelty and adultery but came to his defense today with an alibi for him in the mysterious "elevator" death of a service man's wife who had visited his apartment.

The witness, a daughter of a retired minister, who also was in Robbel's apartment for cocktails shortly before the death, is Miss Naomi Gohlke, 23, a slim, bespectacled blonde who clerks in a Rockford store.

She was brought to the Rockford police station for more questioning several hours after both she and Robbel had returned from Chicago where they were subjected to lie detector tests which State's Atty. Max Weston said indicated they hadn't told all they knew about the unusual case.

Report Discrepancies

"The examinations brought out several discrepancies in their separate stories told under the lie detector," the prosecutor explained. "There are a number of points in the case that still need to be cleared up."

Robbel has been held in the county jail without charge since Monday night when Mrs. Ruth Blanche Campbell, 36, an attractive brunette, was found dead in the self-operating elevator in the four story downtown building which houses Robbel's electric appliance company and his top floor apartment. The woman had been a stenographer-clerk employe of Robbel's for a week and had been his guest in his swank six room bachelor quarters for more than four hours before her death.

Ex-Wife Explains Death

The business man at first insisted he knew nothing about Mrs. Campbell's death, that it took place while he was "out getting a cup of coffee." But this morning his former wife came forward and volunteered the information that she had been in Robbel's apartment that night with Mrs. Campbell and Robbel and that the woman's death was apparently an accident.

Prosecutor Weston said Miss Gohlke gave the following account:

She went to Robbel's apartment, which she frequently visited to wash and mend her clothes, about 9 p. m. Monday and found him there with Mrs. Campbell. After a number of rounds of cocktails, Robbel fell asleep on the couch. She and Mrs. Campbell played phonograph records until the latter left about 11 p. m.

Before Miss Gohlke left a moment later she awakened Robbel and he followed her out to the elevator, which Mrs. Campbell already had taken down. When he pushed the fourth floor button, the elevator came up, went down again, then came up and stalled between the third and fourth floors.

She and Robbel took the freight elevator to the third floor, went to the passenger elevator door and pushed a button that brought that cage to the third level. When they opened the door they found Mrs. Campbell's crushed body crumpled in the back of the elevator. Police found later that the elevator shaft was smeared with blood between the third and first floors.

Miss Gohlke said she told Robbel she "couldn't afford to get mixed up in this" and he told her to "go home and keep quiet and he would take care of it." She volunteered her information she said, when it appeared that Robbel was involved in serious difficulties.

Browns Storm Sox Dugout; Beat Up Pitcher, Ex-Marine

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Details of the Chicago White Sox-St. Louis Browns baseball game in St. Louis last night on page 25.

St. Louis, Mo., June 20—The White Sox tonight defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 1, and the champions reciprocated by a brutal assault on Karl Scheel, a 23 year old ex-marine now serving as batting practice pitcher and sidelines heckler under James J. Dykes. Taunted by his remarks, the champs swarmed into the Sox dugout and beat their tormentor almost into insensibility during an eighth inning splurge in which the Sox did all their scoring.

The melee was touched off when George Caster, while being removed because he had failed as a rescuer for Al Hollingsworth, sailed the ball into the Sox dugout, apparently aiming at Scheel. With that Manager Dykes stepped to the plate to protest to Umpire in Chief Art Passarella, who quickly advised Dykes to return whence he came. Almost instantly the Browns, as if acting under orders, burst from their dugout and started across the field.

Evades Umpire's Tackle

When the Browns got as far as home plate, Passarella and the other umpires endeavored to herd them back into their corral. Sig Jakucki, however, apparently enraged over what Scheel had said to him last night, plowed past the umpires, even a flying tackle by Passarella failing to halt his advance. Jakucki leaped into the Sox dugout, followed by a dozen or so Browns, among them Ellis Clary, Myron Hayworth, and Manager Luke Sewell. The fans surged onto the field, gathered around the dugout, and weren't dispersed until a few policemen arrived five minutes later.

Dykes Gets Spike Wounds

Meanwhile, according to reports of what went on in the depths of the dugout, the marine veteran of South Pacific campaigns was kicked and pummeled, allegedly with Jakucki doing the heavy work. Jakucki was said to have emerged with a lump on his head and Clary with a split lip.

Dykes, who termed it the most brutal display ever witnessed in baseball, tried to confine himself to a peace maker's role, but picked up spike wounds on his arms and legs. Scheel was able to leave with the Sox for Cleveland immediately after the game.

GOV. GREEN AND KELLY CONFER ON SUPPORT FOR VALUATION BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 20—Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly conferred here today to agree on support of the Republican and Democratic organizations for the Butler bills for state-wide uniformity of tax assessments. Success of their plans would cause Assessor John S. Clark to withdraw his threat of placing Cook county assessments on a 20 per cent basis, throwing tax machinery out of gear thruout the state.

The Butler bills were placed on the house calendar today after a hard fight, keeping alive the possibility that they might be enacted into law before final adjournment of the legislature June 30.

Kelly, who met Green at an old fashioned picnic staged by Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett, said "Clark's statement [threatening the 20 per cent assessment basis] has cast suspicion on our 50 million dollar proposed bond issue. If the bills are passed the situation apparently will straighten itself out."

The mayor said "Clark is working for his own record, I guess," which recalled reports that Clark may run against Kelly in the Democratic mayoralty primary of 1947.

GUARD ASSERTS HE SAW HITLER BODY BURNING

Eva's Corpse Afire, Too, Prisoner Says

MONTGOMERY'S HDQ., June 20 (AP)—A German guard from Berlin said today he saw the bodies of Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun burning at the exit to the reichschancellery shelter on May 1.

[Marshal Zhukov said on June 9 at Berlin, "We have found no corpse that could be Hitler's," and suggested the fuehrer had a good opportunity to escape by air with Eva Braun, his companion in the siege.]

The guard, Hermann Karnau, 32, told allied correspondents:

"I saw Hitler lying on the ground about two yards from the exit, in open air.

"Hitler was on his back with his knees slightly drawn up. Eva Braun was beside him with her face down. Both bodies were on fire and beside them were four empty gasoline cans. There was an incredible odor.

Favorite Dog Poisoned

"I turned about and encountered Prof. Stumpfecker, chief medical officer of the chancellery, at the main entrance to the bunker. I believe he poisoned the fuehrer and Fraulein Braun, for four nights earlier he had poisoned the fuehrer's favorite Alsatian dog, Blondie.

"I entered the bunker, which was about 60 feet underground, and met Hitler's valet, Linge.

"We had heard that Linge had orders that the fuehrer's body should never fall into the hands of the enemy, who were then about a mile and a quarter away at the Hollisches Tor [gate], and shelling us heavily.

"In the bunker I met Sturmbahnfuehrer Schedule, of the fuehrer's personal staff, coming down the emergency exit. He was calling out, 'The fuehrer is dead and burning.'

"With another policeman I returned to the spot where the bodies lay. The lower parts of both were burned away, but I recognized the fuehrer by his mustache and Braun by the black suede shoes with high cork soles, which had not yet caught fire.

"I saw Goebbels [propaganda minister] that night between 8 and 9. He was standing alone in his bunker room opposite the fuehrer's, holding his chin thoughtfully in one hand.

[The Russians believe that Goebbels poisoned himself, his wife, and five children, but their bodies have not been positively identified.]

"At 9:15 we guards were inspected by S. S. Officer Kolcks, who said, 'It is sad that none of the officers worry about where the body of Hitler is. I am proud that I alone know where he lies.'

"I think there might have been a shovelful left of Hitler's body."

Karnau said he once was transferred to Berchtesgaden, where another sentry pointed out Hitler's window and said adjoining it was the window of "E. B."

"Nobody was allowed to refer to the lady as Fraulein Braun," he said. "She was always spoken of by initials. It was also dangerous to speak of her relations with the fuehrer."

Karnau said he was transferred to Berlin as a guard at the reichschancellery. He said Hitler came there at the end of February and remained in Berlin to the end. From April 18 onward, Hitler was said to have remained in a deep underground shelter.

"On April 13 I met Eva Braun when she was apparently in great distress," Karnau said. "She was crying out, 'I would rather die here. I will not go away.' I tried to calm her, addressing her as Fraulein Braun, to which she replied, 'You may call me Frau Hitler now.'

[Marshal Zhukov has said the Red army had evidence indicating that Hitler married Eva Braun two days before Berlin fell. The guard's story suggests that they might have married earlier.]

"Toward the end of April there had been a strong rumor among the

TELL HOW JAP SUICIDE PILOT HIT U. S. CRUISER

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—The light cruiser Nashville, severely damaged in a Japanese suicide plane attack which cost 133 officers and men killed and 190 wounded, has had her wounds repaired and is back in action.

The navy revealed today the story of the attack which occurred last Dec. 13 near the island of Negros, in the Philippines while the Nashville was screening a convoy bound for the invasion of Mindoro. Only seven weeks earlier the proud ship had disembarked Gen. MacArthur at Leyte on his triumphant return to the islands.

As the Nashville proceeded on the right flank of the convoy, lookouts spotted a single engine plane about 1 p. m., diving out of scattered clouds at about 5,000 feet. Shooting toward the convoy at a speed estimated by observers at 400 knots, it appeared at first to be aiming for a ship astern of the Nashville.

Jap Switches Direction

Suddenly, however, as he roared in at low altitude less than a minute after he was sighted, the Japanese pilot did a flipper turn to the right directly toward the Nashville's bridge.

"Those aboard the Nashville who got a fleeting glimpse of the plane before it crashed saw heavy bombs fastened to each wing," the navy reported. "The suicide plane never reached the ship's bridge. The tip of the right wing hit the barrel of a 40 millimeter gun on the ship's port side amidships. The bomb in the right wing exploded almost immediately.

"The left wing tore off and flew thru the air toward the starboard side. The bomb attached to the left wing exploded in midair about 10 feet above the deck on the starboard side, hurling fragments in all directions.

"Immediately the plane's gasoline ignited, the flames shooting higher than the stacks. The explosion had sprayed the gasoline in all directions, and consequently the fire extended more than 70 feet forward on the ship to the after part of the ship's bridge on the port side."

Ammunition Exploded

The fire set off ammunition on deck, causing 5 inch, 40 mm., and 20 mm. shells to explode in the midst of towering flames. One gun crew, surrounded by fire, saved themselves by vaulting over the flames into the water.

Many were killed outright in the area between the mainmast and the foremast by concussion and the flash of explosions or by flying pieces of the fragmentation bombs.

Firefighting crews went to work quickly, braving heat and exploding ammunition. Within 20 minutes, the fire was extinguished.

The damaged ship continued with the convoy for several hours, then turned back to Leyte, where the dead were buried in a military cemetery and the wounded were removed for hospitalization.

Temporary repairs were made at a western Pacific base, and then she started her 12,000 mile trip home. She arrived at the Puget Sound navy yard, Bremerton, Wash., her scorched ensign flying over smokestacks riddled with holes from bomb fragments, and her deck plates and structure amidships buckled and blackened by fire.

Workers Set Records

Round the clock efforts by workers at the yard, already crowded with other ships in for repair and rehabilitation, put her back into service. She took her place on a

YANKS MOP UP POCKETS; SLAY 7,000 IN 3 DAYS

Marines, Infantry Make Contact

GUAM, June 21 [Thursday]—(AP)—The 10th army rapidly cut to pieces Japanese remnants on the southern end of Okinawa Wednesday as American artillery ceased fire in order not to hit the Yanks, fleet headquarters announced today.

While still withholding an announcement of an end to organized Japanese resistance, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz made it evident that the finish is only a matter of a short time. He said the remaining Nipponese were cut into three pockets, the largest of which was 1,200 yards in diameter.

Enemy killed mounted to 87,343 and prisoners to 2,565. The new estimate of killed, extending thru Tuesday, raised the total in three days to nearly 7,000. The total of 89,908 enemy exceeded original estimates of the Japanese garrison strength on Okinawa, previously put at 85,000.

This was probably the highest rate of Japanese slaughter for any similar period in the central or far western Pacific campaigns. American ground casualties thru May 24—Last date for which Nimitz announced them—were 26,575, including 5,332 killed or missing.

Hold Out on Hill

The 6th marine division compressed one enemy pocket into an area 1,000 yards square around Ara cape at the extreme southern tip of the island behind the Mabuni-Mura hill masses.

Japanese dug in on hill 81 north of Makabe continued to hold out against attacks of the 1st marine division. That was the largest pocket. The 1st marine division and the 7th infantry division established contact.

The 96th infantry division advanced slowly against other enemy forces fighting from concrete pillboxes between the towns of Medeera and Aragachi. On the eastern side of this pocket, 7th division infantrymen reduced enemy positions near the southern coast.

Win Summit of Hill

Pressing on against the southeastern coastal pocket around Mabuni town, the 32d regiment won the summit of a hill near Udo town. On the west coast, the 6th division's 22d marine regiment was mopping up the area south of Kuwanga ridge.

The 8th regimental combat team, which had driven a corridor to the south coast the day before, was cleaning up the Kuwanga ridge area thru which it made its swift dash. Its spearheading drive had split the Japanese into two forces, enabling the final breakup of the Japanese garrison.

Tokyo radio conceded the loss of the strategic island.

Capt. Kenneth Goodman, Houston, Tex., had 28 tanks strung out along a 1,000 yard front between Aragachi and Medeera and reported his armored units were having a field day cleaning out machine gun nests.

"Blood in Their Eyes"

As the fighting entered its 82d day since the April 1 invasion, Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, commander of the 6th marine division, spoke the thoughts of the Americans.

"These boys have blood in their eyes," Shepherd said. "They are eager to clean out the remaining Japs in a hurry."

The disorganized Japanese plunged recklessly against 96th division lines to avoid shattering salvos of American artillery fire, said Correspondent Robert Geiger. An estimated 500 uniformed Japs surrendered.

Okinawa civilians came out of the battle zone in pitiful lines, plodding along roads wearily carrying their children and belongings.

Shoot Down 2 Planes

Two enemy planes appeared over the area before dawn Tuesday and Okinawa based night fighters shot them down. Other Okinawa based planes pounded enemy defenses in the Amami Islands, 200 miles north of Okinawa and within 125 miles of the enemy homeland.

Carrier planes of the 3d fleet hit the Sakishima group, southernmost of the Ryukyus.

SECOND GENERAL KILLED

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Death has overtaken two more American officers in the Pacific—Brig. Gen. Claudius M. Easley and Rear Adm. Forrest B. Royal.

Gen. Easley [top] and Rear Adm. Royal

Gen. Easley, 53 year old assistant commander of the 96th infantry division, was killed in action on Okinawa Tuesday, the war department notified his wife today.

The navy announced that Adm. Royal, 52, commander of an amphibious force that spearheaded the recent operation against Brunei bay, Borneo, died Monday of natural causes. No further information was given.

18 Generals Killed

Easley was the second general to fall on Okinawa this week. Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the 10th army, was killed Monday by Japanese artillery fire.

Easley, a native of Thorp Springs, Tex., was the 18th American general to be killed in action in World War II. He had been wounded by a Japanese sniper on Leyte Island in the Philippines and held the silver star and the Legion of Merit for his action in the Leyte and Okinawa campaigns.

He was graduated from Texas A. and M. college in 1917 and the army war college in 1940. He is survived by Mrs. Easley, who lives in Washington, and a son, Maj. Claudius M. Easley Jr., now with the 6th army in the Philippines.

Commanded on Leyte

Adm. Royal was the 12th naval flag officer to die while on active field duty.

A native of New York City, he was graduated from the naval academy in 1915. During the first war he served as communications officer aboard the battleship Pennsylvania. He was commanding the cruiser Milwaukee at the outbreak of the present war. After duty in Washington, the British Isles, and North Africa, he was assigned to the Pacific in 1943.

He was awarded the distinguished service medal for his services as commander of the amphibious task group operating against Leyte and Luzon. Mrs. Royal lives in Arlington, Va.

YANKS BATHE IN SEA

BY AL DOPKING

ABOARD A TORPEDO BOMBER OVER SOUTHERN OKINAWA, June 20 (AP)—American marines and infantry men, reaching the southern beaches of Okinawa to split surviving Japanese into isolated pockets, celebrated their drive to the sea by washing their socks and aching feet in the blue Pacific.

Riding with Marine Pilot 1st Lt. Robert G. Knecht, Indianapolis, Ind., in his torpedo bomber as low as 15 feet over the battlefield, I could see thousands of doughboys and leathernecks swarming over the area.

As we flew at wing tip level to coastal cliffs we watched for Japanese suicidal jumps, but saw none. There was little evidence that the Nipponese were making wholesale death leaps as they did at Saipan. We counted less than 50 bodies on the reef.

Some Okinawa civilians climbed down ropes to the reef in frantic efforts to get away from the war. It was difficult to rescue them from the reef.

Yanks Rest on Roads

American tanks rolled across the countryside into the last Nipponese pocket of resistance among the coastal ridges.

Marines and soldiers used the principal roads near the southern coast and if the Japanese gave them any trouble they didn't show it. I could see Yanks sitting beside hedges smoking and chatting.

There was no doubt the Nipponese were giving up here in bigger numbers than in any previous campagin. In the army 7th division area alone, 455 prisoners and 6,500 civilians had come into Yank lines in a 24 hour period.

American landing craft equipped with loud speakerr roamed close off the Okinawa southern coast urging Japanese civilians and soldiers to abandon resistance.

Clear Naha Harbor

NAHA, Okinawa, June 16 [Delayed]—(AP)—The skipper of the first American ship to tie up to a Japanese dock at Naha described the port today as "the most fouled harbor per square foot I've ever seen."

The first ship to move into the harbor was a salvage vessel, skippered by Lt. Jesse Lee Hill of Oklahoma City. It was the first ship of any size to tie up at any dock of the Japanese empire since the war began.

The newly won harbor already is in use by American forces while navy and army crews are busy clearing out the channel. Sixteen army divers are working in deep sea diving gear left behind by the Japanese. They include Lt. [j. g.] Earl Bailey, Prairie Creek, Ind., and Tech. Sergeants Carl Peterson, Keith R. Whittaker, and Leo A. Barner, all of Chicago.

YANKS CAPTURE ILAGAN; PURSUE JAPS ON LUZON

Enemy Flees North in Cagayan Valley

MANILA, June 21 [Thursday]—(AP)—Meeting little or no opposition from an estimated 30,000 Japanese fleeing northward in the Cagayan valley of the Philippines, troops of the American 37th division captured Ilagan, an important river junction, and its air strip Tuesday, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

The river-hopping Buckeye division pressed northward in pursuit as the Japanese fell back toward Aparri port on Luzon's northern coast.

As the Cagayan corridor narrowed to little more than 100 miles, United States headquarters announced that Filipino guerillas were guarding any outlet to the north.

Advance Unimpeded

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler's Buckeyes seized the Ilagan air strip, a small secondary field overgrown with brush and rank grass, as they crossed the 440 foot wide Cagayan river aboard assault boats and pressed forward seven miles for a total gain of 10 miles during the day. They killed 39 Japanese and captured 103, mostly Formosans, as the advance continued unimpeded.

Three other Yank divisions mopped up in the lower Cagayan valley, where Japanese troops, retreating westward, have taken cover in the Caraballo mountains.

The American 6th infantry division, driving on the Japanese base at Kiangan, beat off night counter-attacks Monday and Tuesday on a mountain road, killing 16 of the Nipponese.

Baan Pass Seized

The 225th division seized Baan pass, five miles below Pingkian, and killed 51 Nipponese Monday.

More than 220 Japanese were killed and 60 captured on the Sierra Madre range east of Manila as the 38th infantry division and 1st [dismounted] cavalry division, together with Philippine army units, penetrated deeper into the upper Marikina water divide.

For the third straight day more than 50 5th air force Liberators drubbed the North Formosa port of Keelung Monday, dropping 200 tons of explosives and adding fresh devastation to harbor installations and rail facilities.

At the same time 200 Lightnings and Mustangs dropped 72 tons of jellied gasoline firebombs on Kari, southwest coast supply area for the Japanese army. The town was declared completely destroyed.

Four Lightnings were downed by anti-aircraft fire.

Chicagoland Boys Hurl GI Nines to Victories

LONDON, June 20—In a recent army baseball game Corp. Kent Sterling, Park Ridge, Ill., struck out 15 men and yielded only four hits as the 297th general hospital team won its 13th victory out of 15 starts. Sterling formerly hurled for Binghamton, N. Y., in the Eastern league. In France, the United Kingdom all-star nine lost, 9 to 0, to the 13th airborne all-stars when Dave Kozlo, Kenosha, Wis., former New York Giants pitcher, held them to only five hits.

CHINESE 3 MILES FROM LIUCHOW, ONCE U. S. BASE

CHUNGKING, China, June 20 (AP)—The Chinese high command claimed tonight that Chinese troops plowed within three miles of Liuchow air field, big former American bomber base in south China which was abandoned to the Japanese by the United States 14th air force seven months ago.

Chinese headquarters accounts of the fighting made it appear that Chinese reoccupation of the air field was imminent.

A bulletin said Chinese troops also had driven within six miles southwest of Liuchow after a 13 mile push thru Japanese defenses. The air field is three miles from the Kwangsi province rail city, 400 miles southeast of Chungking.

[Tokyo claimed that Japanese forces in Kiangsi province northeast of Hong Kong had routed six Chinese divisions, totaling 60,000 men, and had smashed Chinese plans to give military support to any American landings on the China coast.]

Japs Fight Desperately

The Chinese threat to Liuchow was posed after assault columns won an important highway point in the Liuchow-Ishan-Tatang defense triangle west and southwest of the city.

A bulletin asserted that two other Chinese units were pressing toward the southwestern outskirts of the city and were "engaging the enemy in a bitter battle."

Earlier reports from the front said vanguards had reached points 12½ miles south and 15½ miles southwest of Liuchow and that the Japanese were offering "desperate" resistance in an attempt to halt further Chinese advances.

Japs Strike North

Farther south, the high command said that the Japanese in the Hoihong [Luichow] peninsula of western Kwangtung had struck north from Limkong, 270 miles west of Hong Kong, and that another enemy force was battering toward Shekkio, 20 miles northeast of Limkong.

The purpose of the Japanese drive was not stated, but it was believed that the Japanese intended safeguarding their communications with the island of Hainan in the gulf of Tonkin, either as an avenue of reenforcement or withdrawal.

50 WACS TO BE FLOWN MONTHLY BACK TO HOMES

PARIS, June 20 (AP)—Fifty WACs will be flown to the United States in July, the first to be returned home under the point system, Lt. Col. Anna M. Wilson, Studio City, Cal., WAC staff director in the European theater, said today.

A minimum of 50 will be returned monthly from July to November, when a substantial increase in the quota is expected, Col. Wilson said. The first group has scores ranging from 70 to 112 points, compared with the 44 necessary. Approximately 3,000 WACs are eligible for release. Some, however, considered essential personnel, will remain until replaced—probably within a few months.

After arriving in the United States the WACs will go to one of five WAC separation centers nearest their homes—Fort Dix, N. J., Fort Bragg, N. C., Fort Sheridan, Ill., Camp Beal, Cal., and Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Car on Aurora-Elgin Line Is Derailed Near Bridge

One car of a westbound train of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad was derailed yesterday as it left the Wells st. terminal and approached the bridge at Van Buren st., but no one was reported hurt. Crews worked for nearly two hours to restore the car to the track, and a boat in the river was held up briefly. Elevated line traffic, which uses the same bridge, was not impeded.

Aussies Make New Borneo Landing

Bomb Balikpapan

MANILA, June 21 [Thursday]—(AP)—In a shore to shore operation, units of the Australian 9th division have landed at the northern head of Brunei bay, northwest Borneo, giving them control of both sides of the entrance to the waterway, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

The landing was preceded by an artillery bombardment from Labuan Island, seized by the Aussies early in their invasion of Borneo. The island is five miles west of the new beachhead. Medium bombers supported the ground operations.

Heavy bombers and fighters made another of their daily strikes in the Balikpapan area where, the Tokyo radio says without allied confirmation, an allied naval force has been operating for several days.

TOKYO REPORTS ALLIED FLEET IN FORMOSA SEAS

San Francisco, Cal., June 20 (AP)—A Tokyo broadcast today said two allied task forces were on the prowl near Miyaka Island, midway between Okinawa and Formosa. The report said they included three battleships in one group and three aircraft carriers and a battleship in the other, while more than 100 transports were allegedly spotted at anchor in the Kerama Islands, 20 miles west of Okinawa.

Domei disclosed elaborate plans for coöperative living in the bombed cities of Tokyo, Kawasaki, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka, and Kobe.

YANKEE LEADS JAPANESE SQUAD TO DEATH IN TRAP

WITH U. S. 24TH DIVISION NEAR DAVAO, Mindanao, P. I., June 19 [Delayed]—(AP)—A Yank sergeant commanded a Japanese squad just long enough to lead the Nipponese to their death.

Fighting west of Davao, Sgt. Joseph F. De Luca, Belleville, N. J., spotted an enemy patrol moving toward a road block where he commanded a machine gun outfit. The sergeant marched down the road and motioned to the Japanese to come forward. Evidently thinking he was a Japanese, the patrol marched up the road behind De Luca.

When the squad was where he wanted it, De Luca shouted, "Halt and drop your rifles." The Nipponese halted, but one grabbed for a grenade. The Yank machine gun mowed them down.

IWO PAYS BACK IN FLYERS SAVED ITS COST IN LIFE

1,000 B-29s Land on It in Three Months

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

IWO ISLAND, June 20—Some recent visitor to this volcanic speck in the Pacific's blue exclaimed as he stepped from the plane and looked around, "This is the best slag heap I've seen since the Toledo dump." For an unprejudiced description, that was good. But if you want a biased opinion, ask the crewmen of the Super Fortresses who have made emergency landings here since our marines typhooned ashore a little more than four months ago.

Army airmen based here say it is not unusual to see crew members of damaged or nearly gasless bombers returning from Japan literally kiss the ground in their joy at landing safely.

There has been much talk to the effect that Iwo cost more in human life than it was worth. A few cold figures should banish that argument.

1,000 Planes Landed

Since the first distress landing of a Super Fortress here on March 9 more than 1,000 others have made similar emergency sitdowns. That represents more than 10,000 personnel, perhaps half of whom might have lost their lives but for the presence of Iwo along their combat route. Moreover, Iwo based fighters have been accompanying the B-29s over Jap targets, undoubtedly saving a considerable number from enemy opposition.

Iwo's total casualties were 19,938, of which 4,189 were killed, 441 missing in action, and 15,308 wounded. Thus, life for life, Iwo has returned our terrible investment, and with the big payoff time just coming up we are continuing to reap returns.

There are other benefits which cannot yet be discussed for security reasons. But it seems evident now that our leaders who decided that Iwo should be taken chose wisely.

Isle Small and Ugly

The newcomer, flying here, is shocked at first glimpse at the celebrated island's small size and great ugliness. Battle has stripped off most of its vegetation, leaving it gray, naked, and dusty under the pitiless sun. The air fields seem almost to overlap and are tightly fringed with planes of all descriptions, from the sleek little P-51s to the stocky transports that carry in much of the freight to keep Iwo's tens of thousands of soldiers in work and provender.

You reflect, almost with a yawn after having seen America's miracle of swift, massive development repeated so often, that it is occurring here. You see much new work going on, and wonder how soon people must start hanging off the edge, so crowded is the rock already.

Even from the air the two principal marine cemeteries seem terribly large. The eastern shore is beaded with the rusting hulks of equipment knocked out while landing and hammered by later storms. As your glider brings the terrain and installations into relief you see that scarcely a square yard has escaped the bulldozers' relentless leveling.

Volcano Summit Flattened

Even the summit of inactive Suribachi volcano at the south tip is flattened and populated, and the highway the Japs said could not be built hairpins up the mount's steep side.

Every one you meet seems to wear airmen's wings. Pride shouts everywhere—pride tinged still with awe that our marines could have bested such ideal defense terrain, pride in the Super Fortress crews keeping their mounting pressure against the enemy, pride in the modern, long armed might of the army air corps.

You hear with surprise that Iwo is our nearest base to the heart of the Jap homeland, that it is 200 miles closer to Tokyo than Okinawa. Your thoughts leap to the day when Iwo, a new, odd but potent name in American history, will be a well placed sentry for world peace and a way station for our aerial commerce. You wonder what the marines beneath the white crosses would say to proposals that Iwo be tossed back into the international grab bag.

LIFT YANKS OUT OF LUZON RAVINE BY HELICOPTER

Illinois Pilot Flies the 'Eggbeater'

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE 112TH CAVALRY IN LUZON MOUNTAINS, June 20—For the first time in the Philippines campaign a helicopter today rescued an injured American soldier and evacuated 12 more from a first aid station in this mountain wilderness.

Lt. Louis Carle, Carthage, Ill., lowered his helicopter to the bed of a river at the bottom of a 1,200 foot ravine to pick up a soldier shot while on patrol. Thirty minutes later Carle parked his plane on the lawn in front of a hospital in Manila. Doctors said the soldier would have died within 3 hours except for early treatment.

Carle then returned to the mountains, set his plane down atop a knife edged ridge, where this dismounted cavalry force has set up a first aid station and, one by one, began evacuating men who have lain here a week and more.

Except for the helicopter, this force can be reached only by a three day hike. Cavalry men, toting everything on their backs, killed 169 Japs when they fought their way here, and every day patrols working within a mile or two of the camp kill at least 40 enemy troops.

Rescue GI in Gorge

Only the day before Lt. Carle flew his helicopter into a gorge to rescue a soldier. A Jap major general was killed within 100 feet of the spot Carle used as a landing field.

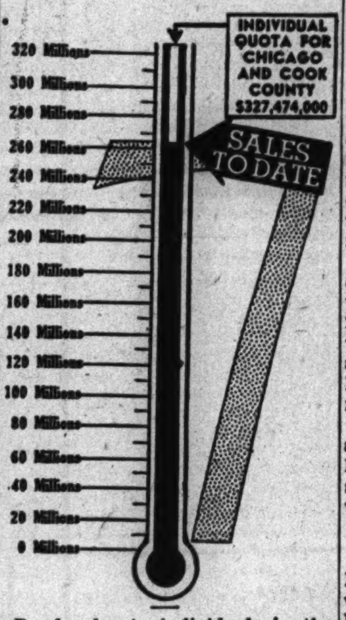
Col. Joe Dawson, commander of the 5th air service area command, to which Carle and his helicopter are attached for ferrying between Nichols field and repair ships in Manila bay, pointed out that to reach the cavalry men Carle had to risk not only storms but also fire from Japs. So far the helicopter has been able to dodge storms and has not drawn Jap fire.

It's a Shaky Job

Carle sets his helicopter down as easily as a mother puts her babe in a cradle. To prepare his landing field, cavalry men merely cut a 15 foot square in the six foot high grass.

To persons accustomed to riding in a plane with wings and a propellor, a trip in a machine that goes not only straight up and down but also backwards and sidewards is strange.

Driving the "eggbeater" is hard work. The control stick shakes like a jackhammer, and the pilot must hold it tightly at all times. Should he relax for even a minute the plane falls out of control. Pilots of regular planes say it's easy to identify a helicopter pilot—he has a permanent case of the shakes.



Bond sales to individuals in the Mighty 7th war loan in Chicago and Cook county yesterday reached $262,281,000, or 80.1 of the city and county quota of $327,474,000, Lawrence Stern, chairman of the campaign, announced.

Auctioning of a prize Southdown lamb featured the noon bond rally yesterday at State and Madison sts. under auspices of State Street council, 6th service command, and the treasury department. The lamb was bought by Ernest Byfield, executive of the Ambassador and Sherman hotels, who paid $20,000 in war bonds for it. The lamb was given to Vaughan General hospital, near Maywood, and will be served to convalescent soldiers.

The noon program tomorrow will permit bond buyers to knock Hirohito off his horse. A white steed, representing Shirayuki, imperial Japanese nag, will be mounted by a dummy resembling the Nipponese emperor. Every bond buyer will have a chance to hit the dummy and score another blow against the Japs. The program will be sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce.

REPORT B-29s BURN OUT JAP INDUSTRIAL CITY

GUAM, June 20 (AP)—Great fires burned out of control for hours, radio Tokyo admitted today, in two of the three secondary industrial cities of Japan given their first fire treatment by Yank B-29s.

Shizuoka and Toyohashi, on Honshu, apparently were hardest hit in the threeway mission which cost two of the Super Forts, but Fukuoka, on Kyushu, also burned for two hours or more.

All rail traffic between Shizuoka and Toyohashi was cut off for many hours after the strike by the B-29s, the enemy radio broadcast. It said accommodations on the restored line were "very small" and must be used only for military purposes.

The 20th air force command in Washington reported results ranged from unobserved to excellent and disclosed two of the planes were missing. Air opposition was described as weak and anti-aircraft fire medium and inaccurate.

Fires Visible 75 Miles

Returning pilots, reporting fires visible 75 miles from the target areas, said they would not have to return to Shizuoka. It was in that munitions center 85 miles southwest of Tokyo that radio Tokyo said fires were not "generally" under control five hours after the raiders struck.

"New tactics" used by the B-29s and damage to the three cities, which range in population from 212,000 to 323,000, were being investigated, said the Domei news agency dispatch broadcast by Tokyo. It quoted an army command announcement.

The "new tactics" were described as the switching of raids from the large cities to the medium and smaller ones, and mine laying in waters adjacent to the mainland.

Another Sweep Reported

It was asserted that 60 Super Forts had dropped mines off the west coast of Honshu and in the Kanmon strait between Honshu and Kyushu.

Tokyo also reported, without confirmation, a sweep by Okinawa based American fighter planes today against Omura, on Kyushu. It said the raiding force consisted of 30 Thunderbolts and Lightnings.

PEACE CHARTER MEANS SHELVING MONROE TENET

Enforcement Hinges on League Approval

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 20—If the United States goes into the prospective world peace league it will surrender the supremacy of the Monroe Doctrine in pursuance of which the American continents have been guarded from permanent encroachment by the powers of the eastern hemisphere for 120 years.

The Monroe Doctrine will be subordinated to the peace preservation machinery of the league's security council. To enforce the Monroe Doctrine it will be necessary for the United States to get the permission of the security council. Such permission could be vetoed by any one of the other four big powers in the security council, even by a power preparing an aggression on the United States or another American country.

Not until an actual attack should occur would the United States be free to act on its own initiative to repel the aggression in accord with the Monroe Doctrine. By that time it might be too late for effective defense.

Hypothetical Case

If, for example, Russia should attempt to extend the Soviet system to an American republic, as it is doing in eastern Europe, it would be necessary for the United States to ask the approval of the security council to take steps to repel the encroachment, in conformity with the Monroe Doctrine forbidding the European powers "to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere." Russia, however, as a permanent member of the security council could veto the authorization requested. Not unless or until Russia should make an armed attack would the United States be allowed to enforce the Monroe Doctrine.

This abridgment of the Monroe Doctrine, cardinal principle of American foreign policy for more than a century, has been brought about by the provision of the peace league's charter for the enforcement of peace thru regional arrangements and agencies. Foreign powers and American internationalists succeeded at last in efforts to nullify or impair the Monroe Doctrine which had persisted for generations.

Challenged in Old League

The most serious challenge to the Monroe Doctrine hitherto was made by Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan when the covenant of the first league of nations was being drafted at Paris in 1919. It was proposed to set aside the Monroe Doctrine entirely and commit the preservation of peace in the western hemisphere to the league exclusively.

Not until they were convinced that the United States never would join the league under such conditions did these eastern hemisphere powers consent to the provision that "nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of . . . regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine, for securing and maintenance of peace."

Even this exemption did not go far enough to satisfy the senate which voted a reservation that the Monroe Doctrine was not to be arbitrated or to be interpreted by any agency but the United States and was wholly outside the jurisdiction of the league. This was one of the reservations which President Wilson's refusal to accept kept the United States out of the first league.

Foes Now Stronger

This time the foes of the Monroe Doctrine were stronger. It had no friends at Dumbarton Oaks where the original provision for regional arrangements was written by Great Britain, Russia, China, and the Roosevelt administration internationalists. It provided that "no enforcement action should be taken under such regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the security council." That clearly put the Monroe Doctrine in leading strings.

Fearing and resenting the Monroe Doctrine the British have always worked to undermine it, while claiming credit for its origin and for its defense. George Canning, British foreign minister in 1823, is generally credited with suggesting to American Minister Richard Rush an Anglo-American declaration against intervention by the holy alliance in the western hemisphere.

Adams' Declaration

The fact is that State Secretary John Quincy Adams before that had moved to halt Russian claims to the American Pacific coast with the declaration that "the American continents are not to be considered any longer as a field of colonization by European powers," phraseology that President Monroe subsequently incorporated in his Monroe Doctrine message to congress.

Canning was angling for a joint declaration that would operate to check French and Spanish competition with British trade in Latin America and commit the United States not to annex Cuba. When Adams took the ball away from Canning by causing Monroe to make an independent American declaration directed at Britain as much as the holy alliance Canning became an inveterate foe of the Monroe Doctrine the remainder of his life.

Flouted By British

The British also inspired the dictum that but for the British fleet the United States never would have been able to enforce the Monroe Doctrine. The most serious invasion of the Monroe Doctrine, however, not only was not prevented by the British fleet, but was abetted by the British government. This was the attempt of Napoleon III. to establish Austrian Archduke Maximilian as emperor of Mexico when the United States was embroiled in civil war. Not till the Civil war ended was the United States able to chase the French out of Mexico.

Of the persistent British flouting of the Monroe Doctrine during negligent or supine American administrations, British Honduras and the Falkland Islands, the only American territories gained by a European power since the promulgation of the Monroe Doctrine, bear testimony.

Plotted to Aid Spain

Britain challenged the Monroe Doctrine in the Venezuela boundary dispute in the course of which State Secretary Olney informed British Prime Minister Salisbury that "the United States is practically sovereign on this continent and its fiat is law upon the subjects to which it confines its interposition." Britain backed down and accepted arbitration but not till Kaiser Wilhelm's telegram to Oom Paul Kruger disclosed perils nearer home in which America's friendship would come in handy.

Within a few years afterward, however, the British, notably British Ambassador Pauncefote to the United States, were secretly plotting to support Spain against America's undertaking to liberate Cuba from Spanish persecution. The plotting ceased only when Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain, who had married an American and was closely in touch with American opinion, convinced Britain that it would be a mistake to flout America on this issue.

It is only fair to say that at the beginning of the San Francisco conference the Monroe Doctrine was no more out of favor with the British, French and Russians than it was with the overwhelmingly internationalist American delegation. The doctrine was headed for complete oblivion under the Dumbarton Oaks formula for regional peace enforcement when the Latin American countries intervened in behalf of the Pan-American security system embracing the Monroe Doctrine and the act of Chapultepec.

Latin American Surprise

The Latin Americans, by previous agreements, had already been taken into partnership with the United States in enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine. Then at the inter-American conference at Mexico City last February they sprang a surprise that quite upset our internationally minded state department. The surprise was an American mutual defense pact against non-American aggression, the province of the Monroe Doctrine, and against inter-American aggression.

Tho the internationalists were taken aback by this plan of regional self-sufficiency without benefit of Dumbarton Oaks Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] and Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] quickly devised a proviso that any regional action should "be consistent" with the world peace organization.

The Latin American delegations at San Francisco, with 20 votes, were strong enough to get a modification of the Dumbarton Oaks provision which would have subordinated the Monroe Doctrine and the act of Chapultepec to the security council completely. Under the modified provision the Monroe Doctrine or the act of Chapultepec cannot be invoked without the authorization of the security council except in the case of an armed attack. In that event the American nations could defend themselves until the security council "has taken the measures necessary to maintain international peace and security."

This modified provision, which mentioned the act of Chapultepec, was patently applicable to the western hemisphere only. British Foreign Minister Eden demanded the same self-defense exemption from security council authority for the benefit of British territories all over the world. So the provision was generalized.

San Francisco, Cal., June 20—The Yalta veto formula giving the United States, Russia, Great Britain, China, and France the unrestricted veto power they demanded as a condition to get Russia into the international security organization was approved unwillingly today by the smaller countries after they warned at a public commission meeting that if the veto is exercised without restraint it will wreck the new league.

Spokesmen for Australia, Colombia, India, Peru, the Netherlands, New Zealand, and other delegations represented at the conference here declared the veto is an evil to which they are overwhelmingly opposed but that they have been forced by the big powers to swallow it. They were answered by only one speaker for a big power, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.] of the American delegation.

Indefensible, Says Evatt

"The Yalta formula was originally proposed by our lamented President Roosevelt," Connally said. "The American delegation redeemed his pledge. We believe that the security council, when united, can preserve peace. We fear that if it's not united, it cannot preserve peace. Therefore we voted for those measures that would contribute to the unity of the permanent members."

Foreign Minister Evatt of Australia, who had led the fight against the veto, was the first to speak against it today. He called the position of the five big powers "indefensible."

"Any great power not a party to a dispute can block action by the council to conciliate disputants, even tho both parties to a dispute and the 10 other members of the council desire the council to act," he said. "This is indefensible. It should be the duty of the council to conciliate disputes. The veto should not apply to peaceful settlement, or it will cause serious consequences."

Fear Ruthless Use

Evatt and other speakers betrayed an apparent fear that the big powers can wield the veto ruthlessly. Alexander Loudon, ambassador to the United States from the Netherlands, said it was "to be regretted" that the delegations had to give the veto to the big powers. "The most we could do," he said, "was refrain from voting."

Foreign Minister Camargo of Colombia, which, with Cuba, alone voted against the veto in committee while 15 nations abstained, said the obligatory rule of unanimity among the Big Five may make it impossible for the security council to function effectively.

"The veto would have been defeated overwhelmingly in committee," said Peter Fraser, prime minister of New Zealand, in an impassioned speech, "if it had been voted upon on its merit without any inhibitions or indications of disastrous consequences." He also lashed at the Big Five power to veto future amendments to the security charter.

Not Like U. S. Charter

"The charter here has been compared by some to the Constitution of the United States," he said, "but the analogy falls by the wayside and is better left there. The men who wrote the American Constitution provided for amendments by two-thirds vote of the states; we require unanimity of the Big Five."

Ramaswami Mudaliar of India said his delegation had voted in committee for the veto "only with the understanding that failure would imperil the charter, and in the hope that another committee would provide for amendments without the veto. Our hope was not realized."

Speeches resounded in the opera house in English, French, Spanish, and Arabic thruout the morning and afternoon, and at times the rules of parliamentary order were strained. Hector David Castro of El Salvador, committee rapporteur, was asked to read a report, but he broke into a warm discussion of El Salvador's opinion of the veto, while Wilhelm M. Morgenstierne of Norway, commission president, nervously hesitated to call him to order.

Syria Dispute Brought Up

The use to which France could have put the veto power to prevent interference in the shooting in Syria and Lebanon recently was referred to H. E. Abdel Hamid Pasha Badawi, foreign minister of Egypt, and a French delegate quickly called for a rule of order. Morgenstierne appealed to both men to drop the dispute "in order to prevent an undue prolongation of the conference." But Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, and Syria pointedly abstained from approving the charter section naming France a member of the security council.

Wonder and amusement was given to the half filled galleries by the performance of a gifted interpreter, Andre Kaminker of France, bald, short, and round, who listened to long English speeches without taking notes, then hopped to his feet and repeated them in French. At least the first and last sentences were word for word. He was applauded and called back for bows.

Hawaii Rips Charter Plank for U.S. Report on Territories

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 20—A portion of the San Francisco trusteeship agreement making the United States accountable to the proposed new league of nations for conditions in its own territories, such as Hawaii, was denounced today by Joseph R. Farrington, Hawaiian delegate in congress.

Farrington declared in an interview that Hawaii has virtually the same status as each of the nation's 48 states. He said he "strongly objects" to the international agreement placing the territory in a "colonial" status in the world peace league.

Under the proposed trusteeship system, agreed to by the delegates at San Francisco Monday, the United States would have to submit reports to the secretary general of world league on conditions in Hawaii, Alaska, the Virgin Islands, and similar territories.

Not Necessary on India

These reports would include health, mortality, literacy, penal servitude, and other matters relating to the well being of the territorial inhabitants. Russia would not have to report on Lithuania, nor Great Britain on India, however, because such territories are classed as "autonomous units."

"This agreement apparently implies," said Farrington, "that Hawaii is to be placed in the category of a possession or colony. If it does, we should proceed very cautiously in approving the proposed world organization at all.

"Hawaii is as much an integral part of the United States as New York City, or Chicago, or Illinois. The league might just as logically ask for reports on the morals in Washington, D. C., or within the state department.

Integral Part of U. S.

"I don't like the implication that Hawaii holds an inferior status. It should make any reports that are to be made to the United States government, and our government should not be required to submit a special accounting to a world organization on a territory that is an integral part of the nation."

No comment on the plan was available from the two congressional delegates of other territories affected by the proposal. E. L. Bartlett, the Alaskan delegate, was ill, and Jesus T. Pinero, Puerto Rican resident commissioner, was out of the city.

SEN. O'MAHONEY SLATED TO GET ICKES' POSITION

New Deal's Donald Duck Faces Ouster Soon

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 20—Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] is slated to succeed Harold Leclair Ickes as secretary of the interior, THE TRIBUNE learned tonight.

Sen. O'Mahoney

The independent Wyoming Democrat, who on occasion dared to stand up for his convictions against the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt, will be nominated within a few weeks.

His appointment will end the record cabinet career of 12 years set by Ickes, who has styled himself a curmudgeon, but is better known as the Donald Duck of the New Deal.

Four Previous Cabinet Shifts

The O'Mahoney appointment will make the fifth cabinet change by President Truman since the death of his predecessor last April 12. Other shifts have involved the post office, justice, agriculture and labor departments.

At least one other cabinet change is impending. In the state department, Edward R. Stettinius is slated to be succeeded as secretary, probably by James F. Byrnes, former senator, former justice of the Supreme court and former war mobilization director. Supreme Court Justice Jackson also is considered a possibility for the post.

The state department shift is expected to be delayed until after the San Francisco conference and the impending meeting of the Big Three—Truman, Stalin, and Churchill—near Berlin in July. Both Stettinius and Byrnes are to attend this meeting. Jackson will be in Europe at that time as chief counsel for the United States in the prosecution of axis war criminals.

Morgenthau to Hold On

An early change has been expected in the treasury department, but it is now believed Secretary Morgenthau will not be replaced until after the New York mayoralty election. This contest is considered of high national political importance.

Still another cabinet change is expected in the war department, where aged Henry L. Stimson, a nominal Republican, has held the secretaryship since 1940. It is expected that this post will go to Federal Judge Sherman W. Minton, former senate colleague of President Truman.

The Indiana jurist was recently a White House visitor. It has been whispered in official circles that he asked for the war post and was given favorable consideration.

Cabinet Exodus June 30

The four cabinet changes already announced become effective at the close of the fiscal year on June 30. Postmaster General Walker will be succeeded by Democratic Chairman Hannegan; Atty. General Biddle by his first assistant, Tom Clark; Labor Secretary Perkins by Federal Judge Schwellenbach, and Agriculture Secretary Wickard by Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.].

Wickard hopes to remain in the administration as rural electrification administrator. His appointment to this post is pending in the senate. When and if Stettinius leaves the state department, it is believed that he will make his exit as ambassador to Great Britain, taking over the post of John G. Winant, former Republican governor of New Hampshire, who joined the New Deal.

The impending O'Mahoney appointment is expected to receive wide acclaim thruout the country. As a westerner O'Mahoney is considered to have a greater knowledge of the province of the interior department—development and conservation of the resources of the United States and its territories—than any one in Washington.

Not a Rubber Stamp

He is also highly regarded as a man of fairness, altho he is a vigorous battler for his convictions. In the senate he was no rubber stamp. He recently led the fight against the so-called slave bill and was largely responsible for defeat of that administration manpower program. He frequently criticized New Deal expenditures.

Altho he is now a confirmed westerner, O'Mahoney was born of poor parents in Boston and went west not to seek opportunity but to aid a sick brother in his quest for health. He worked as a newspaperman in Boulder, Colo., and later went to Cheyenne, Wyo., where he got a job as city editor of the Cheyenne State Leader, owned by John B. Kendrick, then governor of Wyoming.

When Kendrick was elected to the senate, O'Mahoney came to Washington as his secretary. In 1933 he became first assistant postmaster general under James A. Farley. On the death of Sen. Kendrick late in 1933, he was named to succeed his former boss. He was elected to fill Kendrick's vacancy in 1934 and reelected to his senate seat in 1940.

O'Mahoney is 60 years old. He is married, but has no children. He attended Columbia university and the Georgetown law school.

SENTENCE NAZI YOUTH TO DEATH; FIRED ON YANKS

WITH THE 83D DIVISION IN GERMANY [By Mail]—Swift justice was meted out to Siegfried Benz, fanatical 17 year old storm trooper, who was captured May 23 after he had fired on and thrown grenades at three men from the 280th field artillery battalion. He was tried by court martial and given the death sentence.

It was the first case of its type to be tried in the Thunderbolt division area and possibly the first one in the European theater.

During the four hour trial the youth sat expressionless while Lt. Royden B. Bowen, Houston, Tex., and Corp. William B. Hunter, Fresno, Cal., two of the three men who captured him, gave the testimony which condemned him.

50c AN HOUR PAY MINIMUM ASKED BY DAVIS

Would Range Higher in Some Industries

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—William H. Davis today proposed a general wage minimum of 50 cents hourly, with the pay floor ranging up to 65 cents in textiles and other industries needing production incentives.

Davis, director of the office of economic stabilization, suggested that the federal fair labor standards act, which now provides a 40 cent hourly minimum wage, be amended to bring workers back into industries having man power problems and to provide a foundation for a reconversion stabilization program.

Joins in Labor Conference

His suggestion was made informally at a conference of six government agencies with AFL and CIO textile unionists.

Both unions declared that low wages are the major obstacle to needed production increases.

At a joint news conference following the closed session, the AFL United Textile Workers of America representative, International President Anthony Valente, recommended a 75 cent hourly minimum for textile workers, compared with the present 55 cent minimum.

The CIO reiterated its request for a 65 cent floor and a 10 cent general hourly increase.

'Key Man Power Problem'

Davis participated in the meeting, but not in the news conference.

His spokesman, OES general counsel Thomas Emerson, said Davis had concurred with the unionists in the view that perhaps "the key problem is the low wage structure of the industry in relation to that of other industries which compete with it for man power."

TRUMAN PUTS OFF TRIP TO PARLEY UNTIL MONDAY

Olympia, Wash., June 20 (AP)—President Truman took steps tonight to prolong his Pacific northwest vacation as an announcement came from San Francisco that the allied nations conference would adjourn Tuesday. Mr. Truman had hoped to make his address to the closing session there Saturday.

Instead of flying to San Francisco Friday, as he had planned, the President now will make the flight Monday. The delay also made it necessary to cancel his date to confer next Monday at the White House with Gov. Dewey of New York.

Meanwhile the President took time out from his vacation, which may include a fishing trip tomorrow, to present the congressional medal of honor to a Washington state hero, and schedule a press conference for tomorrow morning.

His press secretary, Charles G. Ross, also disclosed that Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, the President's host here, will accompany him when he here, will accompany him to San Francisco.

The medal of honor was presented at a ceremony on the capitol steps to Sgt. John D. Hawk, 21, of Bremerton, four times wounded soldier of Gen. Patton's 3d army.

This is the medal Mr. Truman repeatedly has said he would rather have than be President.

Gets Up at 5:30 a. m.

After the ceremony, the President received state officials at a reception with Gov. Wallgren.

The President got up at 5:30 a. m., at the executive mansion and routed Gov. Wallgren out of bed. He borrowed a sports shirt from the governor, put on his own tweed and leather sports jacket, and went for a stroll with the governor around the mansion and capitol grounds before breakfast.

In obvious good health and good humor, the President smilingly told White House reporters who accompanied him:

"It was the best walk I have had since entering the White House."

May Talk of Big Three

His press conference tomorrow—his first outside of the White House—was arranged primarily to permit news and radio men from this area to interview him, but there was the possibility he may have further information on the "Big Three" meeting at Berlin in mid-July.

A delay until next week in the closing of the conference will mean that the president will fly directly to Jackson county, Mo., from San Francisco, for homecoming celebrations at Independence, June 27, and at Kansas City the next day.

From Kansas City he then would fly to Washington with the peace charter, and submit it immediately to the senate for its ratification.

With time for his departure for Berlin growing shorter, he likely will be forced to call off tentative plans to address the governor's conference in Michigan July 3.

CREW SUPPLYING HIDDEN VALLEY AVERTS MISHAP

Near Forced Landing on Mercy Flight

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea, June 19 [Delayed]—An accident today came near to bringing death to two crewmen and causing the forced landing of a supply plane making a cargo drop to the three survivors of a crash in the mysterious hidden valley, 130 miles southwest of Hollandia.

The plane was making a run over the base camp in the valley where the trio and their paratrooper escort will be removed by glider when Sgt. Peter Dobransky, Johnson City, N. Y., the crew chief, and Sgt. James Kirchanski, Detroit, Mich., who has supervised all cargo drops, began to remove the rear door of the plane. When it was halfway off the second section of the double door was whipped away by the slipstream and hurled against the plane's tail section.

Save One Another

Sgt. Kirchanski, a former paratrooper whose last jump was at Corregidor, and Sgt. Dobransky clawed at the aluminum door frame and managed to keep each other from falling out of the plane. It was decided the transport was airworthy and it was flown back to Hollandia.

Among the passengers was WAC Thelma Decker, Vancouver, Wash., a counsin of Tech. Sgt. Kenneth Decker, Kelso, Wash., one of the three who survived the May 13 valley crash that brought death to 21 airmen and WACs. Due to airsickness she was not able to communicate with Sgt. Decker.

Sickness Spoils Contact

Meanwhile, Capt. Cecil Walters, Portland, Ore., the paratrooper chief, said that the 1,200 foot glider strip was in readiness, but the survivors, who include Lt. Joseph McCollum, Trenton, Mo., and WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, Owego, N. Y., apparently were enjoying the sights of the lost valley too much to be impatient for rescue.

Plans for glider "snatch" practice at nearby Wakde Island were canceled today, but Col. Ray. T. Elsmore, Menlo Park, Cal., in charge of the rescue operations, said that a glider might be landed in the valley tomorrow and some of the group taken out the following day. The glider pilots—Capt. George R. Allen, Salem, Ore., and Lt. Henry E. Palmer, Baton Rouge, La., said that they were ready.

FORT SHERIDAN DISCHARGES 450 GIs EACH DAY

An average of 450 men a day have been discharged since June 1 under the point system at the Fort Sheridan separation center, Brig. Gen. John T. Pierce, commanding general, disclosed last night. Peak daily loads have been as high as 680, he said. The bulk of men discharged have come directly from the fighting areas, Gen. Pierce said, and it is the policy to give discharge preference to such men. Some of the men discharged had been fighting on Okinawa only three weeks earlier, he said.

HITLER PLANNED BULGE DRIVE TO DISCOURAGE U.S.

Thought It Would Get Canada Out of War

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 20 — Hitler's last great offensive gamble, the Ardennes bulge push, was a desperate effort to eliminate Canada from the war and discourage the United States from pressing thru to unconditional surrender, American officers learned today.

At least this is what the fuehrer told his army corps and divisional commanders Dec. 12 at his headquarters near Ziegenberg. When the attack petered out Hitler lost all hope.

Leading officers were summoned to Ziegenberg castle. The complete mistrust in which they were held by Hitler and Himmler was evinced by the fact that each high officer was ordered to assemble at the castle without staff members or aides. So wary was Hitler of their sympathy that all generals were ordered to leave their pistols and briefcases in the cloakroom.

Tries to Fool Them

In a pouring rain, they were herded into a bus. This was driven on a circular course for about half an hour in an effort to fool the generals into the belief the fuehrer's headquarters were further away than actuality. When the bus stopped the generals emerged between two lines of armed guards and were led into a heavily protected bunker. The room within was also lined with guards and the generals were seated before these watchful trusties.

After they were seated the fuehrer, Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, Col. Gen. Albert Jodl, and two others entered. Hitler appeared to the generals aged and broken. He put on a pair of reading spectacles. His hands shook.

He then read a two hour harangue, the first half of which contained an involved history of the Nazi party and of Hitler's own gifts to Germany. Every general had heard all this before but they dared not even fidget or mop their brows.

"Will Bag Montgomery"

The second half of the harangue was devoted to plans for the Ardennes offensive. Hitler informed his generals he had gathered together everything available for this desperate effort, and that if it did not succeed, the war was lost.

He informed the generals that Gen. Eccard von Manteuffel had been ordered to take Antwerp; that Lt. Gen. Seep Dietrich would capture Liege. This, explained the fuehrer, would neatly bag Montgomery's 21st army group.

Hitler told his commanders the political consequences would be that Canada would withdraw from the war and that the United States would be so discouraged as to be a negligible factor thereafter. The commanders were assured 3,000 German fighter planes would clear the air for the army.

Generals Lack Enthusiasm

Hitler then withdrew. The generals joined in a party celebrating Von Rundstedt's 70th birthday. Gen. Walther Von Model made a long speech. But the generals could not muster much enthusiasm.

Lt. Gen. Fritz Bayerlein, who commander the panzer force ordered to take Bastogne, returned to his unit via Wurzburg in order to have an hour with his family. He suspected it might be his last such hour. He was right. He surrendered in the Ruhr pocket.

Eight days later Manteuffel screamed at Bayerlein that Dietrich already was in Liege and that 200 allied planes had been shot down—which was not true. Next day Bayerlein sent an officer thru the lines at Bastogne demanding surrender.

The reply to that demand every one knows.

[Dispatches from Wiesbaden, Germany, quoted Gen. Bayerlein as telling allied officers that they could have won the war sooner if they had increased their tactical air operations after the Normandy breakthru.]

THE QUESTION

Do you like to see a man wearing a mustache?

WHERE ASKED

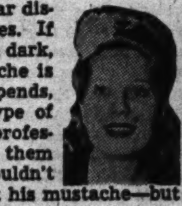
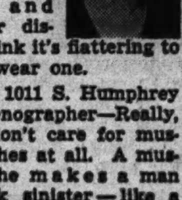
THE ANSWERS

Gerda Ullrich, 4120 N. Troy st., typist—It's my opinion that a man looks much neater without a mustache. Whether he looks neater or not, I still don't care for a mustache. I think it's a sign of vanity. A man obviously must trim a mustache and spends a lot of time at a mirror—more than the man who just shaves.

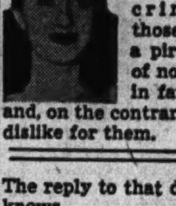


Gertrude Welat, 3138 Lowe av., clerk—It depends upon the man. I have no particular dislike for mustaches. If a man is tall and dark, I think a mustache is becoming. It depends, too, upon the type of work he does—professional men wear them well. Gable wouldn't be Gable without his mustache—but I'd take him either way!

Marie Kalsch, 611 S. Ardmore av., Villa Park, clerk—Mostly, no; I don't care for mustaches. I never did care for them because I just don't think they improve any one's appearance. However, a man's appearance doesn't affect my like or dislike for him, so it's really immaterial to me whether he has a mustache or not.



Geraldine St. Pierre, 556 E. 87th pl., typist—I like a man with a mustache because I think it makes him look distinguished, intellectual and more like a man of the world. There's a man in our office who shaved off his mustache today and he looks rather disappointing. I think it's flattering to a man who can wear one.



Anne Swikart, 1011 S. Humphrey av., Oak Park, stenographer—Really, I don't care for mustaches at all. A mustache makes a man look sinister—like a criminal in one of those old time plays, or a pirate. I can think of nothing at all to say in favor of mustaches, and, on the contrary, I have a strong dislike for them.

QUISLING TAKEN TO VIEW BODIES OF NAZI VICTIMS

OSLO, Norway, June 20 (AP)—Norway's No. 1 war criminal, Vidkun Quisling, today was taken from his jail cell where he awaits a traitor's trial and was forced to look upon the mutilated bodies of 90 fellow countrymen found in mass graves in Trandum "death" forest. Compeled to accompany Quisling were a group of his followers accused of carrying out atrocity slayings.

The former dictator looked upon the graves silent and hard-eyed. But his face paled when he saw some officials of his puppet government digging up additional bodies. The diggers, under guard of police and home front troops, located eight more mass graves.

GUARD DECLARES HE SAW BURNING BODY OF HITLER

servants at the reichschancellery that Hitler had married. Eventually I asked one of the officers directly and he said it was true.

"In the last days of Berlin's siege we guards were allowed to pass thru Hitler's bunker for greater safety. Several times I saw Hitler sitting on a long wicker chair, his left hand tapping his knee nervously. I can't say he looked particularly ill. He drank only mineral water."

Karnau surrendered to Canadian troops at Wilhemshaven on May 25. Capt. K. W. E. Leslie of London, who questioned him, said, "In ordinary circumstances I would describe Karnau as telling the truth. But it is not my job to prove it's true." Leslie said Karnau once asserted definitely that Hitler was poisoned and his body was buried, but later admitted that was hearsay.

Why Karnau's story was not released within a few days after his surrender was not explained at the press conference at headquarters. Karnau asserted he escaped from Berlin under orders on May 2 and bluffed his way thru Russian lines as "a liberated Dutch slave worker." He speaks a dialect akin to Dutch.

"Escape Plane" Seized

TRAVENMUENDE, Germany, June 16 [Delayed]—(AP)—A huge four engined plane which carried 30,000 gallons of gasoline has been found near Travemuende. German ground crews said they had orders in the last weeks of the war to keep it ready to carry Hitler nonstop to Japan. The plane landed near the Travemuende seacoast last April just as R. A. F. planes flew in. Several holes were shot in the craft and the pilot overshot the landing strip. The plane pitched over, tearing off a wing tip. The war ended before it could be repaired.

INDIA CONGRESS LEADERS HAILED GAILY IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, India, June 20 (AP)—Leaders of the All-India Congress party, including Mohandas K. Gandhi and Jawahralal Nehru, were given joyous receptions by their Hindu followers today as they arrived for a conference preceding the British summoned meeting at Simla June 25 to consider placing most government functions in Indian hands.

Hundreds of thousands of persons, standing drenched in a steady rain, gave thunderous ovations to the leaders who will help decide the political future for India's 400,000,000 population. Nehru expressed confidence in the successful outcome of the Simla meeting.

He repeated the view stated by Gandhi and other party leaders that any effort to limit representation of the Congress party to caste Hindus was wholly unacceptable as a formula for constituting an interim central government, but added that he did not believe this issue would defeat the main purpose of the Simla conference, which is, to arrange some plan for a more nearly representative government.

He said that the Congress party aims to represent all castes and creeds and that its president, Maulana Kalam Azad is a Moslem and that the congress includes many Moslems who cannot adhere to the Moslem league headed by Mohamed Ali Jinnah.

DESCRIBE JAP SUICIDE ATTACK ON U. S. CRUISER

specially built cradle in a dry dock in a record switch which saw a capital ship removed to make room for the Nashville in 26 hours, compared with the usual time of 60 hours required to undock one ship and dock another.

Capt. Charles E. Coney, Roanoke, Va., skipper of the Nashville, said "Too much cannot be said for the initiative and bravery" of the fire-fighting crews which got the flames under control after the attack. "They walked right into the fire without a moment's hesitation.

Between 50 and 60 of the Nashville's personnel have been recommended for citations for heroism.

EYE WITNESS STORY

BY MURLIN SPENCER

ABOARD ADM. STRUBLE'S FLAGSHIP, Dec. 13 [Delayed]—(AP)—A shattering explosion staggers the cruiser Nashville as tho it had been hit with a giant hammer and flames leap skyward trailing a dense cloud of black smoke. For a second there is complete silence and then the first cries of the wounded break the stillness. That is what it is like when a great ship is hit.

Out of the smoke and flame a man comes running, shock and terror showing in his eyes. A sailor grabs him, throws him to the deck and beats the flames from his shirt and dungarees. The terror subsides and the man lies quiet.

There is an awful moment when every one asks himself, "Is she going to sink?" and then you forget that because there is work to be done.

The explosion amidships was the first warning I had that a Japanese plane was within miles of the Nashville and the Mindoro-bound convoy of which she was a part. I had been dozing under a gun turret in the bright sun and the war seemed far away.

A Suicide Crash!

Out of nowhere comes a black Japanese bomber but there are men who see him streaking in low. Even before a shot can be fired he swerves sharply and crashes into the number one stack just aft of the bridge. It is a suicide crash.

The pilot fires no shot, makes no attempt to release his bombs, just heads for the ship like a human projectile. He carries bombs. They explode among the men who escape the crash. The plane bursts into flames at the impact.

Sailors race by to grab hose piled neatly on deck and haul it back toward the bridge. In an incredibly short time they thread their way up ladders to points of vantage from which to fight the fire.

As they play water on the flames there comes a series of smaller explosions and you know the fire has touched off the ammunition stacked by the anti-aircraft guns. Tracer shells scream crazily in every direction but the firemen stand their ground.

KING GREETS RUSSIANS

LONDON, June 20 [AP]—King George VI. told delegates of the Russian Orthodox church today that "churches have a great contribution to make" in establishing a righteous peace. He expressed hope that Great Britain and Russia would remain comrades in peace as in war.

LEOPOLD STIRS STRIFE, BELGIAN REDS CHARGE

Strike Threatened in the Fight Against Change

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 20 — The Communist official newspaper, Red Flag, today editorially accused Leopold III. of fomenting civil war in Belgium. The bitter words followed last night's announcement that the king, in Salzburg, Austria, since his liberation as a Nazi prisoner of war, would attempt to form a new cabinet before trying to resume the throne over the opposition of the incumbent ministers.

A general strike is threatened by left wingers against any such attempt to change governments.

The conduct of the Belgian Communists is seen here as a possible aspect of the friction between the expanding powers of Russia and the dwindling influence of Great Britain in Europe.

Conform to Stalin

The supreme headquarters mission here is commanded by an Englishman, G. W. E. J. Erskine, and the lowlands border the British zone of occupation in Germany. Altho the Internationale was declared dissolved when Russia became an ally, the Belgian Reds, like those of other countries, still conform to Stalin policies.

The soviet, like Britain and America, is taking no part in the internal controversy over who shall sit in Belgium's throne. SHAEF is furnishing transportation for couriers between the exiled king and Belgium, but it has announced that transport would be furnished to Leopold only to the Belgian border. Leopold lacks gasoline coupons.

The next few days are expected to determine whether Leopold will yield to the decision of the present cabinet that he could not form a government to support him. The strong Catholic party is for him, but he is opposed vigorously by the Communist minority and a majority of Socialist and Liberal party leaders.

Friends of Leopold predict he will not give up the throne without further effort. He is described by them as a man of strong character and determination.

British Interests Told

Britain's obvious interest is in preserving law and order in Europe. Perhaps not so obvious is its interest in preserving world regard for royalty as such. The balance of power has been juggled for generations thru intermarriage and the social positions of crowns.

Leopold's mother, Queen Elizabeth, is reported to have been active in her elder son's behalf in London.

The Communists are in the peculiar position of supporting a monarchy. While screaming a warning of violence if Leopold returns, they are supporting the administration of his younger brother, Charles, who has been named regent pending the majority of Leopold's 15 year old son in 1948.

The relative strength of the four parties is indicated in their present numerical strength in parliament, as follows: Communists, 9; Socialists, 62; Liberals, 32, and Catholics, 71.

Head of Vichy Police Condemned to Death

PARIS, June 20 [Reuters]—Andre Baillet, head of the Vichy political police department, was today condemned to death. Baillett, one of the heads of Laval's Gestapo, was charged in Paris criminal court with being responsible for the betrayal and murder of the French ministers George Mandel and Jean Zay. He was also accused of having led the operations against the patriot rising in Haute Savoie and the deportation of 4,000 French patriots to Germany.

Divide Italian Area

SLAV ACCORD SIGNED; ALLIES RULE TRIESTE

Venezia Guilia Line Marks Division

TRIESTE, June 20 (AP)—Anglo-American and Yugoslav authorities signed an agreement today partitioning the Venezia Giulia area of pre-war northeastern Italy, and leaving the disputed city of Trieste entirely in British and American hands.

The agreement set up a so-called blue line for administrative purposes.

[Anglo-American troops will occupy the area west of the line and Yugoslav troops the eastern area, an announcement in Rome said, adding "The whole area of Venezia Giulia will be held in trust by the respective countries pending final settlement at the peace conference."]

Runs from Old Border

The blue line runs from the old Austrian border on the north to points about four miles south of Trieste, and the city of Gorizia will be allied administered.

The exact line extends northward from Punta Grossa, a prominent headland on the Gulf of Muggia south of Trieste, enclosing a 10 mile wide belt thru Erpella, Cosia, San Danil, and a point just east of Rifenbergo. It then runs to Montespino, and eastward to Gorizia, St. Lucia, Caporetto, Plezzo, and Mangari, to Ratece on the Italian-Austrian-Yugoslav border. It roughly follows the Isono river.

The allied occupation forces will include 2,000 Yugoslav troops who will not participate in the occupation of Trieste or Gorizia and who will be under allied headquarters.

The Yugoslavs will be concentrated in an area 12 miles northwest of Trieste near Montfalcone.

Occupy Important Port

The agreement also provides that British and American forces occupy the important port of Pola on the southern tip of the Istrian peninsula about 100 road miles south of Trieste.

The signatories were Lt. Gen. W. D. Morgan, chief of staff to Field Marshal Alexander, for the allies, and Lt. Gen. Jovanovic, chief of staff to Marshal Tito.

A senior officer of the British 13th army, who gave a picture of the racial, ideological, and economic difficulties in the region, said the occupation was "likely to cause the allied military government considerable embarrassment."

MICHIGAN AV. STORE WINDOW LOOTED

Responding to a burglar alarm, police yesterday found thieves had cut an eight inch hole in a window of Blums-Vogue, 630 S. Michigan av., and had stolen a quantity of costume jewelry.

MORE SOLDIERS CALLED TO END TRUCKING TIEUP

With trucking operations still far below normal in Chicago yesterday, the fifth day of the truck drivers' strike, the army announced that, at the request of the office of defense transportation, it is sending 10,000 additional soldiers into the city.

These will increase to 14,200 the number of army personnel engaged in attempting to restore normal trucking service. The number is estimated to be in excess of the number of strikers.

Col. Thomas W. DeMint of the 6th service command said 3,000 troops will arrive by today by air, truck, and train, from all parts of the country.

Pacific Veterans Arrive

A battalion of the 134th field artillery, half of whom spent 28 months in the South Pacific, moved into a warehouse at 320 N. La Salle st. last night. The battalion, in command of Lt. Col. Rex K. Miller, was en route from Fort Sill, Okla., to Fort Bragg, N. C., when diverted to Chicago.

Ellis T. Longenecker, named by the ODT to operate the truck lines under government seizure, said that essential commodities will be moving normally by Monday. He said more trucks were operating yesterday than the day before, but had no exact figures.

More confusion developed in connection with deliveries to the R. R. Donnelley and Sons company printing plant at 350 E. Cermak rd., where members of the pressmen's union and four other AFL unions are on strike.

The war labor board Tuesday ruled that the strike at Donnelley's is against the unions' no strike pledge, and summarily ordered the men back to work.

Soldiers to Halt Deliveries

Longenecker, after receiving a protest from Joseph Jacobs, attorney for the pressmen's union, that soldier drivers were ignoring the pressmen's picket line and making deliveries to the plant ordered the practice stopped.

"We certainly will protest such action," said Herbert P. Zimmerman, vice president in charge of operation of Donnelley's. "The WLB took over our dispute on its own motion because it felt that the strike at our plant interfered with the war effort. We are entitled to the same protection as others."

In addition to soldiers driving and guarding trucks, Chicago police furnished more than 50 convoys during the day. Some truck operators complained that fewer army drivers were supplied to them.

Three Are Arrested

Thomas Donohue, 45, of 5477 Dorchester av., and Harold Hickey, 30, of 612 W. 47th st., listed as strike sympathizers, were arrested on charges of causing a 2,000 pound roll of paper to fall from a truck.

Louis G. Nering, 50, of 1321 N. Maplewood av., an independent union member, was arrested last night after allegedly trying to intimidate a working driver near 2600 North av. Sgt. Thomas Doyle of the North av. station pursued him to 1646 N. California av. Doyle said Nering struck him and again ran. Doyle cornered Nering near-by, however, and he was ordered held for the police labor detail.

CANADA TO TRAIN PACIFIC UNIT AT KENTUCKY CAMP

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—A Canadian volunteer force destined for the Pacific war will arrive at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., early in September for training, Maj. Gen. B. M. Hoffmeister said today.

The 38 year old officer, commander of the 5th Canadian armored division and veteran of more than four years of fighting in Europe, will lead the Canadians against the Japanese.

Hoffmeister told a news conference at the war department that approximately 28,000 Canadian veterans in Europe already have volunteered for Pacific service and that the number is increasing daily. Reports from Canada have set the size of the group at approximately 30,000.

To Get United States Food

The force will wear Canadian uniforms but will use American equipment and receive their food supplies from United States sources. All the equipment and food will be paid for by Canada, Hoffmeister said.

The general declined to estimate when the Canadian force would be ready to go to the Pacific but said all of the personnel have had experience in Europe and should complete their training much quicker than would raw recruits.

The force, which has been designated the 6th Canadian division, will assemble in Canada at various points and then move to Breckinridge. The men forming the unit are now returning from Europe and will be given a 30 day leave before going to the assembly points in Canada.

The 6th division, while designated as an infantry outfit, will have some armor, probably American medium tanks. Replacements will be supplied by Canada and trained both in Canada and in the United States, Hoffmeister said.

Observers at Okinawa

OAHU, T. H., June 20 (AP)—A limited number of Canadian veterans from Europe are studying American jungle fighting and will return to Canada to instruct Pacific-bound dominion troops.

After concluding an intensive course at the combat training center here, the Canadians will go on to Okinawa to study American warfare at first hand.

Already at Okinawa are Canadian army commissioned specialists who will act as liaison officers with United States troops led by Lt. Col. De Launiniere Panep of Kingston, Ont.

CURBS ON PRESS WORSE, CHARGES LONDON JOURNAL

LONDON, June 20 (AP)—Arthur J. Heighway, editor of the World's Press News, said today that the world press should ask the Big Three for an authoritative statement "concerning press freedom becoming really operative as soon as possible."

Heighway's comment came as increasing protests were voiced that censorship is being tightened, rather than relaxed, since the end of the war in Europe. The London Evening Standard published a letter from Leslie Randall, its correspondent with the 21st army group, stating that public relations rules and regulations there were "worse than ever now." He urged a "hands off the press" campaign "so we can go about the job of reporting what is happening in occupied Germany and liberated countries without being encumbered by all this public relations control."

Heighway said it was "proving more difficult to report the peace than it was to report the war."

FINED AS GAMING OPERATOR

'IKE' RELIVES HIS CADET DAYS AT WEST POINT

West Point, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—Grinning over a "real return to my cadet days," Gen. Eisenhower today completed a tour of the United States Military academy which included a visit to the quarters he occupied as an undergraduate. He also reviewed more than 1,000 enlisted men who are part of the academy's instruction staff.

The general, after a day crowded with festivities, led his entourage into the academy's stone barracks and, wending his way thru the hallways, stopped at room 3022 in the north barracks.

High Jinks There Recalled

To West Point cadets, 3022 always will be "Eisenhower room," which the allied military commander occupied in his last year at the school. It was the center of some surprising high jinks when the youthful Eisenhower occupied it, academy officials say.

The general flashed his famed grin, touched the iron bed and said:

"This is a room I remember with great happiness. We had a great gang here. It was my last year and what a year it was. The room is exactly the same as it was then except we had wooden chairs and tables."

A few minutes later Eisenhower was on the academy's cavalry plain, acknowledging the cheers of several thousand people who had gathered to watch him review the enlisted personnel.

During the last war Eisenhower was stationed at West Point and did not get into the fight. So today he consoled the instructors and the men and counseled them to "never forget" the importance of their work.

Earlier, after receiving a prolonged cheer from the cadets when he appeared at the mess hall, Eisenhower said:

"The major thought that I bring you today is this: cultivate mutual understanding with any one you think you have to get along with. To my mind that is the whole civilized world.

"We Can Lick Any One"

"If we stick together we can lick any one we have to fight. If we stick together intelligently we will never have to fight."

Eisenhower declared "the army, navy, and air force must be a unit and if I had my way they'd all be in the same uniform."

"Of course," he said, "I don't suppose congress and the big brass hats would ever agree to that."

It was a day of renewing old acquaintances and associations for Eisenhower, who was graduated 61st in a class of 164 in 1915.

The men who knew him then described him as fun loving, irrepressible, and not too intent on his studies. He got his share of demerits, they said, once being barred from the academy's dances for 30 days because of "indecorous dancing"—which means he liked ragtime.

Eisenhower goes to Kansas City, Mo., tomorrow for another big welcome while en route to his native Abilene, Kas.

HALF MILLION NEGRO TROOPS SERVE OVERSEAS

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Almost half a million Negro soldiers are overseas, the army reported today.

It said that as of Feb. 28, there were 690,282 Negroes in the army, with 497,566 overseas. As of March 31, there were 35,760 Negroes in the navy, marine corps, and coast guard.

One of the army's two Negro divisions, the 92d, with normal strength of about 14,500, suffered 3,161 casualties during fighting in Italy from last Sept. 1 to V-E day. The total included 330 killed, 2,215 wounded, and 660 missing.

No casualty figures are available, the army said, on the other Negro division, the 93d, which is in the Southwest Pacific.

MARINE CORPS NOW ACCEPTS 17 YEAR OLDS

Men accepted will be sent to Parris Island, S. C., for nine weeks of "boot" training, and will complete four weeks of additional training at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

An applicant may enlist in the regular corps for four years or in the reserve for the duration of the war plus six months. Applicants must be between five feet four inches and six feet four inches tall, with proportionate weight.

CALLS AMNESTY PLEDGE BROKEN BY ARGENTINA

BY ARNALDO CORTESI

[By Cable to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 20—On June 9 the Argentine government authorized Col. J. Filomeno Velazco, chief of the federal police, to announce that within one week all political prisoners with the exception of extreme rightists would be released. Eleven days have passed since then and it is obvious that the government still is far from fulfilling its promise.

According to estimates, not half of the political prisoners have been freed, even making liberal allowance for the "extreme rightists," whatever this very elastic term may mean. And arrests still continue, with the result that places left vacant by released prisoners are gradually being filled by persons who have incurred the government's displeasure.

Four Lists Published

Up to the moment of writing the federal police have issued four lists of released prisoners. The first, published June 13, gave 246 names but the number then fell off sharply until the fourth list, published only yesterday, with a mere nine names. The total in the four lists is 337. However, the second list included 30 names which were in the first, so the correct total of released prisoners according to these figures would be 307.

How many persons were held in jail without trial is not known. Official estimates range from zero which is the figure supplied by Minister of Interior Adm. Alberto Teisaire to a group of visiting Chilean journalists last December, up to 1,000 which is the figure given by Vice President Juan Peron on the same occasion. Most figures place the minimum number at 800.

Most Are Unknown

Official lists of released prisoners contain very few known names and it therefore looks as tho the government were turning loose only the rank and file and not the chiefs of opposition whom it held in jail. This is confirmed by numerous protests made by labor organizations demanding the release of their leaders. Labor maintains that 470 of its members, including 14 women, are still in jail.

Only two prominent figures have been released. They are former Senator Antonio Santamarina and Luis Koifmann, editor of the democratic weekly, Anti-Nazi. The latter was deported to Montevideo, Uruguay.

The government has complied sufficiently well with the decree issued June 6 declaring "journalistic amnesty." Nevertheless, there are still two small newspapers in the federal capital and perhaps others elsewhere in the republic which have failed to reappear and several journalists who have been unable to return to their country. Others, including several belonging to the former communist newspapers, La Hora, and Orientacion, are still held without trial.

86TH DIVISION'S VETERANS HOME BETWEEN WARS

Kin at Station to Greet Furloughed Soldiers

The real glory of war—coming home—came yesterday to 500 Chicago area veterans of the 86th [Blackhawk] division who helped whip the Germans. Happy and temporarily carefree, they piled eagerly out of a special Burlington line train in the Union station after a trip from Camp Grant, Ill., where they had received 30 day furloughs.

After the furloughs they will return to Camp Grant and then get more training before going back to war, this time in the Pacific.

Some of the boys rushed to telephones to call up home; some rushed to waiting arms of mothers and wives, and some rushed to sweep up youngsters, their own, whom they never had seen before.

Captain Meets His Son

Capt. Henry Hojnacki of 6347 S. Campbell av. was welcomed by his wife, his parents, and his 5 months old son, John. To the baby the captain was just another friendly face, but to the captain, the baby was everything.

Dozens of other soldiers were met by families. There would have been more station reunions had the veterans had time to notify relatives of their scheduled arrival. They had lacked the time because of the speed of redeployment at Camp Grant.

The 500 who came here by train were among the first of 2,000 members of the Blackhawk division who arrived from Europe over the week-end. They had reached Camp Grant Tuesday night to get furloughs. By tonight the rest of the 2,000 will be home. Most live in the midwest area centered in Chicago.

Camp Staff Works Overtime

At Camp Grant, Lt. Col. Forrest W. Edwards, commanding officer, said the camp staff had worked overtime to get the veterans started homeward. "We're pushing the men out as fast as we can," he said. The work is directed by Lt. Col. Edward D. Hogan.

When the furloughs end, the division will go from Camp Grant to Camp Gruber, Okla., to be taught the tricks of fighting the Japanese.

Hemingway Injured When Auto Crashes Into Tree

HAVANA, Cuba, June 20 (AP)—Ernest Hemingway, the author, was injured slightly today when his automobile skidded and crashed into a tree on the Mantilla road near here. Dr. Marcos Fernandez, in charge of the Mantilla first aid station, said he gave medical treatment to Hemingway and two other occupants of the automobile.

FENDERS STOLEN OFF AUTO

Charles W. Nichols, 1141 E. 79th st., told police yesterday that two fender skirts, valued at $50, had been stolen from his car, parked at 78th st. and Ingleside av.

11,248 GIs REACH N. Y. ON WAY TO THEIR 2D WAR

467 Freed Prisoners on Liner, Too

New York, June 20 [Special]—Back from one war and on their way to another came 11,248 Yanks aboard the stately Queen Mary today. They sailed in triumph past the Statue of Liberty for a victory welcome from blaring bands and cheering thousands.

In addition to the redeployment troops, the 81,235 ton Cunard liner, somber in her war paint, brought 610 soldiers scheduled for discharge under the point system, 467 liberated prisoners of war, and 2,200 officers and men of the United States navy.

The giant ex-luxury speed queen, paying its first visit to New York since V-E day, loomed out of the haze off Ambrose light about 1 p. m. [EWT] with a navy blimp circling above her. In the narrows, two official welcoming ships, each carrying a band, joined her for a tumultuous trip up the North river to her mid-Manhattan pier.

Nurse Waves Panties

The first message home from a GI to his girl was transmitted to watchers aboard the welcoming ships by a square of canvas an ingenious soldier was displaying from one of the Queen Mary's decks. "Cheerio, Agnes," it said, and was signed, "'Arry." Thousands of messages were shouted across as the ships drew together. From a port hole a golden haired nurse waved an unsoldierly pair of black lace panties.

"Hey," cried the blonde girl, who had a second lieutenant's bar on her collar, "we won."

Eight tugs nosed the Queen Mary into her berth at Pier 90 off West 50th st. Whistles shrieked from all manner of craft in the harbor, including two baby flattops. The all-Negro 357th army service forces band, waiting on the pier, swung into a jump tune called "The Jersey Bounce."

Relatives Disappointed

Eager relatives of the returning men waiting by the hundreds at the pier were disappointed as all were marched to ferries for transportation to redeployment centers. Those scheduled to go on to the Pacific were taken to Camp Shanks, N. Y. and the others to Camp Kilmer, N. J.

The returning troops, it was announced, included the 102d, 109th, 107th, and 112th general hospital units, the 396th, 576th, 577th, 578th, and 579th bombardment squadrons, and the 403d, 653d, and 657th air squadrons.

$22,500 Award

[TRIBUNE Photos]

Staff Sgt. John C. Ryan, awarded $22,500 damages for injury, and his wife, Ethel.

A federal court jury before Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday awarded damages of $22,500 to Staff Sgt. John C. Ryan, 28, of 6429 S. Marshfield av., for injuries suffered Sept. 14, 1944, when the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad's Dixie Flyer, on which he was a passenger, collided with another train at Terre Haute, Ind. Twenty-nine persons were killed in the wreck. Sgt. Ryan, a veteran of 41 missions as a bomber gunner over Europe, charged thru his attorney, Herbert H. Patterson, that the railroad was guilty of negligence. Sgt. Ryan is assigned to the Wakeman general hospital, Camp Atterbury, Ind.

HELP SHORTAGE FORCES CRUISER FROM U. S. YARD

New York, June 20 [Special]—Hit five times by Japanese suicide planes in the Philippines, the 10,000 ton heavy cruiser H. M. A. S. Australia arrived in New York this week on her way to England. The 17,000 mile trip was necessitated by lack of men and overtaxed repair facilities in Australia and the United States, according to Capt. John M. Armstrong, who commanded the ship at Leyte and Luzon as part of the United States 7th fleet.

A spokesman for the 3d naval district said the Australian cruiser undoubtedly could have been repaired here if the navy's plea for 5,000 workers in the navy yard in Brooklyn had been heeded.

A veteran of a score of engagements all over the world, the Australia has cruised 300,000 miles since 1939.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR N. U. HEAD IN DOG CARE CASE

Warrants charging cruelty to animals were issued by Judge John R. McSweeney yesterday against Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, head of the physiology department of Northwestern university's medical school; Dr. George H. Gardner, acting dean of the school, and Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of the university.

The warrants were issued at the request of Mrs. Grace Petkus, vice president of the Animal Welfare league, who on Tuesday asked the city advisory committee on dogs to recommend that the university be barred from receiving dogs from the city pound. Her plea was rejected by the committee.

Dr. Gardner said the school is spending $350,000 to remodel the laboratory and quarters for the dogs to be the best in the world. The quarters are crowded now.

"Nevertheless, dogs are treated humanely," he added. "I know. I, too, am a dog lover."

He entered the service from the University of Illinois June 8, 1942. Only four days ago the war department released a story relating how Lt. Lafferty and two companions wiped out a 10 man Jap patrol in jungle fighting.

TAVERN OWNER REFUSES TO SAY WHO SHOT HIM

Peter DiCola, 42, was recovering yesterday in St. Francis' hospital, Blue Island, as police sought an explanation for his shooting early Tuesday outside his Town Club tavern, Calumet Park, under circumstances suggesting gang warfare. DiCola refused to talk.

Lt. Anton Paulus of the county highway police, who investigated the shooting, found a slot machine in the tavern at 123d and Green sts. and took the barmaid, Geraldine Tindell, 24, of Calumet Park, into custody for questioning.

She said that DiCola had talked for some time to a man in his automobile parked just outside the tavern.

CALVERT Salutes WRIGLEY

It's easy to say: "I believe honesty is the best policy."

It's easy to say: "I'd rather keep my character than my customers."

It's not so easy to prove it. Wrigley has proved it.

Wrigley has told America that for the present, no more chewing gum bearing the famous brand names of Wrigley's Spearmint, Doublemint, and Juicy Fruit will be made. Not for civilians, not for the armed forces.

Here is why: Wrigley has used up all its pre-war ingredients. It can't make chewing gum up to the standard America has come to expect from those famous brands.

So Wrigley has withdrawn those brands—in which millions upon millions of dollars have been invested—until their pre-war quality can again be assured.

We are proud to salute Wrigley!

For here, in black and white for all America to see, is an example of keeping faith with the public. Here is what the integrity of a brand name means. Here is the kind of courage which has built and kept American business strong.

The act of buying a product is an act of faith. You see a brand advertised, you try it, you have confidence in its quality. For any manufacturer to lower that quality, is to commit a breach of faith.

Because of shortages of pre-war materials, there exists today a temptation for a manufacturer to substitute inferior ingredients.

Today, demand is so great that such a manufacturer might well succeed in finding a market for his sub-standard product. He would have nothing to lose ; ; ; except his reputation.

Because Calvert has always believed that the good name of a product must never be sacrificed for any reason, we salute Wrigley. We salute them for proving that the American people's confidence in great brands, and in the integrity of their manufacturers ; ; ; has not been misplaced!

W. W. Wachtel, President

WHY CANADIANS EAT THEIR MEAT AND HAVE IT, TOO

Easier Distribution One Answer to Paradox

BY ARTHUR EVANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 20—Canada's plentitude of meats, a phenomenon that strikes the hungry traveler, offers a series of paradoxes.

The American tourist from cities where beef at times seems almost a museum rarity can eat his way from Vancouver to Quebec thru a sequence of juicy steaks and roasts. Yet Canada's civilian population in 1944 ate eight pounds less meat a person than did United States civilians. Canadians lean more to beef and the United States to pork.

Meat rationing here was suspended a year and a half ago. Canada has had little trouble with hoarding or with the black market, which thrives across the American border.

Price control, too, has been such that the government index of prices, including meats, has risen less in Canada during the war than in the United tSates or the United Kingdom.

Answer to It

The answer to the Canadian food situation seems to be that Canada has an easier job in distributing civilian supplies equitably than has the United States. Both countries strive to hold civilian meat consumption as close to the same level as possible.

The puzzle which both Americans and Canadians find in meat abundance north of the border and meat scarcity in some big cities south of it, led the government here to make an analysis.

Main reasons Canada gives for its easier distribution of its civilian supplies are: Canada established over-all control of prices and distribution earlier than the United States. The dominion has a smaller population, 11½ million as against 130 million in continental United States, which makes the job of price control easier.

Canada is predominately rural, which eases food distribution, and it has not had to an equal degree the war time shifts in population which have complicated the task of distribution in the United States.

Other Factors Cited

Ninety per cent of Canada's population lives in a geographical band 200 miles wide along the American border, and the dominion thus does not have the wide divergence in climate and food habits existing in the United States. Another factor pointed to is that Canada has not the great population concentrations of the United States. The big cities on the American seaboard are 1,000 miles away from the great meat regions.

Under the system here all suppliers must distribute goods to their customers in proportion to what they bought in 1941. During rationing in 1943 meats for overseas piled up in cold storage faster than available shipping could transport them.

The official food figures give per capita civilian use of beef, veal, pork, lamb, and mutton for 1944 as 139 pounds in Canada and 147 in the United States.

This year both countries aimed at about 132 pounds a person a year for civilians. The United States in March made a 12 per cent cut, bringing the average rate to about 116 pounds. Canada, without resorting to ration books, has made a cut by taking all canned meat off the market and requisitioning 70 per cent of the entire hog kill for export.

Food production and distribution is under the pool of the combined boards at Washington and London, of which Canada is a member.

Butter is rationed, seven ounces a person a week; so is sugar—19 pounds a year a person and 10 pounds for canning. Honey, syrup, and preserves are rationed, as are canned fruits.

In restaurants, one gets four rashers of bacon at breakfast. If one orders eggs, two rashers are taken away. It is a poorer grade bacon, for the high grade hog slaughter goes overseas.

'PEOPLE'S NAVY' DEMANDED FOR U. S. AFTER WAR

BY LAURENCE BURD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 20—House members publicly demanded today that the navy scrap its alleged policy of favoring Annapolis graduates for promotions at the expense of capable reserve officers on active duty and of former enlisted men who have come up thru the ranks.

The demands, by members of the powerful house naval committee, followed a closed meeting yesterday at which members of congress reportedly called on Navy Secretary Forrestal to stop discrimination by old line navy officers in favor of Annapolis men. The closed session, at which Forrestal was a witness, was a joint meeting of the senate and house naval committees.

Asks a "People's Navy"

House members observed today that tentative plans for the peace time fleet call for at least 30,000 naval officers, of whom perhaps two-thirds will come from ranks of present reservists who are fighting in this war.

"The navy must give the same chance to reserve officers in promotions and assignments as it does to Annapolis graduates," Rep. Hebert [D., La.] said in an interview. "If it doesn't, many reservists who have helped fight this war and hope to stay in the navy will be forced to go back into civilian life. Able men will not stay with the fleet if they are being discriminated against.

"We must have a big post-war fleet and it must be the peoples' navy—not an Annapolis navy."

"Navy chiefs have assured us that non-Annapolis men will get a fair break," Hebert said. "I believe they will. If they don't, it will be up to congress and the people to force the issue."

Cites Last War's Lesson

Rep. Mott [R., Ore.], ranking minority member of the naval committee, declared that navy reservists have consistently been discriminated against and often passed over for promotions in favor of others whose only apparent "edge" was their Annapolis diploma.

"The navy lost a lot of good men after the last war thru this short-sighted policy," Mott told a reporter. This mistake must not be repeated."

Mott said a step toward eliminating the "unnecessary" distinction between old line navy career men and reservists could be taken immediately by dropping the "reserve" designation for reserve officers on active fighting duty.

Navy regulations, he observed, require that reservists, tho on active duty, be designated "U. S. N. R." after their name and rank, while regular officers are designated by "U. S. N."

Mott declared both groups are performing equal service for their country and are equally exposed to danger and said he could see no valid reason for the distinction among men on active duty.

Rep. Cole [R., N. Y.] said he recently suggested to the navy that the "reserve" distinction be dropped in day-to-day communications and for "informal" usage but that it be retained on navy records. He said navy chiefs replied that the distinction was necessary for bookkeeping purposes.

"The navy's policy of favoring Annapolis grads is a matter that is deeper, however, than the reserve designation itself," Cole said. "It is part of a long time system that has grown up and been fostered by the old line navy men. The Annapolis oligarchy has to be broken up before the system can be changed." ["Oligarchy" is defined in dictionaries as government by the few for selfish purposes.]

Horace E. Bayles, 25, of Plainfield, Ind., driver of a Greyhound bus that figured in a three vehicle accident Feb. 22, 1944, near Hammond, Ind., which killed four persons and injured 25, yesterday was sentenced to six months on the Indiana state farm at Pendleton by Judge William J. Does BORDERLINE ANEMIA* Harm a Girl's Complexion?

YES, it does! Complexion loveliness lies in soft freshness . . . in radiant color. And the flush and glow of health are sadly missing if you have a Borderline Anemia. Borderline Anemia leaves your skin pale, dull, unattractive.

Weak, Faded Red Blood Cells Rob You of Energy

Medical science warns that 68% of women—as well as many thousands of men—have a Borderline Anemia, resulting from a ferro-nutritional deficiency of the blood. The red cells in their blood just aren't big enough or red enough or healthy enough to keep them vitally alive and alluring. Your blood is your "supply line" of energy for your whole body. Nothing else can take its place!

Build Up Blood and Energy with Ironized Yeast

So if your skin is poor—if you feel too tired to keep up with the crowd—take Ironized Yeast Tablets. They give you the vital, blood-building elements that doctors say most of us aren't getting enough of in other ways.

Of course your condition may stem from other causes—so you ought to consult your doctor regularly. But in a Borderline Anemia, Ironized Yeast Tablets will help by building up healthy, red blood cells, improving energy. On sale at all drug stores.

Resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.*

IMPORTANT! Medical records show that up to 68% of WOMEN 20% of MEN 85% of CHILDREN Suffer from BORDERLINE ANEMIA!

THE PLANNED ECONOMY AND THE DINNER TABLE

Within the last six months this has become a strange land to the inhabitants thereof. We have been at war three and a half years. During that time, and even before it, we have been under war controls, tightening gradually month by month and year by year. The extragovernmental authorities have had a quick forest growth. War time weather and soil favored them. They are governmental corporations, not departments and are removed as far as possible from popular supervision and restriction. The accepted theory is that they cannot work within the shackles of representative government. They must get outside it.

They have been regarded as products of Roman law which on its renaissance in Europe and its acceptance in the late 15th century so completely destroyed the capacity for self-government that Hitler could have been foreseen in 1500. An executive government, expanding its functions, cannot be bothered by the legislature and will not be bothered by the judiciary. The law was an edict a Roman emperor was pleased to inform the senate he had issued. Centuries later it became the spontaneous emanation of the fuehrer's will. Law under this system is an executive order. It is something a governmental corporation, administration, or authority sees fit to issue. It is a directive from the chief executive. It is a ruling by one of his subordinate bodies.

If this Republic survives, as we think it will because the people have a great field of resolution underneath their patience and tolerance, the historians will have a feast of investigation studying the dominance of one man edicts over statutory law, comparing the law made by the dictator with the law made by the legislature. The authoritarians are not naturally bad fellows. Individually they'd resent in another what they do themselves under the incentive of the very authority they possess without the information or intelligence to do it. Their egos need not be hurt by that. They probably have as much information and intelligence as the next fellow but it isn't and couldn't be enough.

Their major achievement in the last six months has been to produce a food shortage. The people aren't hungry—yet, or if they are hungry it is only for foods to which they were accustomed and cannot get. They can subsist, but the familiar staples of their tables have disappeared or are disappearing. The edictal government has succeeded in bewildering and bedeviling both the meat producers and the meat consumers.

Skilled observers noted long ago, before the war was thought of, that one of the first evidences that a planned economy has taken the place of price economy is to be found in the long lines or queues at the retailers' doors. This phenomenon appears unfailing. The planned economy by putting its foot thru the machinery somewhere has created scarcity. There are many experts on the present food shortage. There are volumes of statistics and percentages.

The average family which does not know any way of overcoming conditions as they present themselves or which is too honest to try it, is beginning to forget what a meal with beef, pork, lamb, or mutton was like. The average householder is aware of many of the reasons which would explain scarcity and restrictions. He knows that the army and navy must buy in unparalleled quantities and may buy recklessly. A failure of supplies for any purpose in any quarter of the globe would be unforgivable. When the civilian consumer learns that the service buyers have swept thru a region taking all that is procurable of one thing or another he accepts the consequences as a military necessity. The military may or may not be inconsiderate. That's war.

However, the feeding of some six or seven millions of the citizens of this country now absent from their homes cannot possibly overtax the rich natural resources and the workers. Nor can the feeding of whatever parts of Europe we may be feeding do this. Experts say that the farmer has outdone himself in production. Statisticians say there are more meat animals in the country and more feed than ever before. There is no meat on the table.

Somewhere the blundering foot of planned economy has done what could be expected of it. It has stepped into the machinery. It has kept feeder cattle from the feeding lot. It has produced scarcity where abundance was necessary. It has juggled prices without an understanding of their power. The result is the strange phenomenon of a rich land doing without its staples of meat.

Yes, we know there's a war on. No, we're not starving. But we are living in a period of food anarchy for which there is no explanation other than the planned economy.

HELP FOR ELLIOTT

A story in Saturday's Globe-Democrat told of the connection which St. Louis people had with Elliott Roosevelt's Transcontinental broadcasting chain. It had been disclosed earlier in the week that to finance a new radio chain, young Roosevelt in 1939 had obtained a loan of $200,000 from John Hartford, head of the A. & P. grocery chain, after President Roosevelt had called Hartford, a total stranger, on the phone and requested that the loan be made and invited him to come to the White House.

Two St. Louisans, the Globe-Democrat said, were also invited to come to the White House at the time that the Transcontinental chain was being set up. They were Briggs A. Hoffman, an insurance man, and E. W. Paro, an advertising salesman. After spending two days at the White House, they were made vice presidents of the new enterprise. Paro thereafter had charge of the Chicago office.

This addition to the account recalls another invitation to the White House which created a stir at the time. Late in 1939 Hill Blackett, one of the heads of a large Chicago advertising agency and at the time also the Republican national committeeman from Illinois, spent some time with the President at the latter's invitation. It was later learned that not politics but the new radio network had been talked about, and that Blackett had arranged to purchase quantities of radio time.

Here are three bits of evidence that two months after the war broke out, President Roosevelt was actively engaged at the White House in using his great prestige to obtain financial backing, organizational support, and sales for a private business enterprise his son was forming.

ENGLISH BARBS AND AMERICAN REVIEWERS

When Edmund Wilson, the literary critic of the New Yorker, arrived in England on a sightseeing tour just after the defeat of Germany, he was disposed to be extremely sympathetic to almost everything that met his eye. He liked the politeness of a pilot who came aboard his ship and complimented a common sailor for not getting him wet. "I tried to think what an American would have said," Mr. Wilson remarked. It was evident he felt the American would not have been so gracious.

He liked London. "No doubt it comes to seem more attractive as New York becomes consistently less so." He liked the green parks and squares, "enchanting after the windowed, expressionless walls, the narrow, crowded streets of New York." He liked the London stage. No one takes our theater seriously any more. Altogether, one would have said, Mr. Wilson was as appreciative an American as a Briton would want.

The only fault he originally had to find was that England had been corrupted by exposure to Americans and American behavior. The English, he found, "had become fairly neurotic about America. They were swamped by the American army, as wave after wave of it came in before D-day, and they now seemed to look back on its sojourn as an ordeal of almost the same severity as the blitz and robot bombs. . . . But now that the army was mostly gone," Mr. Wilson continued, "I assumed that the resentment had subsided, and I was, therefore, surprised, in London, to hear a good deal of somewhat bitter criticism of practically everything connected with America."

Ordinarily there is no limit to the amount of abuse that a New York newspaper man will absorb and still respond with adulation, but Mr. Wilson on this occasion showed gratifying instincts of patriotism. Eventually, he confesses, he "became rather irritated. . . . I adopted a tougher line. I would retort that the American soldiers who had committed misdemeanors in England [the British accused them of pestering women and snatching purses in the blackout] were our revenge for the obnoxious British propagandists who had been sent over to plague us in America from the moment England had realized she needed us to help her against Germany, and I cited examples, in this line, of British atrocities in the United States.

"The first rebuttal I got to this," said Mr. Wilson, "was the reply that when, for any reason, a British official did not come up to scratch he was always sent at once to America. . . . This attitude of the English toward America is, of course, partly a war time phenomenon—a symptom of exasperation, of the peculiar state of mind produced by being cooped up for five years in England, and by being in uncertainty, since 1940, about England's place in the world."

Mr. Wilson found many evidences of this uncertainty concerning national status. When he would remark that Europe ought to be governed by somebody or something, the English became combative. They thought he was preaching American imperialism. Altho he recalled that Britain was wont to reproach us for having stood aloof from the league of nations, Mr. Wilson found that they themselves still thought in terms of old balance of power politics—i. e.: their notions of international coöperation favor our being at British beck and call when British interests are threatened.

When, on a visit to parliament, Mr. Wilson noted the emphasis upon anachronisms, expressed in the remarks of Mr. Churchill that the power and dignity of England still reside in the mystic traditions of such things as the crown, and mace, and woolsack, the American visitor could not avoid concluding that "the power and the glory were perhaps ebbing out of these symbols—that the old virtue was no longer quite there."

Mr. Wilson has had his education in British ways and has profited by it to a degree. A certain defensive arrogance in English outlook impressed itself upon him. The American army fought the Germans in the west at a ratio of three divisions to each British or dominion division. It is remembered for having addressed a few uncouth remarks to women in the blackout, altho what kind of women prowl a blackout is not considered. Purse snatchings are thrown in American faces, but no one mentions the 13 billion dollars of American lend-lease Britain has received. The idea seems to be that, having performed our stint, we can now go home and leave Europe alone, keeping ourselves, of course, on call.

Mr. Wilson concludes that these are nervous reflections of an attitude of uncertainty which may be expected when a country has become afflicted with the sense that it is a dwindling, second class power. The psychological rationale tends to obscure the fact which is important. That is that Britain is not a first flight power in today's world. The British twice have been enabled to cling to fictitious rank as a world power thru the "colonial levies" supplied by America. Is it to be assumed that the mission is obligatory upon this country? The English would have us think so, and in none too gracious a manner, as Mr. Wilson discovered, at that.

STILL LIFE: ORIENTAL

In the peaceful long ago, when the western world thought of the Japanese people chiefly in terms of kimonos, geisha girls, and hara-kiri, there was frequent mention of their skill in landscape gardening, their passion for chrysanthemums, and their art of flower arrangement. The latter accomplishment was regarded with a touch of awe, especially among tea table hostesses, as beyond the grasp of the blunt occidental mind. Therefore let us, for the sake of irony, glance briefly at the Japanese method of saying it with flowers.

The cult of flower arrangement came into Japanese life as an auxiliary of the tea ceremony, recently discussed in this column, but it quickly grew into a custom of national importance. It acquired a philosophy, teachers, and styles, and presently every one was doing it, especially the school girls, who were carefully taught how to decorate a room with practically nothing. The inventor of a new way to stick sprigs of pine, plum, and bamboo into an unimportant vase, making the bouquet seem like the quintessence of the unutterable, became as famous as Babe Ruth or Walt Disney.

The Japanese obsession with symbolism endowed flower arrangement with meanings that escape the western mind, but in essence it is utterly simple. A few flowers, leaves, and twigs are enough for a masterpiece. A tall spray must lift upward, a low branch must thrust outward, and there must be an intermediate cluster. Imaginary lines connecting these three points must form a triangle.

From these principles more than 100 styles have been developed, but they are merely frills and fashions. After grasping the A-B-C and looking at a few pictures, almost any one of taste can produce a passable imitation of a Japanese flower arrangement.

HERE IS TREASURE

Seek no more for here is treasure,
More than mortal man can measure;
Cupped in this green scalloped leaf
Burns a fire past belief:
Fire of the diamond keen,
Flashing ruby, orange, green,
Dewdrop molded by His hand
Who spinning sent the starry band.
Its subtle fire pulsing glows,
Emerald, topaz, winking rose.
So low, so humble is this sphere,
Yet all of heaven is mirrored here;
Crumpled leaf and dewdrop fire—
Here is treasure past desire.

Taming Wild Men of Borneo

The Wild Men of Borneo [June 18] were brought to American carnivals [probably via Memphis or Harlem] in droves around the turn of the century. But an even greater feat was taking the American carnival to the Wild Men of Borneo.

This was first accomplished about 25 years ago by Eddie Taite [or Tate], a former Chicagoan. He organized a carnival troupe known as the Mammoth Taite shows for the Borneo-Malay exposition. At the close of the exposition he toured the back country for several years, using river barges and carabao carts for transportation.

The Mammoth Taite shows, with headquarters in Manila, included practically every transportable device you would find in an American amusement park, from a Ferris wheel to a wheel of chance which hands out a kewpie doll to the holder of the lucky paddle. To say that the Dyaks appreciated such entertainment would be putting it mildly. Eddie Taite made a small fortune out of the small change he coaxed from these strange people.

SIXPENCE AND RYE

sing a song of sixpence
a pocketful of rye

to make a blackbird pie
maybe the meat was rationed

I too would bake a pie
but in vain in all directions
I have cocked a hungry eye so I'll throw away the sixpence
(there is little left to buy)

I think I'll drink the rye.

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0800, gives personal interviews.]

E. G. asks: "If a man was drafted into the army and discharged honorably before Dec. 7, 1941, is he entitled to wear the discharge button given to those discharged after that date."

Yes. Persons honorably discharged after Sept. 8, 1939, are entitled to wear the button.

Mrs. E. J. asks: "Will my husband, who is stationed in England and without enough points for discharge be permitted to come home on rotation furlough?"

New regulations have been published covering soldiers stationed in England. Several factors enter into the situation. These are: [1] A combination of four years of military service since Sept. 16, 1940, of which 12 months has been overseas, five decorations or battle participation awards, and without dependent children, or [2] Four years of service, 12 months overseas, three decorations or battle stars, and one dependent child under 18.

Mrs. R. G. B. writes: "My husband writes that he was wounded four months ago and says the navy now contends he is not entitled to the Purple Heart. How can he get one?"

He may apply thru his commanding officer if no entry has been made in his service record. His application must be in the form of a sworn statement containing complete details and the names of persons who saw or treated the injury.

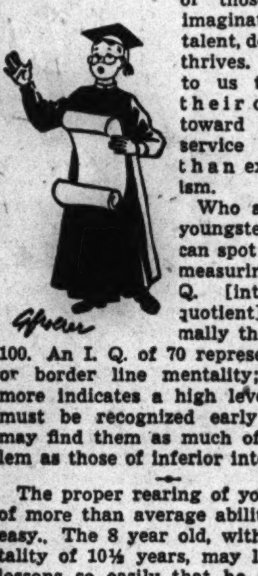
A HAPPY FUTURE FOR THE EXCEPTIONAL CHILD

BRIGHT children are one of our most prized possessions. Neglect of this national asset would mean the loss of something priceless for, thru the leadership of those with imagination and talent, democracy thrives. It is up to us to direct their capacities toward human service rather than exhibitionism.



Who are these youngsters? We can spot them by measuring the I. Q. [intelligence quotient]. Normally the rate is 100. An I. Q. of 70 represents dull or border line mentality; 130 or more indicates a high level. They must be recognized early for we may find them as much of a problem as those of inferior intellect.

The proper rearing of youngsters of more than average ability is not easy. The 8 year old, with a mentality of 10½ years, may learn his lessons so easily that he is bored with the activities of the third grade. The so-called quiz kid may have a poor school record because he neglects his studies in order to concentrate on special interests. Care must be taken to see that his excess energy is not expended unwisely. He frequently dominates lads of his own age but is rejected by the older boys with whom he desires to compete. Because of his tender years, he is still dependent upon his parents physically and emotionally. Only thru proper coordination of the teacher and the family can constructive objectives be encouraged.

In a recent paper, Thom and Newell, who had the opportunity of reëxamining 38 subjects with I. Q.s of 130 to 166, stated that "the most definite contribution to success was consistent and reasonable training in the early years, because it accustomed the children to orderly and useful habits and attitudes. The acceptance of regulations that are for the good of all precluded the unfortunate philosophy so frequently observed among children that one must be naughty to have fun and that an audience must be secured at any price.

"The children who had been kept in normal relationship in family and social life made the best adjustments as they matured; those who failed in fulfilment had been hampered by family instability or unfortunate environmental conditions."

In this series, the economic status of the household had little effect upon successful development, while a harmonious and happy home life was distinctly favorable. The importance of sound supervision cannot be overemphasized. These boys and girls should not be robbed of their childhood by overzealous fathers and mothers who try to push them beyond their years. On the other hand, there is no need for retarding their advancement. Probably somewhere between the two extremes is the road of choice.

It is logical to assume that with proper guidance, geniuses can mature into exceptional and outstanding citizens. Thru their judgment and knowledge they can help to mold a better world so that all of us can receive the benefits.

THERE ARE SMILES

A. C. writes: I am 23 years old and I am always smiling to myself. At work people look at me because of this. Can you explain it?

REPLY

Most of us, when we think of something ridiculous, will do the same thing. In others, the facial muscles contract in such a way that this expression is mimicked. We refer to these contortions as habit spasms or tics.

CHOLESTEROL

C. B. writes: You used the word "cholesterol" in your article on arteriosclerosis. Will you please enlighten me on what it means?

REPLY

This is an oily, pearly substance found in fats, bile, blood, brain tissue, milk, egg yolk, etc. Certain types of gallstones contain large amounts of this material and, when deposited on the walls of an artery, hardening results.

LOOK FOR INFECTION

D. M. E. writes: What makes my neck swell at times, resulting in dizzy spells?

REPLY

Perhaps an infection in the nose or throat causes the structures in the neck to enlarge. This may be associated with vertigo, altho there are many causes for this disorder.

ABIDING

M. C. writes: Is a rheumatic heart a permanent defect?

REPLY

Yes, if scarring has taken place.

Sabbath Morn

Far up the misty valley,
I hear a glad refrain,
The little bell in Springport
Is singing in the rain.

Not in some gilded penthouse
Where diplomats abound,
With "Whereas" and "Now, therefore"
Will Peace at last be found.

But in the sweet, green country
Where Hope and Faith remain,
And little bells in Springports
Do not ring out in vain.

Books Still Go to War

A good portion of the public thinks that with the war in Europe over, the need for giving books to service men no longer exists. The Chicago public library, which still is working diligently at its Victory Book campaign, says that on the contrary there is now an even greater need for books. Requests for reading material, on subjects running from the chemical analysis of drinking water to meteorology, have been pouring in from the men who expect to remain in Europe on the mopping-up detail. Men in the Pacific, both on land and sea, ask for books and more books, principally current fiction and nonfiction. One man wrote from the Philippines: "You can't imagine what it means after a hard day's work to forget the army, forget the war, and forget the Southwest Pacific—with a book." Another, Lt. Robert H. Bell of the B-29s, wrote from the Marianas: "After a long strike mission to the mainland of Japan, we always have an eight hour trip back to base. Many of us find that reading a short story or novel does wonders to relax us and hasten the trip back. You are being cheated in not being able to see the direct results of the Victory Book campaign. Our hats are off to you."

Band Wagoner's Turn

The letter from the corporal in Czechoslovakia [D-day to the Elbe] inclosed a clipping from the Stars and Stripes. "I have discussed this with many fellows in my outfit," he said. "We all agree that the clipping expresses just how we feel on San Francisco. I hope you will publish it so those at home may know."

The clipping, entitled "Band Wagoner's Turn," was in the letter-to-the-editor department, issue of May 11:

"Sitting back in a hospital I've come across a plan to save what's left of us American boys. I don't have to tell you that the lives of us infantry, tankers, etc., aren't very long.

"When the allies were in the dark side of the war most other nations were undecided which way to swing. Now that victory is in sight, they're all on our side.

"If they want to ride the band wagon and prove how much they are for the cause, why can't they supply us with some men to beat Japan? There are 46 nations at the San Francisco conference. If each gave five divisions, it would give us a force of 3,330,000 men.—S/Sgt. Val De Luca, Infantry."

Improved Freud

Do dreams follow the times? A lady in Arlington Heights says they do. The other night she dreamed she went into a drug store with her tongue hanging out for a cherry sundae. A dear old lady was the counter cowboy, and when the dream lady made her request known, she neither said yes nor no, but she looked stranger than she had before. In a few moments she came out with two scoops of ice cream on top of which were two slices of roast beef. The dream lady then asked her for a refund and stalked angrily from the store. The dream lady says this piece of sheer fiction should be entitled: "My Dreams Are Getting Better All the Time."

A VETERAN STARTS IN BUSINESS

Park Ridge, Ill., June 18—This came in our mail this morning: "I have been recently discharged from the army and now am trying to build a little business of my own. In so doing I find myself in trouble. The fact that I've been away for 3½ years seems to be just the reason I can't get merchandise. Most concerns will not open new accounts to give me a little part of their precious allotments. Hence my most urgent and fervent plea to you to help me get back to the life I left. Please consider my request for whatever you have available now or will have later. Whatever you can spare, be it little or much, will be sincerely appreciated."

Here's a lad begging for a chance; he has given his country 3½ years of his young life, and now he is pleading with those for whom he fought for a little foothold so he can begin the struggle to live his own life. Is he getting it? Is disillusionment and despair to be allowed to color the joy and happiness at being back on the free soil of America, where every man has a chance—or does he? JUSTICE

THE SPIRITUAL BASIS OF LIBERTY

Madison, Wis., June 16—Mrs. Vashti McCollum, instructor in the University of Illinois, has brought suit to bar religious instruction from Champaign, Ill., public schools. Mrs. McCollum has every right to bring such a suit. She has at least a talking point, and in view of the long established principle of separation of church and state, her opposition to the present program in the schools may be viewed favorably by the courts.

But when she goes further and attacks religion as "born of fear, ignorance, and superstition," she attacks that which makes it possible for her to make such an attack. Mrs. McCollum has every right to be an atheist, but she is deceiving herself if she believes that atheism is in harmony with concepts of freedom. Atheism is materialist, hence cannot be the source of, or even in harmony with, the concept of the free individual—a spiritual concept. VERNE P. KAUB

A WAC PROTESTS

FRANCE, May 20—I am a WAC stationed in France. Thousands of us over here have been wondering what would happen to us when hostilities ceased. This is what we learned: That civilian clerks were coming to Europe with four times the pay and privileges and gilt edged security given the WACs. Their pay is to be $2,000 a year, plus $1,134 maintenance, and $410 for overtime. I thought there was a difference between patriotism and padded profits.

I realize that civilians must take over in time of peace, but how about giving the WACs a break? This isn't an indictment of civilian women, but it is an indictment of nearsighted legislation. We need civilians, but it isn't going to be easy to see women roll over the roads we paved and to have to work side by side with them at one-fourth the pay. SGT. F. K.

OPA CATCHES A PROFITEER

Minneapolis, Minn., June 16—A paper reports the case of a former Minneapolis woman, now a resident of a home for the aged at Cedar Falls, Ia., who is being prosecuted for $540.50 by the purchaser of a refrigerator which she sold him for $175. He charges her price was over the OPA price ceiling. The woman claimed she was unaware of any violation and offered the informer $180 if he would return the refrigerator.

This woman is 84 years old and the refrigerator was sold presumably when she broke up her home to go to the home for the aged. The beneficiary of this transaction will have to live with his conscience for the rest of his life and that ought to be sufficient punishment. But what can be said for a government operated bureau which makes such legalized blackmail possible? It appears that an attorney will get $100 of this booty, but who will get the remaining $440.50, and does the informer keep the refrigerator?

While we are fighting against that sort of thing in other lands, we are returning to medieval barbarism at home. PAUL CLEMENT

PITY THE POOR CONGRESSMAN

Terre Haute, Ind., June 10—I see that all representatives, senators, cabinet members, and others are in line for large increases in compensation, while the "little steel formula" is to stay as is. Very fine.

One congressman states that after he pays his expenses, he has about $3,000 left, and he is of opinion that his constituents do not want a $3,000 congressman, that they want a more expensive one. After expenses are paid, a mere $3,000 left? Well, according to the way our friend congressman figures, most people that work for a living are always working for nothing, because after "expenses are paid," they are extremely lucky if they have anything left, let alone $3,000. RADIO LIBEL BILL PASSES SENATE BY VOTE OF 46-0

House May Decide on Measure Monday

BY GEORGE TAGGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 20—By a vote of 46 to 0, the senate today passed the radio libel bill despite continued opposition of Chicago broadcasting stations except W-G-N. Lt. Gov. Cross, president of the senate, speeded the course of the measure to the house so that it may reach passage stage there Monday.

Designed to curb defamatory utterances on the air, the measure may serve as a model for future legislation in other states. Amendments adopted by the senate yesterday make it less stringent than the press libel law, on grounds that the radio industry is relatively new and has less opportunity to prevent libels.

Plans to Advance Bill

Sponsors of the bill are Sen. Connors [D., Chicago], Sen. Downing [R., Macomb], and Rep. Cutler [R., Lewistown]. Cutler will ask that the senate bill be advanced to second reading without reference to committee, because his similar bill already has reached that position in the house.

Sen. Downing explained that in creating a new crime of libel by radio, punishable by up to one year in jail and $500 fine, the senate by amendment had solved several problems facing radio station operators.

The amended bill requires proof of malice by any person participating in a libel. This does not apply to the liability of companies owning or operating the station, however.

The measure also states that a defendant must have had "advance knowledge" and "opportunity or right to prevent" the libel in order to be found guilty. This is intended to protect stations against liability for "ad lib" remarks not in speakers' scripts, and for some programs originating in other stations.

Not Liable for Politicians

On grounds that the federal communications commission regulations require the broadcast of political speeches under certain conditions, talks of political candidates could not render a station guilty of libel.

As in the original form of the bill, it makes the truth an absolute defense in libel cases.

"I feel that, as amended, the bill provides every reasonable safeguard," Sen. Downing said. "The amendments won the support of the 16 downstate stations represented by Leslie Johnson of Rock Island.

"This is an opportunity for me to thank the minority leader and members of the judiciary committee for the many hours spent in ironing out the kinks in the bill."

Free Speech Fundamental

Minority Leader Daley, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, said that the committee had kept in mind the fundamental ideal of freedom of discussion on the air.

"We sat down in typical American fashion and finally worked out a bill fair to the industry, to labor, and to the public," Daley said.

A leading proponent of the legislation, Sen. Libonati [D., Chicago], said that the most vicious type of libel is defamation by radio.

"Some of the spokesmen for Chicago stations were like bucking bronchos," Libonati said. "It became plain that they didn't want regulation of any kind."

Halts Undue License

Sen. Dick [R., Quincy], sponsor of the "malicious" amendment, said that the bill will not permit undue license on the air. A former judge and a former state's attorney, Dick said that any judge would instruct a jury in a radio libel prosecution that the defendant must have been malicious to be convicted, even if the term had been omitted from the bill.

Most programs are written and many are recorded before being broadcast, showing an element of deliberation not encountered in the old slander cases concerned with name calling over the back fence, according to Andrew C. Hamilton, attorney for W-G-N.

11 SENATORS SIGN PETITION ASKING PENSION VETO

Present Protest to the Governor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 20—Eleven Republican senators risked unpopularity among their colleagues today by presenting a petition to Gov. Green urging him to veto the legislators' pension bill. They believe the resentment against the pension bill among the voters is a greater risk.

They quoted the governor as saying he has received more letters and telegrams opposed to the legislators' pension plan than on any other bill of the 64th general assembly.

Those who signed the petition were Senators Carpentier [East Moline], Collins [De Kalb], Baker [Davis Junction], Flagg [Moro], Beckman [Kankakee], Downing [Macomb], Broyles [Mount Vernon], Oldfield [Centralia], Homer Butler [Marion], Giffin [Springfield], and O. E. Benson [Ottawa].

Could Retire at 60

Under the bill legislators of 12 years service, upon becoming 60, could retire with a pension of 25 per cent of salary. With 22 years service they could get the maximum pension of 50 per cent of salary. Their salary is now $2,500 a year but is being increased to $3,000.

Passed by the senate and sent to the governor for his approval today was a bill requiring that public school teachers be paid at least $1,200 for a full school year. It would not become effective until July 1, 1946. The vote was 39 to 2.

The senate killed a bill by Sen. Schwartz [D., Chicago] to reduce the retail sales tax from 2 to 1 per cent. Democratic minority members, who have supported bills to increase biennial appropriations, gave Schwartz little support on a voice vote on his motion to take the measure from a senate committee.

Delay Action on Bonus

The house appropriations committee postponed until tomorrow its consideration of a 100 million dollar soldiers' bonus bill backed by State Secretary Barrett.

The senate confirmed a long list of reappointments announced today by the governor. These included: Theo C. Ponting, Champaign, assistant director of conservation; Louis J. Meyers, Republican 29th ward committeeman in Chicago, chief factory inspector; Ivan A. [Jack] Palmer, West Frankfort, assistant director of public works; George W. [Whitey] Williams, Shelbyville, superintendent of state parks; C. Herrick Hammond, Chicago, state architect; John D. Biggs, Greenville, chairman of commerce commission; Frank Peska, William Parillo, and Val J. Washington of Chicago, and E. A. Rosenstone of Cambridge as members of the commerce commission.

WOLF LAKE PARK PROJECT BACKED BY CIVIC GROUPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 20—Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago] today said spokesmen for civic organizations have indorsed his revised plan to develop the Illinois portion of Wolf lake as a recreational area.

The house appropriations committee, on a 34 to 0 roll call, recommended passage of Butler's bill to spend $160,000 for the purchase of adjacent property from the heirs of C. B. Shedd.

"The state and Cook county forest preserve district will own not only the bed of the lake but all abutting property for development as a recreational area serving a large number of people on Chicago's south side," said Robert Kingery, manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association, who conferred here with Butler and Cook county officials.

Kingery said the Chicago plan commission also has approved the Wolf lake development, as proposed by Butler. As a result, Illinois will be ready to duplicate the activities by the state of Indiana, which has levied a special tax for the improvement of Wolf lake on the east side of the state line.

HOLDS SECURITY PARLEY FAILS TO AID LITTLE MAN

Attorney Makes Plea in Behalf of Negros

Four hundred members of the Chicago Urban league who met last night in the Hotel Continental for the league's 29th annual meeting heard the San Francisco world security conference labeled "a tragic waste of time from the standpoint of the little people of the world."

Belford V. Lawson, Negro attorney of Washington, D. C., and a director of the Washington Urban league, asserted that neither policy nor machinery for a lasting peace had come from the conference and that "there can be no permanent peace until justice is given to the millions of little people, in India, China, and elsewhere."

Lawson coupled his blast at the security conference with a plea for "complete justice and equality" for American Negroes. Economic justice for all Americans, he said, is but one phase of a struggle for justice that is going on all over the world.

Many Move to Cities

Three-quarters of a million Negroes have moved from farm areas to the cities since 1940, and unless the government exercises controls over this unstable labor market job competition may lead to increased racial tensions, Lawson said.

A. L. Foster, executive director of the league, in a report of the organization's activities in 1945, said it now has the largest professional and clerical staff in its history. The league should begin to plan a new main building and more adequate quarters in the loop and on the west side to continue its services on an expanded scale, Foster said.

John Johnson, T. W. Champion, Dr. Taft Raines, Dr. Arthur G. Falls, and Atty. Sidney Jones Jr. were elected members of the board to fill vacancies. All other directors were reëlected for the balance of the year.

Sees Need for More Space

As far as housing is concerned, the Negro needs more space, better neighborhoods, better facilities, and an end to the cry that his presence lowers property values, Robert Weaver, director of the community service division of the American Council on Race Relations, said yesterday at a session of the institute on race relations and community organization at the University of Chicago.

Frank Horne of the federal public housing authority urged that the problem of adequate Negro housing be considered a part of the general problem of adequate housing.

The pistol, which the youths found in a nearby school yard, was held by Goralski when it fired. The bullet struck Gervais in the heart and he died in Chicago State hospital. An inquest will be held at 10 a. m. today at 6453 Irving Park rd.

FEPC REPORTS EVIL CURRENT OF RACE HATRED

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—The fair employment practice committee reported to President Truman today that "successful use of minority group workers in war industry has been achieved," with the guiding hand of government.

"The margin of our victory over religious intolerance has been narrow," the report said. "Hoodlums have attacked Jews in some of our war time cities. The dangerous undercurrent is there.

"In war industries and government service citizens of the Jewish faith have been denied opportunity to serve their country. Yet it may still be said that such cases, however symptomatic, have been relatively few in number. The spread of religious intolerance has so far been kept in check by the force of the contrary opinion of the American public."

The report was the first the committee had made since it was created by executive order May 27, 1943. The committee is now battling for its life in congress.

URGES APPROVAL OF AMENDMENT TO LIQUOR LAW

Board Head 'Puzzled' by Opposition

Describing house bill 602, pending in the Illinois legislature, as merely an amendment to the alcoholic liquor act passed 11 years ago to define powers of the control commission, Chairman Charles J. Fleck of the Illinois liquor control commission yesterday expressed disappointment that the bill has opposition from political leaders.

"For the life of me," Fleck said, "I can't see what objection Mayor Kelly can have to this bill. Sen. Daley and Rep. Rategan say they can't support the bill unless the mayor changes his views. I think the mayor's objection to some other bill has been applied mistakenly to house bill 602."

Explanation of Amendment

Fleck explained that the bill amends the act relating to alcoholic liquors enacted Jan. 31, 1934, by adding one section "which defines the commission's powers, functions, and duties."

The amendment reads: "To prescribe and enforce such rules as may be necessary or desirable to carry out the intent of this act." Two trivial changes also are made to take out obsolete wording, Fleck added.

"The purpose of the 1934 act," he continued, "is to protect the health, safety, and welfare of the people of the state of Illinois, and to insure that temperance in the consumption of alcoholic liquors shall be fostered and promoted by sound and careful control and regulation of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic liquors.

Gives Commission Authority

"So, it is apparent the purpose of the act is merely to give the commission authority to prescribe and enforce such rules as may be necessary or desirable to protect the public and promote temperance.

"The bill is not in any way detrimental to home rule."

BEDRIDDEN WIFE WINS SUPPORT; MATE REBUKED

She Appears in Court on Stretcher

Several weeks ago Earl Lange, 42, of 3424 W. 5th st., a barber, charged his wife, Nellie, 52, of 142 E. 26th st., Chicago Heights, with desertion in a bill filed in Circuit court.

Earl Lange

Mrs. Lange filed a cross complaint and appeared yesterday before Judge Michael Feinberg. She was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher, which was set down before the bench. She weighs 95 pounds.

Invalid Since 1940

"Is this the woman who is charged with deserting her husband?" the court demanded. Her attorney, Lawrence Harris, said that it was.

"She has been an arthritic invalid since June, 1940, when she was confined in St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights," Harris said. "Her husband charges she deserted him on July 28 of that year."

Questioning Mrs. Lange, the court learned that on Jan. 15, 1941, after she had been released from the hospital as a wheel chair patient, her brother-in-law, Henry Wright, of 1668 Buena Vista st., Chicago Heights, had taken her to her husband's home, which then was located in the rear of his barber shop at 5042 Lincoln av.

Wright took the stand and corroborated Mrs. Lange's story.

"Within an hour after I had left her in Lange's home, he had taken her to the home of her mother [142 E. 26th st., Chicago Heights], who also is a wheel chair patient," Wright said.

Judge Hears Enough

A year later he again delivered Mrs. Lange to her husband's barber shop, only to have her again returned to her mother's home, Wright said.

Judge Feinberg held up his hand. He had heard enough, he said.

"Do you want a divorce?" he asked. Mrs. Lange shook her head. She wanted separate maintenance, she told the court. Judge Feinberg awarded her $15 a week, which he said was all her husband's earning would justify. The judge said:

"This case is a powerful indictment of the grinding out of divorces on a mass production basis. Only the alertness of the court in discovering the facts prevented a fraud from being perpetrated. Here is proof that the whole sordid divorce business needs fumigation."

RADIO TO TELL HOW THREE WON MEDAL OF HONOR

Three marines who have been awarded the congressional medal of honor, the nation's top military decoration, are in Chicago today. They are Maj. Everett R. Pope, Wollaston, Mass.; 1st Lt. Carlton R. Rouh, Lindenwold, N. J., and Pvt. Luther Skaggs, Henderson, Ky. At 9 o'clock tonight they'll be guests on the First Line broadcast, to be aired over WBBM-CBS. It's the first time that three medal of honor holders have appeared on a radio program together. Their feats of heroism will be dramatized.

Maj. Pope led his men in capturing a strategic hill on Peleliu Island last September. His men held it despite great opposition when their ammunition gave out. They fought off the Japanese with their fists and with rocks.

Already wounded during an assault on a Japanese pillbox on the same island, Lt. Rouh threw himself on a hand grenade and saved the lives of two comrades. One of Pvt. Skaggs' legs was shattered by a grenade while in a foxhole. Instead of calling for medical aid and disclosing his outfit's position he applied a tourniquet and fought on for eight hours.

FIRST PROFITEER TAX INDICTMENT DUE NEXT WEEK

The first of a series of indictments resulting from investigations of war profiteeers and black market operators who have neglected to report their taxable earnings to the government will be returned by the federal grand jury early next week.

The first case, it was reported, will name one, or possibly several, operators of a business concern that began operations shortly after the United States entered the war. The operators will be accused of cheating the government of approximately $250,000 in taxes.

Evidence in the fraud, gathered by agents under Arthur P. Madden, head of the Chicago internal revenue intelligence unit, has been given to United States Atty. Woll and is expected to be presented to the grand jury before its adjournment June 29.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the sensationally popular perfumes of our times—it's frankly exotic and provocative and women are simply mad about it—is the scent that's been imparted, and lavishly, to a fine face powder and a smooth lipstick you might like to investigate.

The powder and lipstick aren't new, but until recently they've been on the scarce side. Now, apparently, the gears are all meshing properly in the behind-the-scenes world that produces these glamor aids, and the war-hampered mechanics of assembling contents [and the ingredients thereof], containers and labels simultaneously have been so conquered that the things are available in sufficient quantity to meet the needs of women who want this scent and no other in their two most important makeup aids.

We don't exaggerate when we say these are generously fragranced. A film of this powder is a subtle veiling of perfume as well. What's more, it's a delightful face powder of fine texture but rugged staying power in six shades that have all the fashion-rightness you could want combined with flattering wearability. We found it in our own shade, which has the exotic name of "Singapore" but is a practical, perfect medium nuance of rachel, a powder that blends on to the skin with an unusual smoothness.

The lipstick, in brilliantly beautiful colors to harmonize with the powder tints, has three good qualities—sheen, smoothness, and scent in abundance.

Packaging of both is simple, severe, in designs that are a fine foil for the opulence of their lush, perfume laden contents.

Mrs. Harold G., Chicago—To make an emergency fire extinguisher, my husband fitted a bottle of charged water with a short hose and nozzle. Pressure inside a quart bottle will throw a stream of water nearly 30 feet. We keep this handy, for it can be relied on to extinguish a small blaze.

Miss Teresa H., Traverse City, Mich.—I've learned that no nice, bright electric iron should be left standing uncovered in a kitchen. In no time it will acquire what my mother calls a "kitchen haze."

Peace Charter Hailed as Gain Despite Flaws

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

The Rock River [Northern Illinois] Methodist conference, opening its 106th annual meeting in Chicago temple yesterday, heard the peace charter being completed at San Francisco praised and criticized at afternoon sessions. The Rev. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston, chairman of the conference peace commission, led a symposium on the subject.

Dr. Tittle prefaced specific criticisms of the charter by stating that it "leaves a great deal to be desired, but a faulty start in the direction of international coöperation is better than no start at all. A return to international anarchy and chaos might well lead to the destruction of civilization as we know it."

The veto provision was condemned by Dr. Tittle as "unfair and unwise" because under it "the veto of any great power may prevent official investigation of an international dispute or any other action looking toward a peaceful settlement. It should be renounced." Dr. Tittle also denounced the chapter on trusteeship, even tho it "is a step in advance of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which contain no reference to colonial and dependent peoples whatever.

"But the trusteeship section, when it speaks of development toward self-government, uses the weasel phrases 'appropriate to the varying circumstances' and 'appropriate to the particular circumstances,'" Dr. Tittle explained.

"Moreover, a nation when it is awarded a trusteeship may designate as a 'strategic area' part or whole of the territory to which the arrangement applies, which then removes that area from the general supervision of the general assembly. The chapter offers less protection to colonial and dependent peoples than was afforded them by the mandate provisions of the old league of nations."

"Colored peoples will have to be given a break if peace is to be maintained," he said. "We cannot in good conscience be a party to dismantling Japanese colonial possessions without at the same time insisting that the imperialism of the white man be stopped. We cannot have a sound world community so long as there is enforced submission of one people to the will of another, whether in India, Corea, the Congo, or anywhere else."

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Washington, D. C., will address afternoon and night sessions today. Bishop J. Ralph Magee of the Chicago area is presiding at sessions and will read pastoral appointments at the conclusion of the sessions Sunday afternoon.

Blouse and Skirt

Blouse and skirt teams simply won't die, in the fashion sense. They're too comfortable and versatile, so this year the designers have brought out even smarter versions of the peasant blouse and dirndl skirt combination. This one may have sheer blouses contrasting with plaid or printed skirts, or the two may match in color. Style No. 2929 is designed for sizes 9 to 17. Size 15 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material for blouse; 1¾ yards for skirt.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

A Small Child Is Often Upset by Excitement

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Sunday dinner was in progress—one of those midday family Sunday dinners with visitors. The baby—10 months old—was in his high chair at the table, too, having his first taste of minced beef [there just hadn't been any in the house before] with a little clear dish gravy and some rice mashed down with a spoon. Also he was having only his second family dinner—for his lunch and supper were usually early and eaten before the family ate.

His mother fed him and herself alternately, as the talkative family chattered vociferously. Soon the baby, altho he'd had a nap earlier, got very fussy and "yippy," and nobody, certainly not his mother, could relax.

"Why not take him upstairs where he can be quiet for a little while?" said the baby's grandmother. "After all, this chatter and clatter probably is very confusing for him."

The baby's mother acted on the suggestion and soon the baby settled down and murmured contentedly to his little washable elephant and a bright yellow real lemon [scrubbed]—the latter a special favorite of his!

"I'll remember that," said the baby's mother. "I suppose babies need solitude and calmness to relax their nerves and regain their poise after excitement, just the way adults do."

"Yes," said the baby's grandmother. "Sometimes babies and little children need to be gently snatched away for a little while from too long stretches of unaccustomed excitements."

You may remember we were talking yesterday about the fact that a mother needs to "use her head" more often than she usually does, both in looking for causes or in finding remedies for her baby's or older child's behavior, when it seems puzzling or out of line. This is a simple instance of what I mean.

Lake Geneva Ready to Greet Its Usual Rush of Vacationers

BY JUDITH CASS

NOW that "sumer is icumen in," ushered in today by the longest day of the year, the near-by resort of Lake Geneva, Wis., is ready to welcome its usual rush of summer colonists and visitors. The Lake Geneva Country club will serve its traditional 4th of July lobster luncheon, including the same lobster and crabmeat delicacies that members and their families have enjoyed for many years. The secret recipes from which these dishes are concocted first were given to the club in 1898 by three charter members who were notable gourmets of the period, Tracy Drake, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Martin A. Ryerson.

At the Big Foot Country club across the lake, July 4 will be marked by special golf tournaments and other sports events. Members are looking forward to an "Old Fashioned Cotillion" planned for July 14 as a special party in a series of Saturday night dances. Among those on the committee are Dr. and Mrs. Melford E. Zinser, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Libberton, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Neill, Ernst C. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Emery, and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Colwell.

The Lake Geneva Garden club will hold its first meeting of the season July 11 at Black Point, Dr. and Mrs. William F. Petersen's summer home. Paul Starck, who has made a hobby of raising apples, will speak on that subject.

The Lake Geneva Fresh Air association as yet has not set a definite date for its annual rummage sale, which will take place in mid-July. The association sponsors Holiday home, a summer camp at the lake for Chicago children. Another benefit for the home will be given July 21 at the Big Foot Country club, with Mrs. Robert Tarrant as chairman. On her committee will be Mr. and Mrs. James T. Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. S. Austin Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. William Braer, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Megran, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Sexton.

Coming Events

Because of a conflict with a similar event in Lexington, Ky., which regularly attracts a number of the best show horses from this area, Mrs. Louis F. Swift has decided to change the date of her fifth annual Galloping Hills horse show in Wheaton from July 8 to July 15. This year the usual costume parade will be omitted from the program, but added for the first time will be a square dance on horseback, with the participants appearing on silver palominos. The little Galloping Hills club located in a grove of trees on the farm again will be open for luncheon and refreshments and will feature barbecued chicken, supplied from the Swifts' home-raised flock.

Mrs. Clayton Dunham and Mrs. Walter Hughes, who are in charge of the Glencoe ticket committee for the Illinois Opera guild's benefit July 6, will entertain at luncheon today in Mrs. Dunham's home for members of their committee. Tomorrow south siders who are selling tickets for the benefit, the opening night performance of "Ballet Russe Highlights" in Orchestra Hall, will meet for tea in the home of Mrs. Laban J. Brady.

Spotlighted on the program, which will include excerpts from classical and modern ballets, will be Irina Baronova, Andre Eglevsky, Yurek Lazowski, Rosella Hightower, Kathryn Lee, Anna Istomina, and Leonide Massine. Some of those who have purchased boxes are Mrs. George Wrisley, Mrs. Elmer Jewell Dick chairman of the benefit; Mrs. Brady, who will turn her box over to the Frank Hechts since she is leaving to spend the summer in

More Questions, Please

Other questions in "Careers in business for women" pertaining to personality:

"Did you make many friends in school, win the liking of your teachers, and get along serenely? In all likelihood you will repeat this experience in business.

"Or did you carry a feud with another girl? You probably will develop a feud with some one in the office and create a good many troubles for yourself—including the risk of dismissal.

"Were you able to accept criticism in a thoughtful, analytical frame of mind? You will accept criticism from your superiors in the office gracefully—to every one's relief.

"Or were you outraged, engulfed in depression, taking for granted that it was unjust? You may run into difficulties in the office if you react in this fashion. Nearly all criticism of an employe is impersonal and is made with the idea of improving efficiency. Only your skill and usefulness as an employe matter."

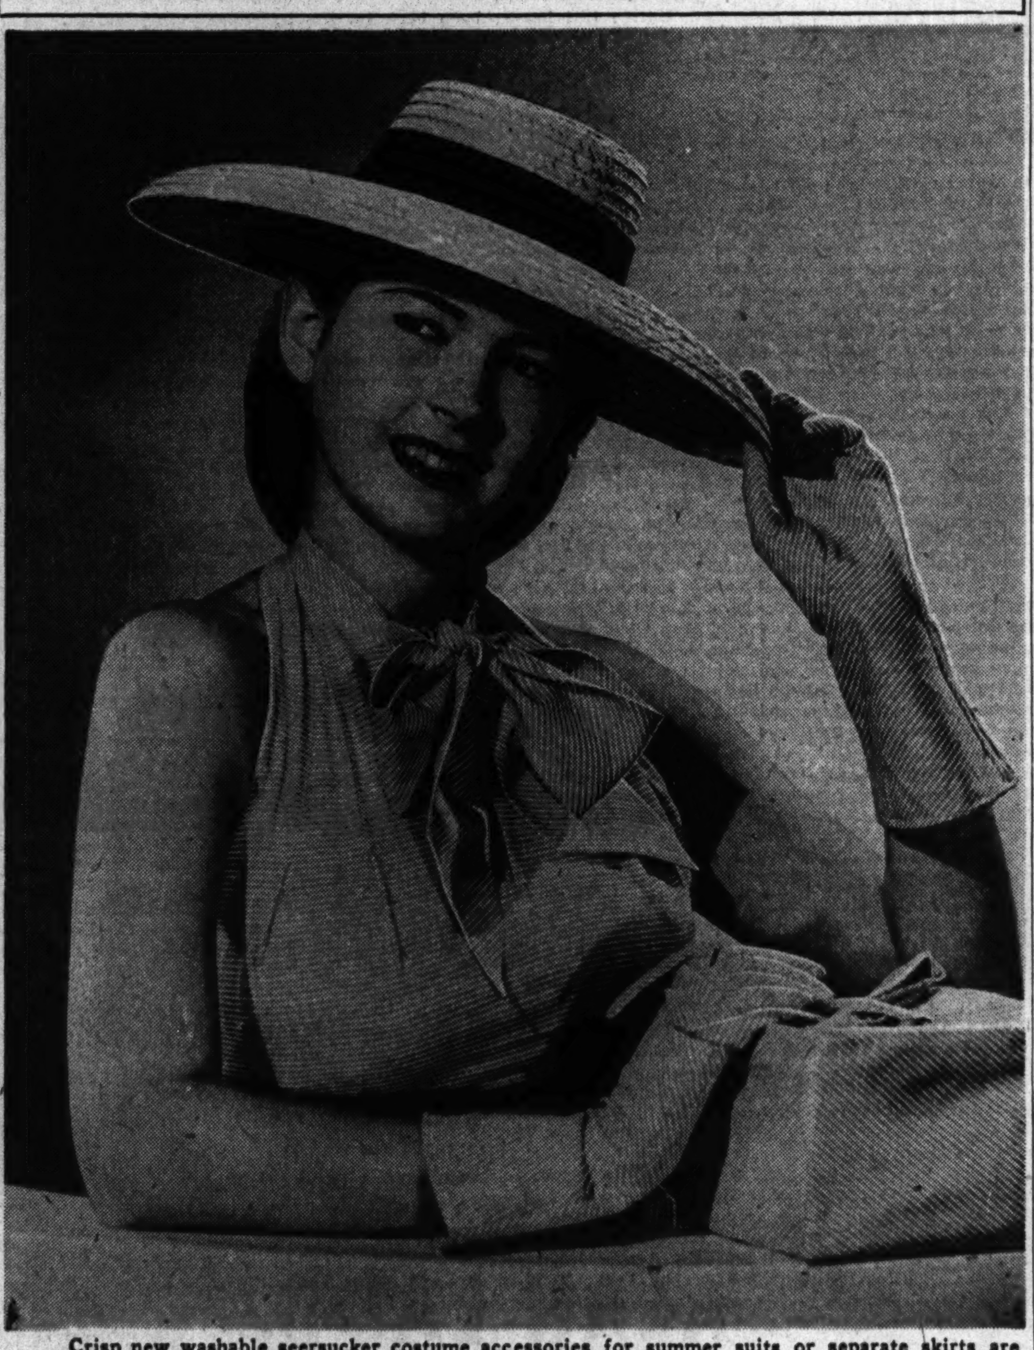
Clever Seersucker Costume Accessories for Summer



Crisp new washable seersucker costume accessories for summer suits or separate skirts are cleverly designed for contrast with dark street cottons and rayons. Here are slip-on gloves, square handbags, and halter vestee in fine rib brown and white seersucker. The wide brimmed straw hat is of almost the same tint as the seersucker. All are available in a Chicago store.

Aids to Spic and Span Grooming

BY REA SEEGER

Cotton costume accessories will reach the height of their popularity during the summer weeks, when spic and span grooming, possible only with liberal treatments of soap and water, spotlight their washable qualities. This summer the cotton pickings are especially tempting, for clever designers have really worked magic with this typical hot weather material. Some of the smartest accessories of the year are cotton gilets, cotton gloves, bags, blouses, and the newest of all, the trick tie-on fake blouses without sleeves.

Two time honored cottons get attention from designer and appreciative shopper. They are seersucker and pique. Both are used for the new cotton accessories with some very effective results. The snowy white piques, crisp and sleek, make small hats. Some have the narrow brims of a pert sailor, others are a matter of a small disc with half a down tailored bow around the edge, others come in the Dutch bonnet models, and there are uncompromisingly straight-up hats suspiciously like a stove pipe.

New contrasts this summer are the open work lattice effects, braids of pique and open work scrolls, all used right in with the more solid sections of the hats. Wisps of contrasting veiling are also provocative accents in gray, blue, brown, green, or black, usually matching the grosgrain ribbon around the crown. Exquisitely tailored slip-on gloves of white pique complete the pique collections.

Narrow ribbed washable seersucker is one of the newest and most versatile contrasts for a dark summer suit. You'll find handbags, gloves, wreath hats, and interestingly designed vestees and sleeveless blouses, all made of this smooth fabric. The usual color contrasts of brown and white, blue and white, green and white, and a few red and whites are used with knowing skill to make these very smart seersucker costume accessories.

Mrs. Chapman Is Named Head of Clubwomen

BY IRENE STEYSKAL

Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman of Jerseyville is the new president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Her election was announced at a dinner party in the Stevens hotel last night. The dinner followed a day long meeting of the state board of directors.

A former resident of Chicago and still an active member of the Chicago Woman's club, Mrs. Chapman was the 20th district's candidate. She is the first president to be elected by mail ballot, the voting system necessitated by cancellation this year of the annual state convention. Mrs. Chapman won in a lively contest in which she was opposed by Mrs. Robert W. Roper of Kewanee.

Mrs. E. E. Byerrum of Warrenville was elected vice president of the northern region, winning over Mrs. Charles C. Wells of Evanston. The central region vice presidency went to Mrs. Harry H. Messick of Charleston, who won over Mrs. George W. Wickstrom of Rock Island. Mrs. Cecil Max Kell of Salem, unopposed, was elected recording secretary.

The new president of the Illinois federation was educated at the Universities of Wisconsin and Chicago. She taught in Chicago high schools and at Monticello college in Godfrey, Ill. She is a trustee both of Monticello and Blackburn college, and has been the 8th region director of the Illinois War council's women's division since the council was organized.

Mrs. Chapman succeeds Mrs. Walter M. Rennie of Chicago. In her presidential report to the state board yesterday Mrs. Rennie announced that voluntary contributions from clubwomen of the federation for the erection of a greenhouse at Vaughan General hospital has reached $33,982, almost $9,000 more than the goal originally set for the project. The greenhouse is to be used in occupational therapy, and also will supply flowers for bed patients, she said.

More than 16 million dollars in war stamps and bonds have been sold thru Illinois clubwomen, Mrs. Rennie reported, and four collegiate nursing scholarships of $250 each have been given, while a fifth scholarship of the same amount is to be awarded this summer. More than one thousand dollars in scholarship aid to student nurses has been given, she said.

Federation leaders participated yesterday in the dedication of two lounges to be used by men sent to the redistribution center at Navy pier. Furnishings for the rooms were purchased with a gift of $4,000 from Illinois clubwomen.

Dowling Note

Fall, Yes, But

When "Oklahoma!" skipped Chicago in the full cry of a capacity engagement the Theater guild said it would return in the fall. Depends on which fall. It comes back to the Erlanger Aug. 12, 1946.

Luncheon Speakers Acclaim Negroes' 6th Music Festival

The sixth annual American Negro Music festival, which will be held Friday evening, July 20, in Comiskey park, was indorsed by a group of Chicago citizens, both Negro and white, yesterday at a luncheon in the La Salle hotel. The luncheon was arranged by Whipple Jacobs, vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Speakers included W. Louis Davis, director of the festival; Miss Edith Sampson, Negro attorney, and Philip Maxwell, director of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's annual music festival in Soldiers' field. Among the guests at the speakers' table were Sheriff Mulcahey, Judge Jacob M. Braude, and John A. Sengstacke, editor of the Chicago Defender. The Rev. John Timothy Stone gave the invocation.

The week of July 13 to 20 has been proclaimed by Mayor Kelly as American Negro Festival Inter-Racial Good Will Week, in tribute to the event. The festival program also will be given at Walsh stadium in St. Louis, Mo., on July 23 and at Olympia stadium in Detroit, Mich., on July 26.

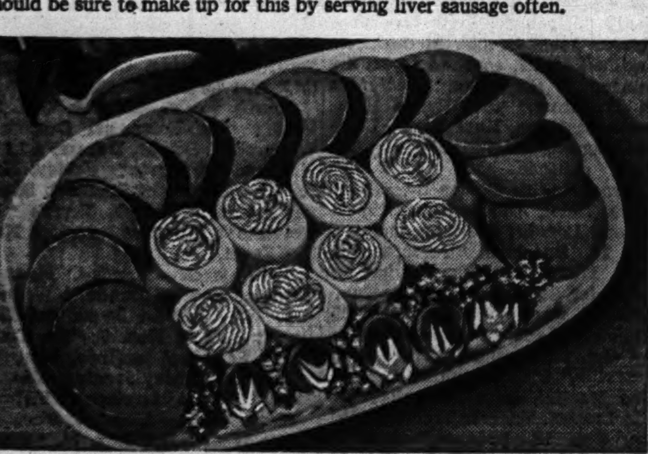
WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

By George Rector
Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

Liver Sausage...Ace of Cold Cuts

Just as liver is one of the very best of meats from a nutritional standpoint, so is liver sausage one of the most nutritious of the cold cuts. Because liver as a hot dish is likely to be served less frequently in the summertime, you should be sure to make up for this by serving liver sausage often.



Liver Sausage and Deviled Eggs---for a Supper Treat

If you want true enjoyment, be sure to get Wilson's Certified Braunschweiger Liver Sausage. It really has flavor perfection. Cut it on the bias for greater eye appeal.

There's a knack to hard-cooking eggs without having the yolks discolor. Place Wilson's Clear Brook Eggs in cool water to cover. Bring to boiling point slowly, reduce heat and let simmer, covered, about 10 minutes. Drain, cool quickly with running water and keep chilled in refrigerator until ready to use. It's the quick cooling that does the trick.

Menu Ideas

With the Liver Sausage and Deviled Egg Platter, you'll find this menu particularly good: Start with a cup of hot B-V or a cold B-V tomato juice cocktail. Either one is a mighty refreshing way to add extra food value. Follow through with escalloped potatoes made interesting with chives, carrot sticks and celery curls, hot baking powder biscuits and marmalade with fresh raspberries and cream for dessert.

Liver Sausage Packs a Wallop

The chart below shows that liver sausage, although used in a much smaller serving, compares favorably with a larger serving of pork liver. Since Wilson's Certified Braunschweiger Liver Sausage is so rich in iron, vitamin A and riboflavin and furnishes a goodly amount of thiamine, it is a wise homemaker who includes it often in summertime menus to help keep her family up to top-notch health.

Sincerely,
GEORGE RECTOR

COMPARISON OF NUTRITIVE VALUE OF AVERAGE SIZED SERVING OF PORK LIVER AND LIVER SAUSAGE†

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright: 1945: By Roy Vickers)

SYNOPSIS: Gillian Benyon comes to Tenstable to act as companion to Mrs. Steel, widow of Andrew Steel, who practically owned the town before his death. By the terms of his will Mrs. Steel must leave her vast wealth to ONE of her late husband's relatives, otherwise the estate passes in trust to the township of Tenstable. Mr. Hanshew warns Gillian against accepting the position. Mrs. Steel has a pet canary, which Ruth, her housekeeper, advises her not to treat as she did the others. She can't buy another, without gossip. Mrs. Steel invites Mr. Hanshew to her birthday party, at which he will meet her husband's relatives. Gillian learns her father was Andrew Steel's second cousin. Mr. Hanshew is manager of the Steel factory. Mrs. Steel asks Gillian to start work at once, and telephones to the department store to outfit her. Mrs. Steel's preference, not Gillian's, are adhered to by the saleslady.

INSTALMENT IV.

UNHEALTHY SYMPTOM

This was too much for Gillian. She turned to the saleswoman. "Perhaps I had better leave you to choose my clothes for me," she said ironically.

"You don't want to have half the things sent back," returned the saleswoman, unruffled. "Try this on, please. You can use a fitting room if you wish."

It was a black chiffon. Fortunately Gillian could wear black—she might almost have picked on it herself. But the pleasure had vanished.

Two more evening frocks—both black. Three of everything or multiples of three were being put aside for her. Undies in heavy white silks in piles of six. Three outdoor suits — all black and white and gray. Black or gray shoes. Gray gloves and hats and hats and stockings—and Gillian loved color!

"We've done everything now except slumberwear," announced the saleswoman. "That'll be downstairs."

Here, surely, she would be allowed to choose for herself.

"I saw some yellow pajamas in the window this afternoon . . . "

"Mrs. Steel," she was informed, "has never 'accepted' pajamas." To one of her assistants: "Nightdresses. White ones."

Within an hour they had finished with her. And Gillian, she felt, had finished with them. When the parcels had been stocked inside the car, she got in beside the chauffeur. She had forgotten all about Mrs. Steel's embroidery silk.

"Will you take me to the station, please?"

The man made no answer but drove her to the station.

"And will you," she said as she got out, "please tell Mrs. Steel that I am sorry I cannot return and that I am writing."

Again the chauffeur made no answer, but she knew he had heard. She went to the cloakroom, produced her voucher and asked for her suitcase.

"Your suitcase has gone up to the house, Miss Beynon," the clerk informed her. "Mrs. Steel telephoned for it."

For a moment she felt something approaching panic. She went to the refreshment room and ordered herself a strong cup of tea.

"Nerves!" she exclaimed. "And I can't afford nerves." There was that telegram she had sent to her mother. Where else, with her lack of training, could she hope for work which would enable her to send a pound a week home? And why should she object to wearing black and white and gray? If it were a uniform she wouldn't object.

"I've made a fool of myself. I've got to walk up that beastly hill again and explain what I said to that beastly chauffeur."

To her surprise, the car was still in the station yard—with its load of parcels. The chauffeur opened the door. Gillian got in.

The news that Mrs. Steel had engaged a companion traveled thru the town like wildfire. Ralph Hanshew, working late, heard it from his secretary.

"What a pity!" he muttered under his breath—but he was not thinking of Mrs. Steel. He knew quite clearly that he intended to see her again.

"Miss Adams, it's a bit late, but I'd like to dictate a report of my interview with the bank. You can copy it first thing in the morning. I'm taking it personally to Mrs. Steel tomorrow morning."

"Very well, Mr. Hanshew."

"O, by the way it's Mrs. Steel's birthday on Friday. You might see that some flowers are sent, with my card, will you? If I can squeeze out the time I'd better run up and offer congratulations on behalf of the firm."

"But, Mr. Hanshew — flowers? Mrs. Steel is known to dislike them so!"

Hanshew frowned. "You're right. I forgot. Don't send any." To himself, he muttered: "Unhealthy symptom in a woman—not liking flowers."

By early evening, rumor had overtaken the news. The new companion was a relation. Mrs. Steel had nominated her as heir. Mr. Tollerman was disturbed, just as he was making ready for bed, by Simon Steel, Andrew's brother, acting as spokesman for the rest of the Steel relations.

"Yes. Gillian, daughter of the late Rev. Charles Beynon would be eligible for nomination as heir," pronounced Mr. Tollerman.

So far, the family still had a chance. And the family meant to make the most of it.

Gillian had hardly been back in the house half an hour before all feeling of indignity about the clothes vanished. Mrs. Steel, who had forgotten about the embroidery silk, took a girlish delight in helping to open the parcels, in handling the new things.

"Isn't it wonderful! You have chosen everything that I would have chosen for you." Mrs. Steel exclaimed. "I expect we shall go on finding that we have lots of likings in common. And dislikes, too. I see we both dislike colors."

Gillian found herself believing that the saleswoman had not acted on instruction, after all.

After a dainty meal, served by the formidable looking Ruth, there followed a quiet evening of friendliness. Mrs. Steel showed her photographs, including her own wedding group which, except for bride and groom, consisted of Andrew Steel's relations.

"They'll all be here on Friday," said Mrs. Steel, and went on to tell her their names and occupations. Most of the men had positions in the various Steel industries.

"That's Benjamin Steel, my husband's cousin—he has gone white and he looks much older—he's night watchman at the factory."

Gillian must have shown her surprise, for Mrs. Steel added: "No, my husband didn't leave them any money. He trusted me to provide for them if I should think fit."

Gillian shivered. For an instant the charm of Mrs. Steel had been cut by some cross-current, pronounced but indefinable.

Then a clock chimed 10, the door opened, and Ruth came in with a tray on which were two glasses of hot milk. Mrs. Steel, all smiles again, handed Gillian a little silver key.

"That cabinet in the corner — would you mind, dear? You'll find a bottle of tablets—I always take one before going up to bed. For my nerves."

Gillian produced the tablet. While she was so doing she could hear Ruth stumping upstairs to bed. Something jingled as she walked along the upper corridor. Like the jingle of keys carried by a wardress?

Gillian shook off the morbid thought. Soon she went to bed. Drowsiness came as her head touched the pillow; the last mental picture was of the man who had warned her to go home. He was wrong, of course. But he was not the kind of man who would be wrong often. He was the kind you could rely on.

'Wonder Man' Is Wonderfully Crazy Movie

"WONDER MAN"

Produced by Samuel Goldwyn, released by RKO-Radio, directed by Bruce Humberstone, featuring Danny Kaye, Virginia Mayo, Vera Ellen, Donald Woods, S. Z. Sakall, Allen Jenkins, Edward Brophy, Steve Cochran, Otto Kruger, Richard Lane, Natalie Schafer, Huntz Hall, Virginia Gilmore, Ed Gargan, Alice Mock, Grant Mitchell, and Gisela Werbiseck. Presented at the Woods.

By Mae Tinée

Brooklynites and those who take their opera seriously may be a bit miffed at "Wonder Man," but it would be a shame if any one let a little thing like a thin skin interfere with seeing some really good fun.

If opera has seemed a bit ridiculous to you at times, you'll enjoy the perfect parody of it in this picture, particularly the bit of musical dialog with the soprano giving out at the top of her lungs and clutching the hapless Danny Kaye to her ample bosom. She screams, he shouts, and the orchestra slaps back at them, while the prompter goes quietly insane in his little box. Those of us who have had "Otchi Tchorniya" shouted at us for years chuckled happily thru Mr. Kaye's little rendition of that tortured opus, especially the part in which his own gestures run away with him completely.

To me, Mr. Kaye's greatest talent is not his expressive face and body or his fluid gestures; it's his versatile voice and his able use of it. His speech can be flip and jivey, clipped and cultured, weakly embarrassed or brassily glib, depending on the situation.

Vera Ellen is at a disadvantage as to looks — "Wonder Man" has a number of extremely beautiful girls who are really luscious in technicolor—but how the lady can dance! Her number has a fleetness and unconventionality that is very similar to Fred Astaire's work—and what a team they would be.

Danny plays two parts — Buzzy Bellew, who dropped his own name when he became a night club singer and who'd never be found in Brooklyn while still alive [here's where Brooklyn gets sore], and his bookish twin, Edwin Dingle, who is suffering from a number of things but mostly a polysyllabic word meaning fear of women.

Altho the bookworm hasn't seen his twin for years, he's apparently wired for sound, and in moments of stress, such as a murder, he hears music and is impelled to search out his brother, even tho he originally was seeking potato salad. Edwin, so smart he takes notes with both hands, is forced by events to impersonate his puckish twin, and Buzzy leaves him in the lurch at some pretty awkward moments — all of which results in opportunities for some pretty good gags.

"Wonder Man" is not another "Up in Arms," but it's nonsense far above the average, and Mr. Kaye is as wonderfully crazy as ever.

ORPHAN ANNIE

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 20—Oscar Hammerstein II., who came out here to confer with Otto Preminger about the life of his father, the great Hammerstein, returned to New York with another assignment. Oscar is going to write Alice Faye's next, which will be a strong story with music which Preminger will produce. Everybody's mighty happy about it, including Alice. . . . John McNulty is heading for New York and Narragansett pier for an eight weeks' holiday. He and Anna Froelick have finished "Third Avenue," based on some of McNulty's New Yorker stories, for Paramount. The yarn was designed for that irascible lover, Barry Fitzgerald. Incidentally, McNulty loves Hollywood. . . . Ginger Rogers is able to vacation with her husband, Sgt. Jack Briggs, until the end of June before "Heartbeat" begins. Briggs was in on the start of the Okinawa invasion. . . . You'll rejoice with me that the John Garfields, who suffered such a tragic loss when their 6 year old child died, are going to have another baby. . . . If Lon McAllister is carrying a torch for Jeanne Crain, Alaska will sure cool him off, 'cause that's where he's gonna be. "Winged Victory" is no more, and those boys are being used as combat replacements.

The Line Formed to Right!

Nancy Guild, University of Arizona freshman whose picture in which she was wearing GI togs appeared in a magazine last week, is slightly confused. One columnist had it that Frank Borzage signed her for "Concerto." Frank has never talked to her. The first man to get thru to her was Rufus Lemaire of 20th Century. She's signed with 20th to test for "Forever Amber" and is now being coached for it. Every studio in town wanted her. David Selznick called up in person [imagine that!], but the kick of the whole thing was the agents. One, who shall be nameless [but he belongs to a giant corporation], told Nancy's mother it would be criminal if she let her daughter sign for less than $750 a week and he personally would make sure she got that. Well, she's not getting it, and she's happy with the present arrangement. She's quite a girl—as sweet as her picture.

She Who Got Herself Chased

Before Buddy De Sylva became ill, he had been huddling over the rights to "Perils of Pauline" for Betty Hutton. Remember Pearl White? In Pearl's day it was a serial. This could easily be done as a series of pictures a la the Hardys. If they're made they'll be in a kidding vein and not seriously as "Perils" were in the beginning. O, boy, were they corny! Shur-re, and it takes an old goat like me to remember them, too. . . . It appears Walter Huston is lost to "Duel in the Sun." He's recovering from an operation in New York and is still considering doing "Oliver Wendell Holmes" on the New York stage. . . . A pat to George Pal for those animated maps in "To the Shores of Iwo Jima." . . . Fritz Lang has obtained a special table for daily luncheons at Universal. It's called the Shudder club. Charter members who lunch with him are Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi, and a seat is set for Peter Lorre. They're trying to get Humphrey Bogart over from Warners, but he's still feeding Baby, and there isn't a shudder in a mouthful.

Anyway, It's Just Half Bad

Susan Hayward and Jess Barker really had a tough break over the week-end. Their painter and paperhanger, who was doing a job in their house, was drafted when the job was half done. . . . Jane Withers' singing of "I Put a Penny in the Slot, and All I Got Was Five Little Peanuts" was a bit of all right. Hoagy Carmichael thought so, too, and wants her back for another guest spot.

Sulking Girl Often Finds Self on Limb

BY SHEILA JOHN DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

On the SOLID side

Many a gal, otherwise smart and smooth, seems to take a special delight in spicing her date life with the old "kiss and make-up" routine, finding small, irrelevant things to cause argument and put a friendship to test. Often a boy is so fond of a gal that he takes her sulking seriously but even the most good natured joe can stand nagging just so long and then it's all over but the pouting. Here's a note from a girl who is unhappy because her sailor boy [who only has nine dozen other things on his mind!] isn't more "considerate." It goes this way:

"He's 19 and I'm 18. We met while in high school, but live in different towns now. He always seemed crazy about me—in fact, I am the only girl he dates. He dated frequently before he went into service, and several months ago, on a two day leave, he took a bus to my home and spent the afternoon with me. He asked me for my picture and I sent it. I didn't hear from him for three weeks and when he did write, saying he had been so busy, he never even mentioned the picture!

"He's careless at times and then is sorry about it all after I tell him I am disappointed in him. Well, after this instance, I answered him, said I was very hurt and asked that he return the picture. He wrote back saying he couldn't part with it and that he loved me and hoped I would consider marrying him after the war. I answered that letter and now I haven't heard from him in two weeks! How can I make him more considerate?"

Boys in the service have a lot more to do than to become honor members in pen pal clubs. Your joe has told you that he's busy, why not believe him? He's told you that he loves you, why not believe that, too?

The actual bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass

On certain hands it is important for partner to know not necessarily how much you have, but where you have it. Many times you may say to yourself: "If my partner's values are principally in hearts I cannot use them, but if they are in diamonds they will fit my hand very well. I wish I knew the facts."

Today's hand is of that type. East's response of two clubs is proper but tended to have a dampening effect on West's spirits, because clubs were exactly what he was not interested in. Nevertheless, the jump to three spades was justified. East sensed the possible slam and invited it by over bidding the game. West studied carefully and then decided to pass, and I do not think his decision is open to criticism. He has made an exceptional jump with a hand containing only 2½ honor tricks and based almost entirely on distribution. There was the further consideration that partner's response was in clubs, which has not improved his hand at all.

Actually East has a hand that is equal to an opening bid with the additional value of a doubleton diamond in support of spades. The fact that his values contain two controls [aces] should not be lost sight of. If East wishes to engage in direct bidding his proper call is six spades.

However, I think the hand should be treated with more precision. Over three spades, East should bid four hearts. West can now do no better than return to four spades. East now shows the ace of diamonds, after which West can contract for slam. The fear that partner's values are essentially clubs has vanished.

The grand slam should not be bid, because it depends upon a successfu trump finesse, which makes it a very poor gamble. Before stretching a sure small slam into a grand slam you should be almost certain of its fulfillment. Roughly speaking, the odds should be three to one in your favor.

AIR MAIL SENT TO MIAMI PAYS SPEED DIVIDEND

It's 2 Days Faster than First Class in Test

(This is the third of a series of articles on tests made by The Tribune to compare the speed of mail now with that before the war.)

BY EDWIN KENNEDY

The Tribune mail test shows that the delivery of air mail between Chicago and Miami, Fla., a distance of 1,312 air miles, is two days faster than that of first class mail. Here is where an 8 cent air mail stamp pays real dividends.

Deliveries of both kinds of mail between Chicago and Miami follow a uniform pattern, and Miami is the first city in the test whose air mail has a two day advantage over regular mail. An air letter mailed to that city in 1939 took nearly six hours longer for delivery than one mailed under similar circumstances in the recent test.

A first class letter mailed to Miami in 1939, however, required 26 hours and 30 minutes for delivery, a whole day faster than in the latest test. Postal authorities have given as a reason for this the fact that plane service to the Florida city has been speeded up while train service is slower.

Air mail service between Chicago and Houston, Tex., a distance of 1,046 miles by air mail route, was slightly slower, on an average, but first class mail was a day faster than service to and from Miami.

Times for Tests Shown

Postal service between Chicago and three other southern cities, Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala., and New Orleans, La., compared favorably with minor tests made to those cities in 1939. The average elapsed times of deliveries between Chicago and southern cities show:

	Air mail hrs.-mins.	1st class mail. hrs.-mins.
To Miami	20:24	66:42
From Miami	23:09	63:33
To Atlanta	18:21	42:23
From Atlanta	21:55	43:26
To New Orleans	24:43	43:46
From New Orleans	20:48	40:10
To Houston	27:06	47:21
From Houston	20:08	44:21
To Birmingham	25:00	43:34
From Birmingham	19:33	39:19

The higher average times of deliveries for air letters from Chicago to the cities of New Orleans, Houston, and Birmingham were caused in each case by one letter being delayed because of a grounded plane or air express priorities.

Air Express on Priority

Richard E. Pollard, regional superintendent of air mail service for this area, said air express which has military priorities has delayed air mail in the past. If there is no room on a plane for air mail after air express with priorities has been put aboard, the air mail must wait for the next plane or, in some cases, be sent by train. Pollard said, however, that there is less air express being shipped on priorities at the present time.

Air mail between Chicago and Atlanta, New Orleans, Birmingham, and Houston was delivered during the business hours of the next day, while first class mail was delivered, as a general rule, during the business hours of the second day.

A first class letter mailed in New Orleans at 9:30 a. m., however, was delivered to THE TRIBUNE at 1:25 p. m. the next day. A first class letter dispatched from Chicago to New Orleans at 10 a. m. was not delivered there until the morning of the second day.

[Another article in the series of tests will be printed in an early issue.]

FINDS WIFE DEAD IN THEIR HOME AT LAKE FOREST

Mrs. Anna Huestis, 40, of 40 S. June terr., Lake Forest, was found dead by her husband, Chester E., Chicago sales representative for a Philadelphia plumbing and heating concern, when he returned home last night.

Huestis told police the doors were locked. He broke in and found his wife's body in the kitchen. Gas jets of the stove were open. A suicide note, addressed to "Dear Daddy," said, "I am all mixed up . . . this will help make your life more secure." It ended, "Good-by, my love, Mommie."

Dr. Theodore Proxmire, under whose care Mrs. Huestis had been since a major operation in January, said she had suffered from depressive psychosis. Mrs. Huestis also is survived by two sons, Jack, with the navy at Okinawa, and Thomas, 14.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

JUNE 20, 1945.

THREE species that are common subjects of debate among bird fans are being seen now on middle western farms. We found all three of these species—kingbirds, Indigo buntings, and housewrens—on the Wheaton farm this week and recalled discussions of the farm workers about their merits and faults.

The kingbird is known by every farmer because of its feeding habits. This slate colored bird is easily identified by the band of white at the tips of its tail feathers and usually may be found perched on fence rails, which provide ideal starting points for their feeding flights. Like swallows and purple martins, the kingbirds feed on the wing, and the farmers' complaint is that they consume too many bees. Farmers who grow clover and other hay crops depend upon the bee for pollenization, so the kingbird isn't one of their favorites.

Anathema to Beekeepers

The kingbird, inevitably, is a villain of the first rank among bee keepers, but disinterested farm visitors who enjoy artistry of bird flight can spend hours watching the acrobatic kingbirds dart to and fro in search of flying insects.

Altho farmers grumble about the kingbirds' feeding habits, they applaud the plucky bird's attacks on crows. Most small birds avoid the bullying crows, but the kingbirds are different. We have seen four or five kingbirds soar up to battle the slow flying black birds and peck the larger birds so unmercifully that they hasten from the kingbirds' feeding areas.

Wren a Scrappy Bird

The kingbirds' attacks on crows are simulated by housewrens' tactics against neighboring birds. The wren is welcomed by most farmers and suburbanites because of its cheerful morning song, but this plucky little bird at times is overly aggressive in his attacks on other songbirds. As a result the person who wants a variety of birds around his house usually doesn't erect nesting boxes with the latchstring out to visiting wrens.

Another bird on this week's list, the Indigo bunting, often is the victim of mistaken identity. There's no mistaking the male bird, with his rich blue body and sleek black wings, but the timid female bunting often is slandered as a sparrow. The female is a grayish-brown bird, about the size of an English sparrow, with just a trace of light blue on her shoulders and tail.

★ The GARDEN ★

APHIDS [plant lice] are damaging tomato plants in many areas this year. Aphid attacks on tomatoes are unusual. The insects are tiny, usually dark green or light pink, and attach themselves to both the stems and undersides of the leaves. They live by sucking plant juices, and unless checked will cause the leaves to curl and kill the plants.

Nicotine sulphate is the specific insecticide for aphids. It may be applied either in liquid or dust form. There is some danger of introducing tomato mosaic disease by the use of nicotine, but this disease can only cause a reduction of yield, whereas aphids may completely destroy the plants. Rotenone also controls aphids, and is preferred by some gardeners. Whatever is used, gardeners should be sure to spray upward from the base of the plant, because most of the aphids are on the bottoms of the leaves. If re-infestation occurs, watch weeds along the garden; these growths may be host plants for aphids.

JUDGE NOMINEE ACCUSED OF AID TO COMMUNISTS

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Charges of communism, fraud, and corruption were presented today at a senate judiciary subcommittee hearing on the nomination of Arthur A. Koscinski, Detroit attorney, to be a federal judge.

Opposition to President Truman's nomination of Koscinski to be judge of the eastern Michigan federal District court came from Edward von Kozlow of Hamtramck, Detroit suburb, and his attorney, Larry S. Davidow.

Davidow accused Koscinski of "association with Communist organizations," saying a report of the old Dies committee listed him as playing a part in the American Slav congress. He labeled the congress "definitely a communistic organization."

Koscinski denied he ever was a member of the American Slav congress or ever had donated any funds to it. He said he had been asked to be a director but had declined, adding the use of his name was "absolutely without my consent."

The hearing was continued until Friday morning.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

St. Louis, Mo., June 20—The White Sox scored their second straight victory over the St. Louis Browns tonight in a game climaxed by a near riot in the eighth inning during which the Chicagoans scored all their runs in their 4 to 1 victory. The defeat dropped the American league champions into sixth place.

The excitement began after the runs had scored and two were out. Manager Luke Sewell waved Tex Shirley into the game to relieve George Caster, who had supplanted Al Hollingsworth earlier in the same inning.

The baseball part of the evening's entertainment was principally pitching, featuring Ed Lopat against Hollingsworth, the latter allowing only four hits in seven scoreless innings. But Hollingsworth broke quickly in the eighth, the first of the crippling shots being a single by Lopat. Moses also singled and Le Roy Schalk walked, filling the bases with none out and bringing about the Hollingsworth retirement in favor of Caster. Guy Curtright hit the latter for a long fly on which Lopat scored the first of the four runs.

The next happening was an intentional pass to Johnny Dickshot, reloading the bases. Caster's feelings weren't soothed when Tony Cuccinello caromed a single off his shin to score Moses and Schalk. After Bill Nagel had flied out, Cass Michaels singled to drive in Dickshot. This was the hit that eliminated Caster and brought on the display of fisticuffs. Later the Browns nicked Lopat sufficiently to dodge the added humiliation of a shutout.

Gutteridge Safe on Error

It didn't take the Browns long to get themselves credited with a base runner because Nagel dropped a popup off the bat of Gutteridge, leadoff man, in the first inning. The error occasioned no distress. In fact, there wasn't even a trace of such until Gutteridge came up again in third. This time he singled with two out for the first hit off Lopat and he got the second by stealing his way but stopped there when Gray popped to Schalk.

The honor of being the first Chicagoan to start a trip on the bases was Schalk who walked but this didn't happen until after one was out in the fourth, 10 successive batters having failed up to this time before the Hollingsworth southpawing. The pass was followed by Curtright's fly and then a single to center by Dickshot, Schalk going to third. This mild outbreak was stilled when Cuccinello grounded to Christman. The Browns also enjoyed a hit in their half—a single by Stephens who died stealing.

Hollingsworth Stops Threat

The Sox really accomplished something in the fifth. They made two hits but despite the display didn't get a runner to second base. Nagel led off with a line single to left and Michaels tried to sacrifice but the effort was slightly inartistic. Hollingsworth captured the bunt on the fly and kept on running until he had stepped on first to double Nagel. Tresh then singled and Lopat flied to Gray.

The Browns' only run came in the last half of the eighth when Pete Gray doubled to center and came home on Vern Stephens' double to left center.

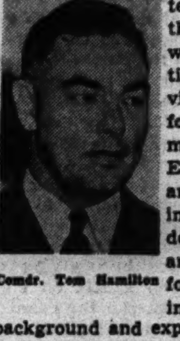
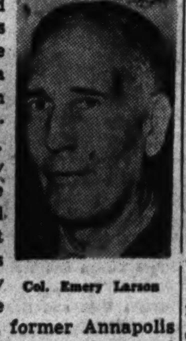
BY ARCH WARD

PHYSICAL strength, stamina, and agility long have been recognized as basic essentials in war. . . . Many Americans reported for service after Pearl Harbor ready for the tests of modern combat because of past participation in rigorous sports and exercise. . . . One of the tragic developments of the era between World War I. and World War II. was the fact that sports competition was far from universal. . . . Early physical efficiency tests conducted by the army proved that less than half the inductees were physically fit even by peace time standards. . . . Neglect of a vigorous athletic training program found us engaging in war in a lamentably unprepared state. . . . Except for a few diehards, army and navy leaders now recognize the importance of sport in the over-all development of competitive spirit and physical toughening. . . . It is fortunate that the army and navy include athletic leaders with the background and experience of Comdr. Tom Hamilton, former Annapolis athlete and football coach, who set up the training program for naval aviation; Col. Don Storck, an all around athlete at West Point in the early '20s, who is athletic director of the army air forces, and Col. Emery [Swede] Larson, former Annapolis athlete and football coach, who is head man in the marine corps' athletic program. . . . Their contributions will be appreciated more and more as we look back at World War II. a few years hence. . . .



Comdr. Tom Hamilton



Col. Emery Larson

These men, backed by their superior officers, have carried on competitive programs that have brought rich dividends on the battle fronts. . . . Col. Storck, addressing athletic officers of the army air forces in Chicago last Saturday, stressed the role sport will play in the rehabilitation of wounded veterans. . . , He cited a specific example of a returned soldier with an artificial limb who was despondent because of his condition. . . . He was taken to a track and asked to run a certain distance. . . . He was timed in 116 seconds. . . . A day later the veteran returned of his own accord and was clocked in 114 seconds. . . . Within two months he had cut the time to 16 seconds. . . . He had regained confidence in himself. . . . The colonel said that example had been duplicated numerous times. . . . The army air forces is going right ahead with its competitive football program, no matter how sharply the caliber of talent may decline. . . . Players scheduled to go overseas will not be retained on football teams in this country. . . . The squads will be comprised mainly of returned combat men. . . . Players will carry full duty assignments the same as other soldiers. . . . Any military executive who criticizes adversely that type of program is simply anti-sport and there's no use worrying about him. . . . His ilk is found occasionally in college administration, too.

Golden Wedding
[For Mr. and Mrs. Anton Zwack Sr.]

Today in the very same old church
Where fifty years before
They had stood together plighting their troth
To be faithful forevermore,
They stood once again, this gentle old pair,
And renewed their vows from the heart.
There were tears in the eyes of all close by
When they murmured "Till death do us part."

Fifty years of golden life,
Sharing fair and ill weather,
Raising their family, meeting all tests,
Shoulder to shoulder together;
As down thru the church they slowly advanced,
Arm in arm with a smile,
A peace and a benediction
Seemed to hover over the aisle.

In this topsy-turvy, workaday world,
With divorce as free as the air,
What a silently powerful sermon was preached
By that kindly, loving old pair!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20—Led by last year's finalists, the favorites in the 16th annual Women's Western Open golf tournament at the Highland Golf and Country club moved along again today, with one exception. Missing from tomorrow's quarter-finals will be Betty Jameson of San Antonio, former double National Women's title holder and thrice a Western winner, who was making her debut as a professional.

Betty, who won the W. W. G. A. Amateur twice and the Open in 1942, encountered a slender stranger named Carol [Babe] Freese in the sixth of today's second round matches. Carol never had been out of her native Oregon until this tourney, but when their bout was over, she had come from behind to put out Miss Jameson, 1 up, in 19 holes.

Mrs. Zaharias Works Overtime

Miss Freese's victory was the only successful move of the day in a projected revolution by the young folks' party here. The second best attempt of the rebels was made by Jean Hopkins of Cleveland, O., who scared the defending champion, Mrs. Mildred [Babe] Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles before yielding a 20 hole struggle which stood out as one of the best battles in the 16 year history of the event.

After losing the first four holes, Jean, 23, a Smith college graduate who has made the tournament wheel the last two winters, squared the match with birdies on the 17th and 18th then nearly won the 19th before losing the 20th and the match.

Betty Hicks Wins

Still another insurrectionist was Mrs. Bettye Mims White, the petite Texan who holds the Dallas city championship. Mrs. White, 22, gave Betty Hicks of Chicago's Tam o' Shanter club, all-American champion and last winner of the pre-war National Women's crown, a fight to the 17th hole. One up after No. 11 she finally went out, 2 and 1, to Miss Hicks, now the lone surviving professional of the show.

While all of this furor was going on a jolly young lady named Dorothy Germain was romping around Highland in pleasant style while beating Louise Suggs, the Georgia newcomer who had shot a 75 to share the qualifying medal with Mrs. Zaharias on Monday, by a 6 and 5 margin.

Starting out with two birdies, Dot, who lost to Mrs. Zaharias in the 1944 Open final, was two under par for the 13 holes needed to win, indicating that she's quite ready for her quarter-final debate against Miss Hicks tomorrow.

Babe Meets Dorothy Kirby

In the first of the quarter-finals Mrs. Zaharias, seeking her third Open title in six years, will find another right smart job on her hands in the person of willowy Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga. The latter, runner-up to Miss Jameson in the 1939 National and to Lt. Patty Berg for the 1943 Western Open, was hugging par all the way in her 6 and 5 conquest of young Alice O'Neal of Indianapolis.

The third duel of the afternoon will send Ann Casey of Mason City, Ia. against Mrs. Albert Becker of Englewood, N. J. Miss Casey won a 2 and 1 debate with Sally Sessions of Muskegon, Mich.

Mrs. Becker, who distinguished herself in the 1944 Open at Chicago's Park Ridge club, took a 2 up turning lead over Mrs. Alfred Brunno of New Rochelle, N. Y., then went into an up-and-down spat in which only the 13th hole was halved before Mrs. Becker won 4 and 2.

Misses Freese, Otto Meet

The fourth and last quarter-final gives Babe Freese a real test in the person of Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia., the Northwestern university junior who has been runner-up for both Western championships. Phyllis eked out a 2 up victory over Peggy Kirk of Findlay, O.

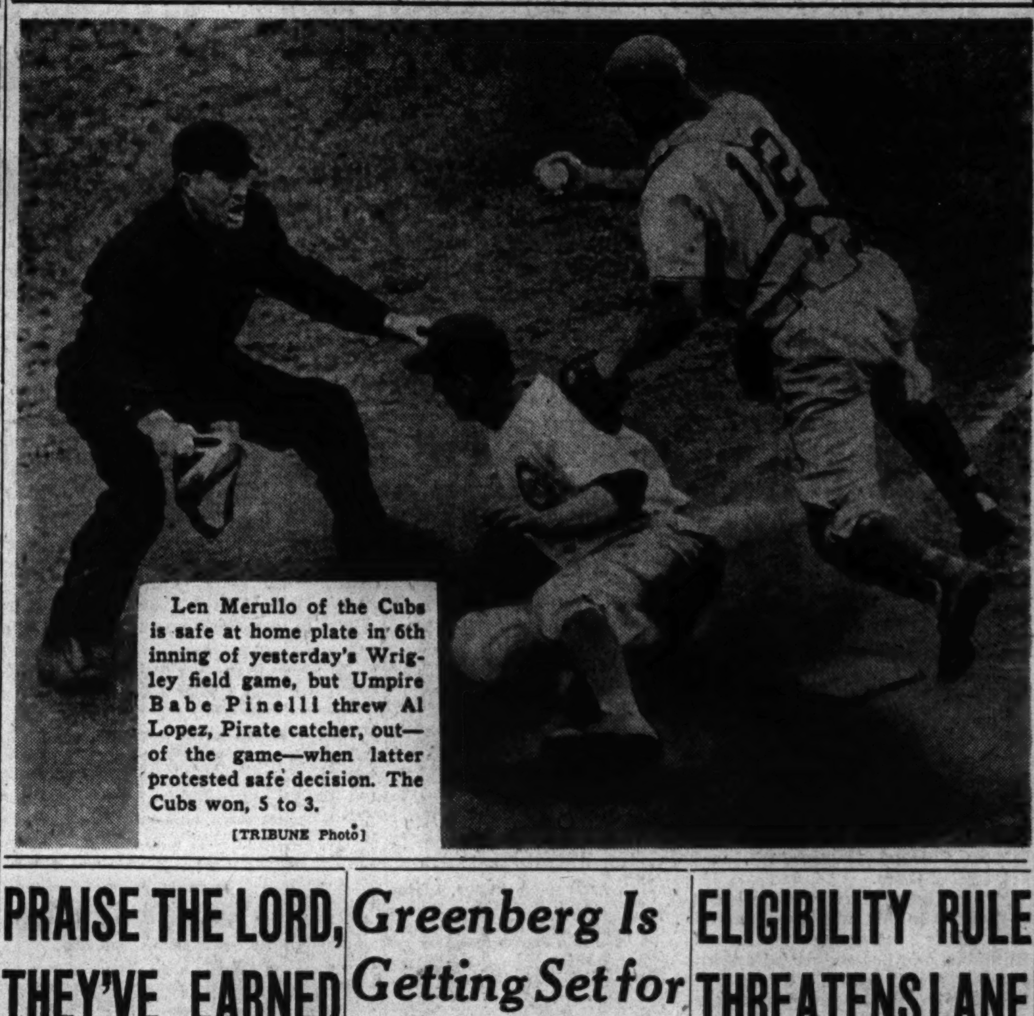
Results of second round matches:

Mrs. Mildred Zaharias, Los Angeles, beat Jean Hopkins, Cleveland, 1 up, 20 holes.
Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, Ga., beat Alice O'Neal, Indianapolis, 6 and 5.
Ann Casey, Mason City, Ia., beat Sally Sessions, Muskegon, Mich., 2 and 1.
Mrs. Albert Becker, Englewood, N. J., beat Mrs. Alfred Brunno, New Rochelle, N. Y., 4 and 2.
Dorothy Germain, Philadelphia, Pa., beat Louise Suggs, Lithia Springs, Ga., 6 and 5.
Betty Hicks, Niles, Ill., beat Mrs. Bettye Mims White, Dallas, Tex., 2 and 1.
Carol Freese, Portland, Ore., beat Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., 1 up, 19 holes.
Phyllis Otto, Atlantic, Ia., beat Peggy Kirk, Findlay, O., 2 up.

Quarter-final pairings:

Mrs. Zaharias vs. Miss Kirby.
Miss Casey vs. Mrs. Becker.
Miss Germain vs. Miss Hicks.
Miss Freese vs. Miss Otto.

RUNNER'S SAFE BUT CATCHER'S OUT ON THIS PLAY



Len Merullo of the Cubs is safe at home plate in 6th inning of yesterday's Wrigley field game, but Umpire Babe Pinelli threw Al Lopez, Pirate catcher, out—of the game—when latter protested safe decision. The Cubs won, 5 to 3.

PRAISE THE LORD, THEY'VE EARNED A LITTLE FISHIN'

BY BOB BECKER

A bus load of convalescent sailors, marines, and seabees from the Great Lakes Naval hospital put on a happy go lucky offensive against the fish in Pistakee lake yesterday. Representing 20 different states, the 27 boys in the party, some of them badly wounded veterans of South Pacific battles, fished with cane poles for crappies and bluegills, rowed boats for a while, laughed a lot as they swapped fishing yarns and caught fish, and at the end of the day voted a fishing excursion like this tops as an outing.

It was the first fishing trip and all-day outing for convalescents conducted by the navy's welfare and recreation department. This writer, asked to help make arrangements for the trip, worked in coöperation with the Illinois department of conservation.

Want to Try It Again

Chief Petty Officer D. D. Adee, assistant to the welfare and recreation officer at Great Lakes, said the boys had such a great time yesterday that similar fishing trips will be held each Wednesday during the summer months. Arriving at the Park Manor hotel on Pistakee lake at 9:30 a. m., the boys paired off two to a boat. All were equipped with cane poles, bobbers, hooks, and a choice of small minnows for crappies or worms for bluegills.

Some of the huskier fishermen in the party had to row for their marine and navy pals who still are on crutches as a result of battle wounds. Among those who got such free rowing service were Privates Donald H. Heim, Lakewood, O., and Vernon J. Niemiec, 954 N. Kildare av., Chicago, marine veterans of the Iwo Jima invasion, and Navy Corpsman Keith B. Colby, Pontiac, Mich., who was wounded in the invasion of Peleliu. Altho these boys even had difficulty in getting in and out of boats they went out to fish for crappies. Niemiec caught a crappie before lunch, first fish he ever had hooked in his life, and was immedi-

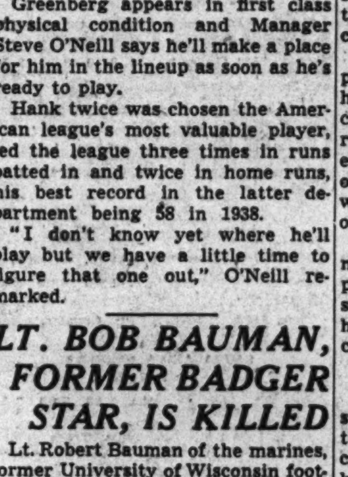
Greenberg Is Getting Set for Tiger Debut

Detroit, Mich., June 20 (AP)—Hank Greenberg, 34, Detroit Tiger first baseman-outfielder released from the army last week, arrived here by plane today to start his major league baseball comeback after four years in military service.

Greenberg, who hit 249 home runs, drove in 1,299 runs, and batted .325 during nine previous seasons with the Tigers, will go thru a 10 day practice schedule designed, according to General Manager Jack Zeller, to put him into the lineup by June 30.

Altho absent from baseball for four full seasons, Hank is expected to give the Tigers added hitting power which many experts believe will bring them the American league pennant.

While the Tigers currently lead the league by 2½ games they are batting only .242 as a club and stout pitching has been chiefly responsible for their success.



Out of major league baseball since 1941, Hank Greenberg arrived in Detroit last night to rejoin his Tiger teammates. Recently released from the army, Greenberg is shown looking at his old bats.

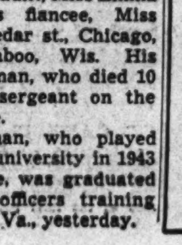
Greenberg appears in first class physical condition and Manager Steve O'Neill says he'll make a place for him in the lineup as soon as he's ready to play.

Hank twice was chosen the American league's most valuable player, led the league three times in runs batted in and twice in home runs, his best record in the latter department being 58 in 1938.

"I don't know yet where he'll play but we have a little time to figure that one out," O'Neill remarked.

LT. BOB BAUMAN, FORMER BADGER STAR, IS KILLED

Lt. Robert Bauman of the marines, former University of Wisconsin football star, was killed in action on Okinawa on June 6, his mother, Mrs. Bertha Bauman of 15545 Center av., Harvey, has been notified by the government.



Bob Bauman

Lt. Bauman, 24, had been overseas 18 months and had served on Guam before the invasion of Okinawa. He recently was wounded and had returned to action only a few days before he was killed.

He played tackle on the Wisconsin football team in 1940, 1941, and 1942, and was one of the nation's outstanding punters as a prep star at Thornton High in Harvey. He was named game captain for most of the Wisconsin contests in his senior year.

He is survived by his mother; one brother, Frank, a second lieutenant in the marines; an aunt, Miss Emma Bauman, and his fiancee, Miss Arlene Bahr, 50 Cedar st., Chicago, formerly of Baraboo, Wis. His father, Frank Bauman, who died 10 years ago, was a sergeant on the Harvey police force.

Lt. Frank Bauman, who played football at Purdue university in 1943 as a marine trainee, was graduated from the marine officers training school at Quantico, Va., yesterday.

ELIGIBILITY RULE THREATENS LANE BASEBALL TITLE

Lane Tech High school may have to wait until September to find out if its baseball team actually is the 1945 state champion, following disclosure yesterday that Irv Medlinger, right handed pitcher who won two games in the state tournament, may have been ineligible.

Medlinger, now property of the Boston Red Sox, yielded only three hits as Lane defeated Quincy, 12 to 2, in the first round of the tournament, and yielded six hits and fanned 20 in the final game, when the Indians trounced East St. Louis Central Catholic, 6 to 1.

May Call Special Session.

Rules of the Illinois High school association say that any high school player participating in a regular coaching school in this or any other state, shall be eligible for one year following the offense. Yesterday, downstate sources informed Albert Willis, executive secretary of the I. H. S. A., that Medlinger participated in a Chicago Cubs' coaching school.

Willis, who said the rule was put on the association books several years ago to protect high school players against university and college coaching schools, reported that Lane's right to the title would be discussed at the next meeting of the association board. The next formal meeting of the board, Willis said, is not scheduled until September, but an emergency session may be called for possible recommendations and action.

Awaits Notification

Willis has mailed the Lane principal, James H. Smith, information on Medlinger, and said the case would be given proper consideration when all the facts are presented. Smith is awaiting official notification from Willis before making comment.

In Benton, Ill., B. Floyd Smith, president of the I. H. S. A., said he had not yet received word on the case and would have to act on the recommendations of Willis. Smith is empowered to call a special meeting of the board, but said such action would depend entirely upon whether or not Willis thought it necessary.

The Lane coach, Percy Moore last night admitted that Medlinger had participated in the Cubs coaching school, but added he had felt there had been no violation of the association rules.

Calls It Common Practice

"It has been a common practice," said Moore, "for boys on Chicago teams to take part in big league coaching schools. Our City league knows this and the state association has been acquainted with this practice for some time. The facts were known before Chicago teams went to the state tournament this year."

Moore said he doubted if the coaching school had benefited Medlinger. He said, "Irv worked out a few times in the school as a first baseman. I had to make him a pitcher this year, and it is the first season he has pitched."

City league coaches seemed agreed that the rule should be clarified to avoid future embarrassment to local teams.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Max Butcher was given four hit backing against the Cubs yesterday for the second time in less than a week, but the difference between the two experiences was of joyous importance to the Cubs. On June 14 Butcher beat Bob Chipman and the Cubs on those four hits, 5 to 2, whereas yesterday the Cubs were the victors, 5 to 3. Chipman again was the starter, but Claude Passeau, who went in with the score tied, one on, and one out in the sixth, turned in a hitless and walkless performance for three and two-thirds innings to account for his sixth triumph of the season.

The success put an end to the Pirate dominance, which had seen the Pittsburghers win five straight after the Cubs had won five of the first six played by the teams this season. Thus the Cubs and the Pirates will go into the final of the current series this afternoon tied in the season series with six victories each. Preacher Roe will pitch for the Pirates and Hank Wyse will make what may be a farewell appearance for the Cubs, inasmuch as he leaves after the contest for Tulsa for a visit with his draft board.

Experiment Brings Success

Yesterday's game was the second successive game in which Manager Charley Grimm used a first line starter for relief duty, with successful results. Sunday in Cincinnati Paul Derringer earned his eighth victory as a replacement for Wyse.

Capt. Phil Cavarretta who batted .700 in the last three games prior to yesterday batted .667 yesterday. He knocked a two run homer in the first inning, walked his second trip to the plate and singled his third trip. Andy Pafko drove in the third run with his second hit. Don Johnson, who was a doubtful starter because of an ailing back, singled in the first and third innings, licks essential to the scoring of the first three Cub runs, inasmuch as Cavarretta's homer was made after two were out, and Johnson was on base.

Cubs Clinch Game in 6th

After a homer by Babe Dahlgren had tied the score in the sixth, the Cubs fabricated the winning run in their end of the sixth. With one out Lennie Merullo doubled and stopped at third on Passeau's single to center. Stan Hack bounced to Pete Coscarart, who threw to Al Lopez, who thought he had tagged Merullo at the plate. Senor Al set up an awful howl to Signor Babe Pinelli, plate umpire, and when he took a derisive kick at his mask, he was chased from the arena. When play was resumed with Bill Salkeld catching, Johnson hit into a double play.

The run the Cubs didn't need was effected in the seventh. Pafko walked with two down, stole second, and scored on Peanuts Lowrey's single, Chicago's 11th and final hit.

Cubs Take 2 to 0 Lead

The Cubs got off to a 2 to 0 lead in the first inning on Johnson's single and Cavarretta's homer, a 355 foot shot to the catwalk at the right of the right field bleacher. Pafko followed with a single to center but was forced for the third out.

Grimm's lads made it 3 to 0 in the third despite the slowing effects of

REVOLTA-BERG TO DEFEND TITLE IN VICTORY GOLF

Lt. Patty Berg of the marine corps yesterday announced her intention of defending the pro-women's title with Johnny Revolta of the Evanston Country club in the Victory national golf tournament which opens at Calumet Country club Wednesday.

Revolta also will have his senior partner, George Hardy, with whom he took the pro-senior title at Edgewater Country club last year. Tentative pairings announced yesterday by Tommy McMahon, chairman of the entry committee, indicate good competition for the defending champions in both events.

The pro-amateur title was won last year by Ky Laffoon and Steve Kovach, but Kovach turned pro in the last winter and Laffoon has taken Lou Esposito as his partner this year. Jug McSpaden, defending Victory National Open champion, will team with Don Armstrong in this event.

The three way preliminary championship play will be confined to Wednesday and Thursday of next week, with each foursome including a professional, an amateur, a woman, and a senior. The Victory Open will begin on Friday and, after 18 holes on Saturday, will close with a 36 hole event on Sunday.

BOAT OWNERS TO GET MORE GAS UNDER NEW RULE

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—A maximum increase of 50 per cent in gasoline rations for boats was authorized today by the OPA. The increase is similar to that given all A book car owners, effective Friday.

The present limitation on rations for personal use of boats will be increased from 24 to 36 gallons quarterly for inboards and from 10 to 15 gallons quarterly for outboards.

Boat owners who use their craft for such purposes as conducting pleasure or hunting parties also may receive larger rations.

LINCOLN FIELDS' TOP CONDITIONER IS MONTE WEIL

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Until the last few days, despite the exhortation of Lincoln Fields' major domo, Charles Bidwill, many of the trainers of horses on the Hawthorne grounds were more often than not disinclined to start their charges, but Monte Weil, the former Chicago restaurateur, was not among them.

Monte handles the thorobreds registered in his wife's name and the string belonging to J. M. Hutchins, another successful owner, and his ability is reflected in the fact that he's the leading conditioner at the track.

Wins a Pair of Seconds

Weil went into yesterday's activities with 11 previous winners and saddled three starters during the afternoon. The best he could do, however, was a pair of second places, with Mrs. Weil's 3 to 5 favorite, Needles Eye, in the third race and Hutchins' Observer in the $2,000 Glenwood purse, fifth event on the card.

Weil saddled Valdino Gino for Hutchins in the second race and he finished fifth in a field of nine, the winner being W. H. Grissim's What Night, ridden by Jess Higley. The winner paid $12 and, coupled with Bockman and Oros' Vero Lumen, Freddie Smith up, provided a daily double worth $47.40.

Bolo Tie Takes Burnham

Bolo Tie, owned by H. L. King and piloted by Smith, scored a three-quarter length victory over Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue in the day's main event, the $3,000 Burnham handicap which drew seven sprint starts. S. D. Sidell's St. Jock was third. The winner paid $19.80.

a double play after Hack and Johnson had pushed off with singles. With Stan on second and Don on first as a result of said hits, Bill Nicholson tapped into a double play, sinking with Johnson as Hack stopped at third. Cavarretta walked then Pafko again singled, scoring Hack. When the ball eluded Al Gionfriddo, Cavarretta reached third and Pafko second, but there was no further advance.

During these first three innings in which the Cubs were making three runs on six hits, the Pirates hadn't been able to get a runner on base.

Pirates Rout Chipman

In the fourth the Pirates launched an overtaking process which extended thru the next three innings and brought Chipman an early bath. With one out in the fourth Chipman was slow getting off the mound to cover first as John Barrett sent a grounder off of first which both Johnson and Cavarretta went after. Johnson came up with the ball but the effort went as the first Pirate hit when Chipman failed to hold Johnson's throw after Bob's late arrival at the bag. Chipman then loaded the bases by walking Gionfriddo and Bob Elliott on eight pitches. Dahlgren ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then forced Gionfriddo at third as Barrett ran home with the first Pirate run. Pete Coscarart was called out on strikes.

Lopez walked with one out in the fifth and stopped at third on Butcher's double to left. Lee Handley beat out a bunt, scoring Lopez and putting Butcher on third. Barrett popped to Johnson and Gionfriddo bounced to Cavarretta.

With one out in the sixth Dahlgren tied the score at 3-all with his homer, a shot into the stands in left center.

Elpis Defeats Monsoon in Belmont Upset

New York, June 20 (AP)—In one of the biggest upsets of the year, Col. C. V. Whitney's entry of Monsoon and Recce, favorite at 1 to 4, went down to defeat in the 29th Coaching Club American Oaks while William Helis' Elpis captured the $15,275 first money with three lengths to spare at Belmont Park today.

The popular pilot, Johnny Adams, who scored four times yesterday, earned a consecutive double in guiding Elpis home for a $15.10 payoff. Monsoon was second by eight lengths over William Woodward's Segula, while Recce finished 10 lengths farther back in fourth place. Brides Biscuit was fifth and last for the entire mile and three furlongs of this coveted special for three year old fillies.

Elpis, winner of one of her three previous starts in lesser company, completed the trip in 2:18 2/5 over a track that had dried out fast under the sun and with the aid of the harrows. All starters carried 121 pounds.

Of the $166,863 wagered in the straight pool, $119,485 was burned up on the Whitney pair.

The track parking lots were thrown open to public motorists today after having been closed for the last two years, a move taken by New York racing associations in conjunction with the state racing commission.

Enjoy Eating 'Em Too

Two Michigan sailors, W. J. Klaasen, machinists' mate first class of Traverse City, and his partner, William J. McCallum, machinists' mate second class, of Kalamazoo, won top honors as the best crappie fishermen. They had a string of 14 before lunch.

Altho most of the boys in the party were inexperienced in fishing, all acted like veterans when it came time to surround the chow provided by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lipka, owners of the Park Manor hotel who played hosts to the fishing party during the day. In addition to furnishing lunch for the party Lipka provided free boats and bait for all the boys.

Visit Fox Lake Next

In order to get the fishing party on the best spots and also keep an eye on the boys while on the water, Anthony Maggio, assistant chief inspector of the department of conservation, assigned three of his investigators, Harry Novotny, A. L. Goldsmith, and Russell S. Carterton, and two department patrol boats to the party.

Next Wednesday the fishing expedition from the Great Lakes hospital will visit Fox lake. On this trip the boys who want to cast artificial lures for bass and pickerel will have six complete casting outfits contributed to the welfare and recreation department by the Tribune sports department.

SCRAP BRETTON BANK, IMPROVE ITS TWIN: PALYI

Views Are Opposite of Other Critics

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 20 — Scrapping the proposed international reconstruction bank and strengthening the provisions of its twin, the world monetary fund, were advocated today by Dr. Melchior Palyi, Chicago economist and former reichsbank advisor. He testified before the senate banking and currency committee at a hearing on a bill to authorize participation in the dual program drafted at the Bretton Woods conference last summer. The United States would be called upon to furnish 5 billion 925 million dollars of a 17 billion 900 million total.

Palyi's testimony came as a surprise because other opposition witnesses, including bankers, have opposed the monetary fund and supported the bank as a safer risk for American capital. Palyi criticized the whole program before the house banking committee last month as one which would hamper trade and the flow of capital among nations.

Tells Restrictive Plans

"If one of these proposals were to be scrapped, the bank should go," said Palyi. "The bank's 9 billion 100 million then could be added to the monetary fund's 8 billion 800 million and the fund's restrictions could be tightened to prevent excessive foreign exchange regulation and crippling bans on capital transfers."

Other nations already are planning to restrict exportation of their currencies, he asserted, Britain intending to impose drastic limitations on the amount of money its nationals can take out of the country.

Palyi said he learned of this plan from a high British government official this spring. Only business men, lecturers, and others who would bring foreign currency home with them, could travel abroad. Later he said such a plan might lead to commercial wars.

"It is a disturbing factor in international affairs because the same policy in Germany and other central European countries led to their pre-war financial troubles," he said.

"Fund Does Not Stabilize"

"As presently planned," he told the committee, "the fund does not stabilize, but creates disturbing factors which would cause more unstabilization, especially because it does not eliminate foreign exchange restrictions, which comprise the most important single unstabilizing international factor."

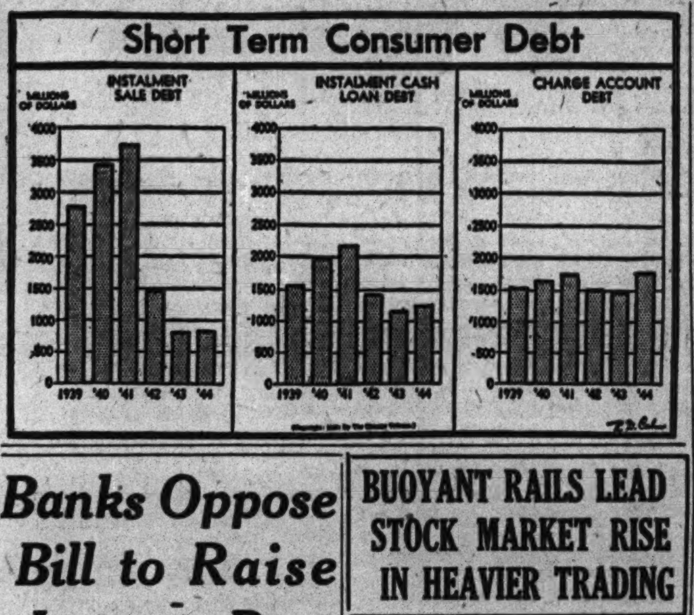
Palyi criticized provisions which would permit the bank to make loans without regard to the financial stability of the nation in which the borrower was located. The fund would make advances only to countries proving their need for currency stabilization, and only if that nation's financial house was in order. Also, a nation may withdraw from the fund its own contribution over a period of four years, 25 per cent each year, when needed for currency stabilization.

BARS INJUNCTION IN SEIZURE OF TEXAS REFINERY

Galveston, Tex., June 20 (AP)—Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly today denied an application by Humble Oil and Refining company for a permanent injunction restraining the government from taking over its 100-octane gasoline refinery at Ingleside, Tex.

President Truman ordered the plant seized by the petroleum administration for war on June 6. The company immediately obtained a temporary restraining order. The seizure was laid to refusal of the company to carry out a war labor board directive including a maintenance of membership clause in a union contract.

"There are very grave doubts about the constitutional validity of power to seize plaintiff's property because of such refusal to obey such directive or order, but the plaintiff does not in his complaint or otherwise attack such acts as in violation of or repugnant to the Constitution," Judge Kennedy said.



Banks Oppose Bill to Raise Interest Rate

Chicago district bankers have come out flatly against Illinois house bill 579, which would permit a legal rate of interest up to 18 per cent on instalment loans of not more than $1,500, maturing in a year. Harry C. Hausman, executive secretary of the Illinois Bankers' association, said that Chicago district, group 1, of the association voted to oppose the measure.

The association itself on May 29 voted to withdraw its sponsorship of the bill, altho a few downstate bankers were said to favor it.

Frank C. Rathje, vice president of the American Bankers' association and president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company and the Mutual National Bank of Chicago, said that he opposed the measure.

Rathje Opposes Bill

"I feel very strongly about this bill," said Rathje, who is a past president of the Illinois bankers. "As it appears to me, the bill changes a usury statute which has been in effect 50 years or longer by increasing the maximum interest rate in instalment loans of up to $1,500 to 1½ per cent a month.

"It also increases the rate on loans above $1,500 and up to $5,000 to a 7 per cent discount rate, which is equal to an interest rate of approximately 14 per cent on indebtedness due in one year and payable in 12 equal monthly instalments.

"It is to be regretted that the legislature should be called upon to raise interest rates to these unprecedented levels when the bankers and all other patriotic citizens are calling upon the public to invest in low yield government bonds."

Would Raise Loan Limit

The bill would raise the amount that small loan agencies can lend from $300 to $5,000 and it would also put banks in the small loan business at higher than present legal interest rates, opponents of the bill state.

Small loan companies under the present small loan act can make loans of $300 or less at rates running as high as 3 per cent per month on the first $150, or 2½ per cent on the next $150. It is said that under the proposed law high rates can be exacted on loans to business men, farmers, and others.

HEAVY TAX LOAD TERMED BAR TO BUILDING ESTATE

High taxes and low interest rates make it difficult, if not impossible, for the average citizen to build an estate, Clifton Reynolds, an executive of Metropolitan Life Insurance company, New York, said yesterday at the annual meeting of the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters.

Tho taxes have soared, bond interest has declined from 6 per cent to 2 or 3 per cent in the last 20 years, he said. The result is that a man with a $50,000 estate formerly could have an annual income of $3,000, but now he is fortunate if he can obtain $1,500. If a man receiving $7,500 a year wished to create a $50,000 estate in 10 years he would have to save $5,032 a year, his taxes would be $1,500, so all he would have left to live on would be $968 a year.

A. T. & T. to Register New Debenture Issue June 27

New York, June 20 (AP)—The American Telephone and Telegraph company today announced that it will file on June 27 175 million dollars of 2¾ per cent debentures. Proceeds will be used to redeem at 105 on Oct. 1 175 millions of 25 year 3¼ per cent debentures due Oct. 1, 1961.

Labor 'Peace Bill' Is Submitted

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Legislation to revamp the government's labor relations machinery and described by its author as an "industrial peace" chart was introduced today in the senate. Its initial reception by representatives of organized labor indicated that its course thru congress may be far from peacable.

Offered by three senators who took a leading part in advocating permanent world peace machinery, it is patterned largely after the railway labor act. It would overhaul government conciliation and mediation agencies and rewrite major provisions of the Wagner labor relations act. The authors are Senators Ball [R., Minn.], Burton [R., O.], and Hatch [D., N. M.].

Seeks to Avert Discord

Hatch said the plan would prevent the "serious danger of a knock-down, drag-out fight between management and labor in the immediate post-war period."

But in advance of study of the measure, representatives of the AFL, CIO, and United Mineworkers were chary of comment. Their coolness arose partly from not having been consulted, altho the senators said the bill was under consideration 18 months.

Most of the drafting work was done by a volunteer committee of 13 men experienced in labor relations, headed by Donald R. Richberg, who helped draft the railway labor act.

William Green, AFL president, said he had not seen the legislation, had not been consulted, and reporters could draw their own conclusions from that about where the AFL would stand on it.

Basis for CIO Opposition

Suggesting why the CIO may oppose the bill, an official said: "Historically, we are opposed to compulsory arbitration. Second, we are the No. 1 defenders of the Wagner labor relations act, you might say."

The bill would require compulsory arbitration of "grievances," as does the railway labor act. A five man industrial relations board would supplant the conciliation service and war labor board for mediation. Settlement of unfair labor practices complaints would pass from the national labor relations board to a new three member tribunal. The WLB would remain until six months after the war.

The Wagner act would be revised to make a closed shop illegal if the union involved did not meet four provisions which the bill's sponsors said would require unions having closed shop contracts "to meet certain democratic standards."

BUOYANT RAILS LEAD STOCK MARKET RISE IN HEAVIER TRADING

New York, June 20 (AP)—Rails resumed their recent buoyancy to lead a rally among steels, low priced motors, utilities, and oils in today's stock market altho some favorite industrials went begging.

Carriers developed strength just before noon and several set new highs for 1945 or longer, including Colorado and Southern 1st and 2d preferred, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and Union Pacific. Gains in this group ranged from fractions to about 3 points, Santa Fe closed at 99⅞, a peak since 1931.

Buying was attributed to the investment of idle funds, but some customers stood aside on the belief that a substantial technical correction may be in the offing because of the long rise to eight year tops.

Transfers totaled 1,680,000 shares against 1,560,000 yesterday.

BOND RALLY IS BRISK

New York, June 20 (AP)—A brisk advance was made by popular rails and industrial specialties in a moderately active bond market today. Gains of leaders reached 1 to 3 points before a late shading of prices.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover was 55,000 shares. Volume leaders included Aviation corporation, up ⅜, Central and South West Utilities, up ⅛, Central Illinois Securities and Commonwealth Edison, down ⅛ each, and Chicago corporation, unchanged. E. L. Bruce & Co. rose 1 to a new peak of 38.

Rising Strike Wave Makes 50,000 Idle

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Nearly 50,000 persons, principally in war industries, were idle yesterday because of strikes.

Hope for prompt settlement of the largest strike, that of more than 16,000 CIO United Rubber Workers at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, O., waned when union members voted to defy a war labor board back-to-work order.

In the Detroit area nearly 11,000 were idle. A jurisdictional dispute between AFL and CIO made 7,500 idle at Budd Wheel company and 3,000 at Ford Motor company's River Rouge plant. Four hundred AFL maintenance men were out at Packard Motor company.

With 6,000 glass workers out, the WLB worked to prevent spread of the strike to eight plants, in addition to the struck Pittsburgh Plate company factories in Ford City and Creighton, Pa. The strike threatened to spread to four other Pittsburgh company plants and four of Libby-Owens-Ford Glass company.

In Ashland, Ky., 2,500 CIO Steel Workers at the ARMCO works remained idle in a strike that started June 12 in protest against the discharge of one employe. The strikers voted Tuesday night to reject a WLB back-to-work directive.

Hoover Asks Thoro Change in Food Plans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 20—A 12 point program for relieving the food crisis was recommended by Herbert Hoover, former President and World War I. food administrator, in a letter read in the house today by Rep. Jenkins [R., O.]. Mr. Hoover's suggestions, as well as criticisms of the office of price administration's handling of food distribution and price control, were made public as the house opened its debate on the price control extension act.

Herbert Hoover

Mr. Hoover recommended that all control over live stock, live stock products and feed, except rationing, be transferred from the OPA to the department of agriculture. He advocated setting up within the live stock industry a range-to-consumer organization which would operate under the secretary of agriculture to plan, stimulate, and police production of animal products.

Backs Administrative Change

In his letter, written at Jenkins' request, Mr. Hoover said that increased food production and more equitable distribution can be brought about more workably by an administrative revolution rather than by proposed amendments to the OPA act.

"In frantic efforts to hold the supposed ceiling prices, subsidies are being given to processors and farmers amounting to millions of dollars," Mr. Hoover wrote. "As these subsidies come out of the pocket of the taxpayer, who is also the consumer, they do not alleviate anything. If they increase the debt, our veterans of this war will be required to pay part of our food bills after they have come home from war."

The causes of the food crises lie in the method of organization dividing the control of food among several federal agencies, "where the whole price control machinery is based upon ill-advised concepts and where the organization has considered coercion more useful than coöperation with producers, distributors, and consumers," he wrote.

Asks Federal Coördination

Mr. Hoover also proposed coördination of government buying thru creation of a national food pool upon which the army and navy would have first claim; establishment of price ceilings reflecting cost and profit; transfer to the secretary of agriculture of all allocations and buying of major animal products for the army and navy, lend-lease, and relief; licensing of all legitimate packers, commission men, and retailers with the requirement that they deal only with other licensed persons, and markups, permitting reasonable profits at the various levels of the live stock and meat industry.

RAYTHEON SEEKS COASTAL RADIO STATION GRANTS

Ratheon Manufacturing company, maker of radio and other electronic equipment, reported yesterday it had filed applications with the federal communications commission for construction permits to install five coastal harbor radiotelephone stations in Eastport, New England, and Rockland, Me., and Gloucester and New Bedford, Mass. At present only one coastal harbor radiotelephone station is operating in that area. One of the most important users would be the fishing industry.

Ratheon requested channels in the ultra short wave band for service reaching out 45 miles from the various points of operation. It also asked five channels in the short wave with a larger reach. Some fishing vessels were said to require service 800 miles out.

CHINA ARRANGES LARGE SHIPMENT OF GOLD BY U. S.

CHUNGKING, China, June 20 (AP)—Finance Minister Yui today announced arrangements had been made to ship a large quantity of gold from the United States to China by air, most of it to arrive in July. China, it was recalled, earmarked 200 million dollars for the purchase of gold out of a 500 million American loan. Part of the 200 million already has been so used and the gold delivered.

DOUBLE MARGIN FOR RYE TRADE, PRICES BREAK

Board Acts to Avoid Runaway Market

Rye futures broke the 5 cent limit and closed 3¼ to 4⅞ cents a bushel lower yesterday after the Chicago Board of Trade doubled the initial margin requirement, effective today. The margin was hiked from 10 to 20 cents a bushel to put a brake on excess speculation. The action came after prices had soared 17⅞ cents last week from the low of the preceding week.

The Clearing House association of the exchange raised its margin requirements for members to 12 cents a bushel. A Board of Trade spokesman said it was customary to increase margin requirements in the event of "runaway markets."

Selling Strikes Other Grains

General selling developed in other grains as May rye broke the permissible limit. Wheat closed 1¾ to 2¼ cents lower. Corn was unchanged to ⅞ lower, oats lost 1⅛ to 1⅝, and barley was down 3¾ to 4¼.

July rye which touched $1.59⅝ Tuesday dropped to $1.53½ and finished within ½ cent of the bottom. The deferred deliveries were sold by commission houses generally and support failed to appear. May was off 7⅝ cents from the Tuesday high.

Many brokers attributed the break largely to technical conditions. Commission houses were understood to have been demanding 20 cents a bushel margin on new trades in rye for some time. No change was made in margin requirements on other grains.

Wheat Harvest Larger

Hedging pressure was reported increasing in wheat and bids were easier for new crop winter wheat for deferred shipment from the country. This was especially marked in the southwest where harvest yields exceeded expectations.

Crop reports on corn from government agencies and trade sources indicated the newly planted grain was making slow growth and much replanting would be necessary. Cash corn remained short as farmers sold little despite bids of ceiling prices.

Commission houses sold oats and barley freely.

ANTI-TRUST SUIT FILED AGAINST 10 SPRING MAKERS

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Ten major manufacturers of railway springs and spring plates were charged in a federal anti-trust suit today with conspiring to suppress competition and fix prices. The civil action was filed in Hammond, Ind.

Describing springs and spring plates as important cost items in the construction and maintenance of railroad cars and locomotives, Assistant Atty. Gen. Berge said it is the justice department's position that "artificially high prices" for such equipment bring about higher transportation rates.

"It is further alleged in the complaint that the defendants have for many years submitted collusive bids to railroads and car builders for springs and spring plates and have agreed in advance which defendant should submit the lowest bid in each instance," the justice department said.

It named these companies as defendants:

American Locomotive, American Spiral Spring and Manufacturing, American Steel Foundries, Baldwin Locomotive Works, Crucible Steel, Fort Pitt Spring, Pittsburgh Spring and Steel, Union Spring and Manufacturing, Symington-Gould, Pittsburgh Steel Foundry, Universal Railway Devices, and Railway and Industrial Spring association.

10 Auto Makers Get 691,018 Output Quota for 9 Months

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—The WPB today announced production quotas for the 10 automobile manufacturing companies totaling 691,018 new passenger cars in the nine months following July 1. This was an increase of approximately 10 per cent over the quota announced earlier.

Production of 241,916 cars will be permitted in the last half of 1945, WPB said, and of 449,102 in the first 1946 quarter.

General Motors corporation was assigned a production ceiling nearly twice as high as its nearest competitor, Chrysler. Ford was in third place.

Set 8,000 Car Floor

No company was granted a quota of fewer than 8,000 cars in the next six months, on the theory that production should be started at "a reasonable rate" from the profit making standpoint. Any new companies entering the passenger car field also will receive the 8,000 quota.

"The over-all ceiling on passenger car production is limited by the amount of steel that will be available for such production without material allotments or preference [priority] ratings," WPB said.

Several of the smaller producers would have received lower quotas, but for the 8,000-car limit.

For the period July 1-Dec. 31, the production ceilings follow: General Motors corporation, 95,096; Chrysler corporation, 49,635; Ford Motor company, 39,910; Studebaker corporation, 9,275; Hudson Motor Car company, Packard Motor Car company, Nash-Kelvinator corporation, Willys-Overland Motors, Graham-Paige Motor corporation, and Crosley corporation, 8,000 each.

Other Production Ceilings

For the three month period Jan. 1 to March 31, the production ceilings are: General Motors 190,192, Chrysler 99,270, Ford 79,820, Studebaker 18,550, Hudson 13,602, Packard 12,118, Nash-Kelvinator 11,550, Willys-Overland, Graham-Paige, and Crosley, 8,000 each.

The new total production figure does not include special type vehicles such as taxicabs, ambulances, or hearses. The quotas for special vehicles will be established later, the WPB said.

Crosley Plans New Car

Cincinnati, O., June 20 (AP)—Powel Crosley said today he expected to start production by Oct. 1 on a new model midget Crosley automobile as a result of the WPB go-ahead for 8,000 units. He said his car would be several inches longer than his pre-war model—which was small enough to be packed in across the width of a standard freight car. The new model will be powered by a four cylinder engine now being manufactured for the navy, and will develop 28 horsepower against 12.5 in the earlier model, with no increase in weight.

Way Opened for Return of Rail to Owner

The way was opened yesterday for return of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad by the federal government to the management of George P. McNear Jr., president, after conferences in the chambers of Federal Judge Walter J. La Buy. McNear said that he was ready to accept return of the road, which was seized March 21, 1941, provided he did not have to comply with "feather bed" [made work] rules.

McNear's position was made known after two conferences in the judge's chambers from which the press was excluded. The first was described as a fiery session in which McNear stated flatly that he would not accept the road under "conditions as I understand them to exist." Prospects for agreement improved at the second meeting, however.

Requested by Judge La Buy

Others besides McNear at the conferences were Clarence W. Heyl, attorney for McNear; Clair Roddewig, chief counsel for the office of defense transportation; Arnold Levy, special assistant to the attorney general, and Mark Alexander, assistant United States attorney from Springfield, Ill.

The conferences had been requested by Judge La Buy to settle the dispute out of court after his May 19 decision that the government was in control of the road unlawfully.

At a press conference after the morning conference Levy said the government stood ready to turn the road back if McNear would continue to operate it in the same manner the government had done.

McNear reiterated his position that he would not accept the road if conditions were as they had been described to him. He said he considered some of them "treasonable."

Operations Held Wasteful

"For three years we have been asking a fair and impartial tribunal to consider the feather bed rules," he told reporters. "The operations by the government have been wasteful and include hindering practices which are not only wasteful of man power but delay operation of the trains.

McNear, who lost a son in the war, said that sacrifices must be made by every one to move war supplies as fast as possible and "all feather bedding should be suspended for the period of the war."

At the afternoon conference McNear said that if he learned he had been informed wrongly as to conditions he would take back the road.

Judge La Buy told the group to try to confer again before July 1 to arrange a settlement.

APPROVE TRADE ACT WITH DUTY CUTTING POWER

Senate Sends Bill to White House

Washington, D. C., June 20 (AP)—Defeating a series of restrictive amendments, the senate today passed and sent to the White House legislation extending the reciprocal trade agreements law three more years with added power for the President to cut tariffs. The vote was 54 to 21.

Authorized under the old law to halve import duties, the President will be empowered by the new law to reduce tariffs another 50 per cent below the rates prevailing on Jan. 1, 1945. By using the full power, duties could be trimmed to 25 per cent of the Smoot-Hawley schedules of 1930.

Backed by Two Presidents

President Truman termed the broadened authority "of the first order of importance for the success of my administration." The late President Roosevelt likewise was a hearty backer of the trade program fathered by Cordell Hull in 1934.

In defeating six amendments today, the senate followed the pattern set yesterday in restoring authority for the additional 50 per cent cut which had been removed temporarily by the finance committee.

The first amendment turned down, by a vote of 49 to 27, was offered by Sen. Shipstead [R., Minn.] and would have exempted virtually all agricultural products from tariff reductions. Opposing it, Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] said it would have covered 610 separate classes of farm commodities.

O'Mahoney Clause Defeated

By another 49 to 27 vote, administration supporters rode down an attempt by Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] to make all new trade agreements subject to congressional approval.

Lucas snapped out that the O'Mahoney amendment was "a fine way to scuttle the trade program" and "a move back toward economic isolationism." Sen. Wiley [R., Wis.] insisted the people want congress to recapture its power, not delegate more of it to the executive.

AVERAGE CATTLE PRICE ADVANCES TO JUNE RECORD

Cattle prices yesterday rose to the highest average June level on record, and, including the subsidy payments, farm returns were highest in Chicago stock yards history. Buyers paid the $18 a hundred pounds ceiling price for two carloads of long fed steers.

A large part of the steers offered sold 25 cents higher, with the least strength in stock selling below $16. Most sales were at $15.75 to $17.65 and the average price was $16.70.

Lamb prices advanced 25 cents in lively trading. The best new crop natives sold up to $16.50. Hogs sold at ceiling prices.

DANE FARMERS LOBBY FOR NEW BOOST IN PRICES

War Rise Already Costs Allies 50 Pct. More

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 20—This little country's world famous farm organization is selling its exports at prices hiked 50 per cent during the five years of German occupation. Future prices to be paid by the allies are under negotiation in London and the agricultural council is lobbying for a further increase in its purchasing power thru depreciation of the Danish kroner in its exchange rate with British pounds and American dollars.

The developments are of concern to American taxpayers who pay most of the food bill for the allied armies and allied nations relief. Danish integration of production, processing, and sale of eggs, butter, and bacon attracted international study before the war, so it is noteworthy that the system was continued thru German occupation and is again part of world economy.

Large Quantities Involved

The quantities involved are substantial. Since May 5 Denmark has shipped to Antwerp, Belgium, 1,000 tons of eggs, 2,000 tons of butter, and 1,000 tons of bacon. Great Britain received 200 tons of eggs and 2,000 tons of butter. Norway got 135 tons of eggs, 355 of bacon, and 2,100 of butter.

Without the resumption of normal peace time importation of feeds, Denmark expects its 1945 exports to include 80,000 tons of bacon, 50,000 tons of butter, and 10,000 tons of eggs. Production has been curtailed by lack of these imports which in 1939 included 146,000 tons of oil cakes, and 720,000 tons of small grains.

The typically small, intensely cultivated Danish farm also needs imported nitrates and phosphates for fertilizer.

The distinctive feature of Danish agriculture is that exports are sold thru a state wide agency representing almost all the country's 206,000 farms. Immediately before the war, 83 per cent of all butter production and 64 per cent of all bacon were exported.

Belong to Coöperatives

Ninety per cent of the farmers belong to cooperative dairies, and a like portion belongs to coöpera-tive slaughter houses which maintain quality standards, pay uniform prices, and divide the profits.

Typical soil of the Jutland peninsula and the islands comprising Denmark is glacial clay on limestone bases. Sixty-five per cent of the farms are of less than 14 acres and only 2.3 per cent are of more than 150 acres.

A visit to a typical dairy found it to be small but efficient, with modern equipment and sanitary conditions. It was making 1,270 pounds of cheese daily, in addition to butter and bottled cream for export for its 270 farmer members. The members own from one to 14 cows each on acreages ranging from four to 100.

A typical coöperative slaughterhouse was found to be killing all the hogs for 4,000 members. It, too, was a modern institution. The hogs were all of the same breed — long white animals, lighter than American stock. The breeding was for long loin. Live weights were fairly uniform at 180 pounds. Their feed in war time has been mainly skimmed milk and boiled potatoes.

BANK'S BOOK VALUE UP

Please tell me the book value of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock. What is the dividend rate?—M. O.

The book value of the bank's capital stock as of Dec. 31, 1944, was $139,469,180, equal to $77.48 a share on the 1,800,000 shares of $33.33⅓ par value. This total does not include $18,109,934 contingency reserves, equal to about $10 a share.

The book value has increased steadily in recent years and in total amount has more than doubled since 1936. It then amounted to $59,402,079, equal to $33 a share on the present number of shares, or $66 on the 900,000 shares outstanding at that time. This was exclusive of a contingency reserve of $11,405,916. The subsequent increase in number of shares was effected thru dividends in stock, amounting to 33⅓ per cent in 1937, 25 per cent in 1938, and 20 per cent in 1943. A 20 per cent dividend in stock had been distributed in 1936.

The present cash dividend rate of $4 a share a year has been paid since 1940. The share earnings during this interval—including profits on securities sold—as adjusted to the present number of shares, were: 1944, $9.03; 1943, $8.57; 1942, $6.99; 1941, $8.43; 1940, $8.96.

MAYOR ADMITS CITY FINANCES 'IN BAD SHAPE'

Mayor Kelly told the council finance committee yesterday that the city is in bad financial shape and that the "public should know about it."

The committee, headed by Ald. Bowler [25th], was discussing a pending council resolution expressing disapproval of a bill before the state legislature that would raise the city's pegged levy from 37 million dollars for corporate purposes to 41 millions.

The resolution, offered by Aldermen Bohling [7th], Waller [43d], Olin [8th], Merryman [45th], and Brandt [33d], asked that an investigation of the need for the additional money be made by both the council and the legislature before the bill is enacted. The discussion was marked by wrangling that ended with Bowler's announcement that a subcommittee would consider the resolution.

Mayor Joins Debate

Mayor Kelly's statement came after Bohling, in assailing the pending bill, had argued that the finance committee should concentrate upon getting financial aid from state funds.

"We have been trying to get more money out of Springfield for 20 years," the mayor said, "but we've never been successful."

Bowler said he favored the bill, if a companion measure which would reduce the relief tax levy by 4 million dollars, also was passed. He stressed the city's need for additional funds.

"Increases in pay for city employes are necessary," he said. "Unless something is done, the city will find itself unable to function on our present levy in 1946."

Ald. Lindell [9th] argued in favor of the bill. He said the wage demand that unions are making on the city must be met, and that additional money must be forthcoming.

Kells Pleads for Taxpayer

Ald. Kells [28th] remarked that a decrease of the tax on real estate would do away with the need for public housing. He was in favor, he said, of a state law that would reduce the burden on real estate.

Ald. Waller told the committee that other cities have streamlined their governments, but Chicago still is in the "horse and buggy stage," with high taxes and a modicum of revenue from other sources.

"I think that we, representatives of the people of Chicago, should not stand for an increase in taxes until a thoro study shows that it is necessary," Waller said.

Bowler gave his decision thus: "The state legislature takes pride in kicking Chicago around. The members capitalize downstate on that. They like to go back to their homes and say they've kicked hell out of Chicago again. We'll have a subcommittee look into this and find out, too, just how the council regards this bill."

KELLY CRACKS WHIP AT DELAY ON AIRPORT JOB

Aldermanic bickering over whether the $700,000 temporary terminal building at the airport should be built by city labor or by private industry drew Mayor Kelly's ire yesterday. He told the council finance committee to "give Public Works Commissioner Hewitt authority to go ahead with the job with what labor and means he thinks best and quit making a chump out of me."

Council approval is necessary before Hewitt can let contracts. The council also must release funds required by the public works commissioner.

Had to Guarantee Labor

"We could never have obtained the priorities without assuring the government that no drain would be imposed upon the labor pool in Chicago," he said. "It was necessary to guarantee that city labor would be used as far as possible.

"I think the labor shortage is overrated by Washington, but we must have a new terminal building or we'll be just another country town as far as aviation is concerned. We'll find the air lines pulling out of Chicago."

The mayor told the committee, which is headed by Ald. Bowler [25th], that the proposed building would last for at least 10 years and that the city hoped to establish a new port, with a permanent building, within that time.

Two Air Lines Not Yet Signed

Besides complaining about the use of city labor, several members of the committee have demurred at going ahead with the terminal because only six of the eight air lines slated to use the building have signed contracts with the city.

The contract calls for the air lines to repay over a 10 year period the money expended by the city to put up the building.

"What if the lines don't sign the contract?" the mayor demanded. "We'll go ahead and charge the lines accordingly—twice what they now pay, if necessary. But the fact remains that we must have this building."

Issues Demand for Action

Mayor Kelly told the aldermen that the question before them was: "Do you want the building or don't you?"

"Either vote it up or down, and give Hewitt the authority to do the work now," he said.

Bowler instructed a subcommittee on airports, headed by Ald. Duffy [19th], to consider the mayor's appeal before today's council meeting.

COUNCIL TO O. K. MAYOR'S TRANSIT MEMBERS TODAY

The state senate yesterday confirmed Gov. Green's appointment of three members of the board that is to govern the proposed publicly owned Chicago metropolitan transit authority; the city council is expected to approve today the four others who have been chosen by Mayor Kelly.

The mayor's nominees and their probable terms of office are: Philip Harrington, subway commissioner, seven years; Ald. Quinn [50th], chairman of the council committee on local transportation, six years; Irvin L. Porter, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, five years; Martin H. Kennelly, storage firm executive, one year.

Quinn has disclosed that he will resign as alderman today to accept the transit post.

Confirmed by the senate were George F. Getz Jr., coal merchant with wide business interests, two years; Philip W. Collins, who was head of the state revenue department until his resignation Tuesday, three years, and John Quincy Adams, real estate dealer and director of the Continental Illinois National bank, four years.

Sealed Verdict Returned in $50,000 Suit for Love

A sealed verdict was returned late yesterday in the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought in Circuit court by Atty. Sol R. Friedman in behalf of Charles Zaremba, 50, of 4559 S. Washtenaw av., against Anthony Skurdailis, 43, of 4520 S. Francisco av. Skurdailis was accused of stealing the love of Zaremba's wife, Pauline, 42. She later got a divorce. The suit was the first of its kind filed in the state since a 1935 Illinois statue outlawed such actions.
